SMITH BLAMES MILLER RULE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—After weeks of continuous labor which frequently has kept them busy twenty hours out of twenty-four, Senator Bernard Downing of New York and Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies of Chautauqua, Chairmen of the fiscal committees of the Legislature, presented the appropriation bill to the two houses tonight. The grand total expenditures for maintenance of the State Government provided for in the bill is $116,945,052, compared with $102,537,410 last year.

To this must be added $32,729,990 to meet the cost of various projects provided for in special appropriation bills which already have passed or are certain to become law. With this item, the total estimated expenditures of the State up to date call for $149,675,042, with possibly $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 more to be added through future legislation, including $800,000 asked for by the Governor in a special message recommending the sale of the State Arsenal Building in New York City and the erection of another State arsenal in South Brooklyn. Last year's budget total was $133,149,407.*

Simultaneously with the introduction of the Appropriation bill it was announced that a direct tax of 2 mills would be levied to bring the revenues of the State to a level where the budget for the coming fiscal year will balance.

To Levy a Direct Tax.

Revenues in sight from indirect sources aggregate $106,909,671. The estimated surplus in the State Treasury at the end of the present fiscal year is given as $35,847,060. To provide for a sizable surplus of $25,000,000 or thereabout, to leave a safe margin for unforeseen emergencies that may arise during the coming fiscal year, it is proposed to raise $32,277,389 through direct taxation. A direct tax was levied by the last Legislature at the rate of 1.20.

Of the amount called for in the General Appropriation bill, $28,837,568 is required to meet the State payroll. Maintenance of the various State institutions and the purchase of supplies and payment of incidental expenses in the administrative departments will require $60,338,964. The sum of $3,411,598 is asked for to meet deficiencies in various State departments in last year's appropriations. New construction will be undertaken to the amount of $9,281,785, and refund of taxes will require $1,539,191, while the various sinking funds will take $11,536,005 for amortization purposes.

Other items of expenditures provided for in special appropriation bills are listed as follows:

Highway maintenance and repair, $8,000,000; State aid, towns, $2,580,000; State aid, counties, $2,358,190; rural post roads (State's share), $5,000,000; highway construction (improved roads), $3,000,000; veterans' camp road, $150,000; New York and New Jersey tunnel, $2,000,000; veterans' relief, $1,010,000; State Fair Coliseum, $500,000; Kings Park Hospital (war veterans), $1,500,000; tubercular cattle indemnities, $5,000,000; control of gypsy moth, $150,000; Labor Department deficiency, $150,000; Hudson Valley experiment farm, $16,800; Delaware River Commission, $10,000; total, $31,422,990. The Oswego Range Canal Terminal act, which is likely to become a law, will call for $1,307,000.

Expect Much From Corporation Tax.

Among the sources of indirect revenues the most productive will be the tax on corporations, which, it is estimated, will produce $38,935,000. Other indirect revenues in sight under present revenue laws are:

Court and stenographers' tax, $736,000; excise (liquor tax), $5,000; organization of corporations, $1,150,000; personal income tax, $16,500,000; inheritance tax, $16,000,000; stock transfer tax, $8,000,000; mortgage tax, $3,200,000; motor vehicle tax, $12,971,000; insurance premium tax, Insurance Department, $1,650,627; boxing exhibition tax, $182,000; motion picture license tax, $180,000; arrears tax sales, redemptions, &c., $45,000; other revenues and receipts, $7,443,043.

The appropriation made last year for payroll purposes for the final year of Governor Miller's administration was $26,591,892, so that this year's payroll item involves an increase of $2,255,616. There is an increase of $4,683,069 in the cost of maintenance of departments aside from salaries.

Governor Explains Increases.

Governor Smith, in an explanatory statement, ascribes $8,190,700 of the $16,000,000 increase over last year's budget total to items aggregating $6,462,248 "that should have been appropriated last year," and to statutory increases from which there could be no escape, to the State contribution toward teachers' salaries, contributions by the State to normal schools, contributions to academic colleges, non-resident quota, and the School for the Deaf and Dumb, ag-

Smith's Salary as Governor About Pays 1922 Income Tax

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—The $10,000 salary which Governor Smith will receive this year as Chief Executive will just about pay his Federal and State income taxes for last year.

"I had a fine time yesterday trying to figure out how I am going to pay my income tax last year on the good job I had then with the salary I receive as Governor," Mr. Smith told newspaper men this afternoon.

"But you are exempt this year, aren't you?" some one asked.

"Yes, I'm exempt from my present salary, if that's what you mean. My last year's salary is all gone and my present salary has got to go to pay the income tax on that," he replied, and added:

"Well, I suppose my recompense is that I live in a mansion."

Governor Smith was President of the Board of Directors of the United States Trucking Corporation last year and received a salary said to have been near the $30,000 mark.

ALBANY WETS LOSE FIGHT ON DRY LAW

PARTY LINES ARE BROKEN

Eight Republicans Support Repeal and Two Democrats Stand With the Drys.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Tuesday, March 13.—The absence of four Democrats from the Assembly and the failure of two up-State Democrats to take a stand with the majority of their party colleagues, led to the defeat just before 1 o'clock this morning of a motion by Assemblyman Cuvillier of New York to get from the Excise Committee his bill to repeal the Mullan-Gage Prohibition act. The vote was 70 in favor to 74 against.

Steinberg, Jesse, Kaufmann and Ullmann of New York; Ricca of Kings, Seelbach of Erie and Murphy and Griffith of Monroe, Republicans, voted with the Democrats, who presented practically a united front for the repeal bill, in favor of that measure. The only New York City Republican whose vote was cast with the drys was Assemblyman Clayton of Kings, author of the Motion Picture Censorship bill.

Kahler of Chemung and Livingston of Columbia, Democrats, voted with the large majority of Republicans against reporting the repeal bills. Gurnett of Schuyler, a Democrat, representing perhaps a drier district than any other member of the Assembly, voted to have the repeal bill taken from the Excise Committee.

Speaker Machold was recorded in the negative. There were six absentees—Donnelly, Fabulo and Reilly of Kings and Wilson of Albany, Democrats, and Hickey of Erie and Whitcomb of Broome, Republicans.

The debate at times was heated. There was a large crowd in the Assembly chamber, which listened to the speeches with close attention. Nearly all the spectators remained until the debate ended and the final vote had been announced.

For more than an hour Mr. Cuvillier pleaded with the Republicans to vote to discharge the committee. He asserted that the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law was not a question of politics, but something that should be done to save the good name of the greatest State in the Union.

"I challenge the Police Commissioner of New York City and every Sheriff in the State to produce statistics which will show that less crimes have been committed since prohibition went into effect," said Mr. Cuvillier. "They can't do it for the records in the Secretary of State's office show that crime has been steadily increasing, and I am convinced that prohibition is the cause."

Mr. Cuvillier declared the Mullan-Gage law was making criminals out of many former law-abiding citizens of the State.

"You can't get juries to convict, and your can't get Judges to sentence when there have been convictions for violating the Mullan-Gage law," he said.

Assemblyman Miller of New York charged that the Mullan-Gage law was passed at the direction of former Governor Miller in the hope of "getting something on Mayor Hylan. But they didn't get anything on Mayor Hylan, and today he is one of the greatest

FORTY-SIX KILLED IN STORM SWEEPING MID-WEST AND SOUTH

TRANSPORTATION IS HIT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12. — Forty-six deaths have resulted from the unprecedented March storm which swept the country Sunday night and early this morning, paralyzing wire communication, stalling transportation systems, wrecking buildings and causing a property damage running far into the millions. Two of the fatalities were in Chicago.

Incomplete figures, due to the crippled wire service, show the following dead and injured:

	Dead.	Injured.
Jackson, Tenn.	30	75
Logan, Ky.	3	..
Richmond, Ky.	3	2
Bowling Green, Ky.	2	1

Although the South suffered most, the blizzard spread itself over the whole territory lying between the Rocky Mountains on the west and the Appalachian range on the east. Some sections were pelted with a driving sleet, while others were subjected to a torrential downpour of rain, whipped by a gale reaching a velocity as high as 80 miles an hour.

The centre of the disturbance passed near Chicago to the southward, then made its way east, leaving a trail of wreckage in its wake. Two deaths were caused in this city, Luke J. Barnes was found half submerged in ice and snow in a gully near the Jefferson Park Hospital, and an unidentified man was discovered in a ditch on West Forty-second Street between Kostner and Kenneth Avenues.

Roofs were torn from buildings in all parts of the city, windows broken, basements flooded and many families driven to the street in panic when their homes were rocked by the wind. Trees in Lincoln Park were torn up by the roots and blown across streets, causing much delay in traffic. Broken trolley wires held up street car service and telephone communication was hampered by tangled lines.

The storm was moving across the Great Lakes today, according to Weather Bureau reports.

Cincinnati and District Stricken.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 12.—The record wind of the year, 48 miles an hour, swept Cincinnati and nearby cities today, leaving destruction in its wake. Covington felt the impact of the wind severely.

Leonard Blackburn and his wife and two children were rendered homeless when their house, located on Overlook Heights, east of the Licking Pike, Clifton, Ky., was blown to pieces.

A tin roof on a building at 525 and 527 Madison Avenue, Covington, was blown off. The wind carried the tons of tin high into the air across Madison Avenue and returned it to the same building, where it crashed down into a large plate glass window of the electric shop of the Union Light, Heat and Power Company at 525 Madison Avenue.

The wind blew a sign from a building at Eighth and Sycamore Streets in Cincinnati, and it struck Morris Marquis, a tailor, who happened to be passing. He was removed to the General Hospital.

The chimney of the Eighth Presbyterian Church, Montgomery Road, was blown down. It crashed through the church roof.

A number of autoists narrowly escaped injury when six electric light poles on Columbia Avenue were blown down at

Cat Paws a Gas Cock Open And Two Are Suffocated

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 12.—Mike, a pet maltese cat, prowling over the gas range in the kitchen at 42 Whitney Street, Roxbury, early today, pawed open a gas cock. As a result Mrs. Catherine McManus is dead and her husband John McManus, is dying.

A roomer in the McManus home smelled gas and notified the police. They found Mrs. McManus dead and the husband was taken to a hospital unconscious. Near the range lay Mike, a victim of his own act.

Medical Examiner Brockley said that the cat apparently brushed against the burner while on his way to inspect the contents of a stew pan on the range.

EXPOSED BY PHYSICIANS

Dr. Fishbein Says That Miss Lyons Is a Hysterical Feigner of Illness.

CHICAGO, March 12.—A small, flesh-colored hot-water bottle is the secret of a hoax by which Miss Evelyn Lyons of Escanaba, Mich., has been able to convince doctors for three weeks that she had a temperature from 114 to 118 degrees, although apparently in good health, it was said tonight by Dr. Morris Fishbein, associate editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, who told here of the investigation of the case which he made.

The young woman, who had once been a nurse, concealed the hot-water bottle in her bed, he said, and through pretended fits of coughing and hysteria, managed to place the thermometer bulb on the heated bottle long enough to drive the mercury to the desired point, where it remains in medical thermometers until shaken down.

Miss Lyons's hoax was exceedingly simple, he said. After contriving to fetch the hot water bottle with the thermometer bulb, she again put the bulb where the doctors had placed it to take her temperature, but when the reading was taken it showed the temperature of the water bottle.

When, for some reason, she was unable to touch the hot water bottle, Dr. Fishbein said, the patient either inverted the thermometer and shook it, which caused the mercury to go to the top, or else broke the tube in her excitement and then refused to have a reading made until she obtained a bottle.

Home Doctor Admits Error.

Dr. Harry J. Defnet, City Health Commissioner of Escanaba, who is Miss Lyons's attending physician, said at Escanaba today that he as well as other doctors there had been completely deceived by her last week. Dr. Defnet gave The Associated Press a signed statement that her temperature readings, made in every way known to the medical profession, were accurate. At that time Miss Lyons was presenting to the doctors an apparent temperature well above 114 degrees.

Dr. Fishbein said that the rapid pulse and other features in Miss Lyons's case were simply due to excitement and hysteria. He expressed the belief that her principal reason for feigning a freak fever was to get publicity and said that "fever malingerers" were not unusual.

In the course of Miss Lyons's illness she feigned unconsciousness several times and apparently was in a dying condition. The most recent "crisis" was last Saturday night when the doctors remained at her bedside throughout the night in an effort to relieve her.

According to Dr. Defnet, his suspicions were aroused on that occasion. The acting, he said, was too good, and he became convinced that no one could endure such agony as Miss Lyons professed to be suffering and remain alive.

Dr. Defnet was the first who made the announcement that the girl had a temperature of 114 and at the same time seemed to be in fair health. He invited any doctors who cared to do so to go to Escanaba and see for themselves. Dr. Fishbein accepted the invitation.

Watched Through Crack in Door.

Dr. Fishbein described the manner in which the hoax was discovered.

"While supposedly making one test of her temperature to fool her," he said, "we made another test to check and found the second to show normal temperature. Upon taking another test under her arm we again found a normal temperature.

"Then we placed a thermometer in her mouth and all left the room, one of us watching through a crack in the door. She removed the thermometer from her mouth, arched her back, stuck the thermometer under the bed sheets and then inserted it in her mouth again. When we looked it was at the top. We demanded the hot-water bottle and she declared she was insulted, but after some trouble she brought out a small bottle about the size of a man's closed fist which had been concealed in the bedding. With the exception of hysteria, there is nothing wrong with Miss Lyons.

"In investigating the history of her case, we found she was a frequent visitor at physicians' offices. She had been injured in an automobile accident, had three operations, had experience in nursing and was disappointed in an affair of the heart."

Miss Lyons Suffers a Relapse.

ESCANABA, Mich., March 12.—Following the declaration by Chicago specialists that Evelyn Lyons's 114-degree "fever" came from a tiny hot-water bottle, the girl, who emphatically denies the charges, late tonight suffered a relapse, which physicians fear may cause her death. Hysterically she tosses in her bed, crying:

"I am sick, I am sick, and nobody wants to believe me."

Dr. H. J. Defnet, who has been treating the girl for peritonitis, stated late tonight that her real temperature had reached 104, and that the excitement might cause her death soon.

CRAZED BY THIRST, PAIR ADRIFT 5 DAYS IN TINY BOAT, SAVED

SCHOONER TO THE RESCUE

TOBACCO THEIR ONE SOLACE

Always the silence, broken only by the creak of gear restless under the long sea swells. Swirling snow that isolated their little craft on the waste of waters. A faulty compass that left them blind. Food and fresh water gone. Five days of drifting. One man trying to hurl his companion over the side. Later the companion, cramped in a bunk, weakly babbling of suicide with iodine.

Such is the gist of an epic that might have belonged to some far sea, but was lived at the very gate of New York Harbor. It was related yesterday by Captain Bergen Smith Jr. and his comrade, Harry Matthews, two fishermen of Freeport, L. I., who put to sea a week ago last Sunday and were believed to have reached the "Port of Missing Men," until yesterday.

They were picked up sixty-five miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship by the ninety-foot schooner, Catherine M., bound in for New York from Nassau with fish. Weak and stuttering, they reached their homes dazed by their experience. The mind of each was almost as near exhaustion as his tortured body. Matthews, who was on his first deep-sea fishing venture, suffered most. Smith, a professional cod-catcher, stood close to six feet and his 180 pounds is largely work-built brawn. The years of his thirty-four years was in his favor. But Matthews is four years older, his frame is slender, and he never before had faced the gaff of rough seas, blinding snows and freezing blows.

So it was Captain Smith who told the story in the home of his sister, Mrs. Minnie E. Berhnois, 443 Mill Road, Freeport. Now and then his husky, quavering voice trailed off into dejected silence. His hands trembled, his lips were blistered from drinking salt water. Matthews, white-faced and shaky too, broke in occasionally to prompt his companion's memory.

Deny Liquor Charge.

Both earnestly denied reports that they had put off to visit the whisky fleet off the South Shore. When Captain Smith was told that several Freeport fishermen had reported seeing his craft lying alongside a liquor tramp, he explained that his boat looked exactly like any one of twenty other shore boats and must have been mistaken for some other vessel.

When Smith's motor boat, 26 feet long, left Freeport on Sunday afternoon, March 4, she had aboard forty gallons of gasoline, some raw potatoes, a gallon of fresh water, some stale bread and a pie.

"I'd mentioned around town the night before that I calculated to go codfishing," said Captain Smith, "and Harry Matthews, who said he'd never been out after cod, said he'd like to go along, and I agreed to take him. We got away all right and went down to a point about twenty miles south of Freeport and, as near as I can reckon it, about eight miles the other side of the Cholera Banks. We set out our lines, me showing Harry how to do it, and along about 2:30 in the afternoon I began to get a bit worried about the weather.

"So we took in the lines and started for home. We hadn't got very far when the weather broke. It was snow and about as thick as I've ever seen. It came down so bad we lost all idea of direction and I fetched out a compass that Captain George Verity had loaned me and started to steer by it.

They Drift Near Heedless Ships.

"George had told me that he guessed the compass sometimes didn't always work right and I guess he was right, because after a bit when the storm lulled I couldn't make out anything ahead but water. I had only part of the forty gallons of gasoline left and I thought we might need it more later on, so I shut off the engine and we started to drift. Fact is, we didn't start up the engine again until Friday. I wanting to hold it in case we had a chance to chase a boat and get aboard her.

"We drifted along Sunday night and Monday, eating just as little as we

BRUSSELS, March 12.—Definition of the conditions of withdrawal from the Ruhr was ruled out of order at the beginning of the meeting of the French and Belgian Premiers today, when M. Poincaré in his opening speech declared that it was not for the two Allies even to mention the word negotiation. They had stated their terms long ago to Germany, and it was for Germany to accept. Even to discuss the outcome would be to encourage Germany in the belief that Franco-Belgian determination was failing, and would give an entirely wrong impression.

Both, he said, were united in the resolve not to evacuate the Ruhr and the nearly occupied territories on the right bank of the Rhine until Germany fulfilled her treaty obligation in a way which was far more assured than by her simple promise. The time had not come for negotiations. It could only come when Germany was ready with definite guarantees with which to back her word that she would pay, and it would be for the Allies then to consider whether or not these guarantees were sufficient. They would not take the first step.

Requisitions of Coal After March 15.

The direct aim of the conference was to speed up matters in the Ruhr and especially to consider methods to be taken to get better deliveries of coal than have been so far obtained.

It is an open secret that after March 15, by which date the mine owners must pay the coal tax to the French, the latter are prepared in case of failure to proceed with requisitioning coal at the pitheads. So far they have taken only the coal accumulated on the railroads except for one small experimental attempt at requisitioning at the mine, which led to the conclusion that if further attempts were to be made they must be done with a strong force both of labor and arms.

The attitude of the miners who peacefully accepted occupation is likely to change somewhat if an attempt is made to take coal from the mines, and the program of requisition has had to be worked out carefully and thoroughly. It was for that reason that General De Goutte as well as mining experts were present at today's meeing.

The final paragraphs of the official communique which outline the decisions taken read:

"Finally the two Governments once more find themselves in accord not to subordinate to simple promises by Germany the evacuation of the Ruhr and territories newly occupied on the right bank of the Rhine, but to carry through the occupation until full execution has been made by Germany of reparations obligations.

"The two Governments are equally resolved not to leave these territories without having obtained from the Government of the Reich full cancellation of all penalties imposed on German nationals who may have collaborated with the allied authorities."

Gathering of France-Belgian Chiefs.

There was a full session of this miniature survivor of the old Interallied Council. France was represented by three Ministers, Poincaré, Maginot and Le Trocquer; her Ambassador, M. Herbette; General Degoutte, High Commissioner Tirard M. Fitzelle della Rocca, political director at the Quay d'Orsay, and by several members of the Engineering Mission in the Ruhr.

Belgium had four Ministers, two Gen-

Thyssen Is Said to Want Understanding With France

LONDON, March 12.—The Düsseldorf correspondent of The Daily Mail says that the desire of the Ruhr iron and coal magnates to negotiate with the French was voiced with significant emphasis today by Fritz Thyssen in the course of an interview.

"I understand," says the correspondent, "that Herr Thyssen approached the Government several weeks ago with a proposal for negotiations based on a foreign loan, a third of which would be handed over to France. Chancellor Cuno refused to consider it.

"Herr Thyssen still believes that a foreign loan would be the most satisfactory method of meeting the French demands. Admitting that Germany must pay, he suggested the appointment of a commission to decide the total liabilities and to arrange for the flotation of a loan, either in Great Britain or America, with the German export trade as a guarantee.

LABOR ASSAILS ARRESTS

LONDON, March 12.—The British Government's arrest and deportation of 110 Irish republicans in England and Scotland yesterday was sustained 260 to 152 in the House of Commons tonight, following an explanation of the Government's motives and authority by W. C. Bridgeman, Minister of Home Affairs. Vigorous protest against the arrests and deportations was made by the Labor Party.

Ramsay Macdonald, leader of the Opposition, started the attack by asking Mr. Bridgeman to state the reasons for the action taken and the authority under which he acted.

"Certain arrests," said Mr. Bridgeman, "were carried out during the week-end in pursuance of orders made by me and by the Secretary for Scotland, respectively, directing that a number of persons should be interned under Regulation 14-B of the Restoration of Order in Ireland regulations.

"There has lately been a progressive increase in Irish republican activity here. We are in possession of material clearly indicating the existence of a quasi-military organization controlled by a person calling himself the officer commanding in Britain, and of the intention on the part of that organization primarily to do everything in their power in co-operating with the irregulars in Ireland to overthrow the Free State Government, and also in certain contingencies to resort to acts of violence in this country in pursuance of their unlawful aims.

Consulted the Free State.

"It was clearly the duty of his Majesty's Government to take action, being in possession of such information. We have for some time past been in consultation with the Free State Government as to the best method of dealing with the situation. The arrests have been made at the request of that Government. All persons are of Irish origin and are either members of the organization referred to or have supported it directly or indirectly.

"They will be held in custody by the Free State Government in their own country.

"This seemed on the whole, after full consideration, the simplest and most effective method of dealing with these persons who, claiming to be Irish, have so grossly abused the hospitality of this country.

"The persons arrested have all been informed that they may, if they wish, make representations to an advisory committee which will be presided over by some one who holds, or has held, high judicial office."

Reads Letters of Commanders.

Mr. Bridgeman read several seized letters to indicate the activities of the Irish Republicans in Britain. One, dated Jan. 26 and addressed to "The Officer Commanding in Britain," from the Irish Republican Army General Headquarters in Dublin, said:

"I have been informed that Stokes guns can be purchased in England. I dare say you have done your utmost as to the possibility of securing small artillery. I realize that one of these with sufficient shells would finish the war here very quickly, so you should strain every nerve on this possibility."

Another letter was signed by "the Brigadier Officer commanding in Scotland," and was addressed to the Quartermaster General of the Irish Republican Army in Dublin. A letter to the "officer commanding in Britain" read

"We are considering carrying out active hostilities in England. Owing to the advancing development of the situation here the activities would mean a general destructive policy. Let me have your views on the possibilities.

DUESSELDORF, March 12.—Seven Germans are dead and a number wounded as the result of a serious incident which followed the murder Saturday night at Buer of Lieutenant Colin of the Chasseurs and M. Joly, director of the Buer railroad station.

Yesterday morning the French police learned that a former member of the German Green Security Police had boasted several days ago that he planned to kill one or more Frenchmen. From those who had heard the boast the French detectives obtained a description of the man as well as his address. About 11 o'clock last night they went to his house to search for him, while other detectives sought out his alleged accomplice.

At the door of the house given as the address of the would-be murderer his wife told detectives he was absent. They persisted, however, in searching the house and found the man they sought hidden behind clothes in a close, the key of which was lacking. Without resistance he went with the detectives to a neighboring guardhouse, where he was soon joined by the German suspected of being his accomplice.

Fleeing Prisoners Shot Down.

Soldiers were sent for to take the two men to the military prison. A considerable crowd had gathered and as the prisoners reached the doorway of the guardhouse they leaped toward the street in an effort to lose themselves in the crowd. Two gendarmes drew revolvers, held ready in their coat pockets, and wounded mortally the fugitives.

Seeing that the soldiers were few in number, half a dozen detectives in the crowd pressed forward. The squad of pollus issued from the guardhouse and tried to hold back the mob. According to French officers, the soldiers were surrounded and all but swept off their feet. Believing his men in danger, the Sergeant in command gave orders to fire over the heads of the crowd and warned them to get back. The French officers say that, when the Germans continued to press menacingly about them, the soldiers shot at them. Five Germans fell dead, and the crowd took to flight. According to Germans, thirteen were wounded.

Reports at French headquarters say three French soldiers were attacked by armed Germans at Dortmund last night, one of them being wounded in the leg. In what is described as legitimate defense they fired on the Germans and went their way. From German sources in Dortmund it is said one German was killed and two wounded.

Whole District Under Martial Law.

RECKLINGHAUSEN, March 12 (Associated Press).—Eight Germans are dead as the result of clashes with French troops in the Recklinghausen district last night. One French soldier and three Germans were wounded in a riot at Dortmund.

A state of siege has been declared in the entire Recklinghausen district in consequence of these overnight disturbances.

Additional troops have been sent to preserve order at Buer where a French army officer and a French civilian official were killed Saturday night and where excitement has since been running high, resulting in renewed shootings. Of the Germans who met death two were shot down while trying to escape from gendarmes in the Buer disturbances. Five others were killed and several wounded an hour later when a crowd attacked a French guard post. The eighth German was killed at Dortmund when a crowd attacked a French detachment.

The renewed trouble at Buer broke out late last night when a small detachment of French gendarmes went to the home of a German suspected of being implicated in the assassination of the French officials. Two Germans who were found there were arrested. They were being taken to a guard post when, according to the French reports, they tried to escape and were shot.

This created an uproar in the town and within an hour the Germans began pouring into the streets despite the commanding general's order prohibiting civilians from being out after 7 o'clock in the evening.

A crowd assembled in the town square and soon afterward several hundred Germans, mostly men, attempted to storm a French guard post where four or eight soldiers were stationed.

Police Check Panic in One of 4 Transit Jams; Women Faint, Men Fight at Canal St. Station

Thousands of people were delayed by traffic tie-ups yesterday onthe B. R. T. Broadway elevated, the B. R. T. Lexington Avenue elevated, the Interborough east side subway and the Interborough Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated.

The worst trouble occurred during a fog on the B. R. T. Broadway line. A feeder cable in a tower near Eastern Parkway, supplying power for the signal system on this line, burned out at 5:40 P. M., probably because of a short circuit due to weather conditions. The signal system useless, trains were run at a small pace for twenty minutes, when the service was stopped altogether from 6 to 6:30.

Crowds overflowed every station along the line, especially the stations at the Manhattan end. Police reserves had to be called out at every station to calm the panicky crowds and get them out of the stations in an orderly manner. At Canal Street women were screaming and fainting, and men were punching and kicking each other when the reserves arrived. Herded up on the street, the crowds then blocked the surface car lines on Canal Street and the heavy automobile traffic on Lafayette Street for several minutes.

The B. R. T. officials advised the crowds at Chambers Street to take the elevated trains going over the Brooklyn Bridge. This caused so much congestion on the Brooklyn Bridge platform that the Lexington Avenue elevated was shut down for five minutes.

On the Interborough east side subway northbound traffic was blocked between Brooklyn Bridge and Fourteenth Street from 5:40 to 5:45 o'clock because of the loss of a shoe by a Lexington Avenue train at Fourteenth Street. There was a delay from 5:16 to 5:26 at the Bowling Green station for Brooklyn-bound trains when an express "went dead" and interfered with the signal system in the East River tube.

Northbound traffic on the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated lines was delayed fifteen minutes as the result of motor trouble on a train between Eighty-first and Eighty-sixth Streets. Eleven trains were stalled.

Swedish King, 64, Enters Tennis Tournament, Ready to Meet All Comers in Matches at Nice

NICE, March 12 (Associated Press)—King Gustave of Sweden has sent in his entry to the Nice Lawn Tennis Club as a participant in the Southern France open tennis championship. This is the first time in the history of tennis that a reigning monarch will take an active part in the championship play of a tennis tournament.

Incidentally, the identity of the mysterious "Mr. G." which has been puzzling the tennis fans along the Riviera for the last twenty-four hours, is revealed by the announcement that King Gustave is to compete.

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock the King, paired with Mr. Hunter of England, will meet Mr. Twiat and Colonal Dunkerley of England in the first round of the men's doubles. The program for this event reads: "Mr. G." and Mr. Hunter versus Mr. Twiat and Colonel Dunkerley." The Swedish Monarch is 64 years old.

King Gustave was up bright and early this morning and appeared at the tennis club at 11 o'clock and informed "Papa" Lenglen, father of Suzanne, who is Secretary of the club, that he would be on hand tomorrow to fulfill his engagement.

"Does Your Majesty intend to play in an open tournament?" inquired M. Lenglen with a show of astonishment.

"Open or handicap, anywhere you desire to place me," responded Gustave.

"What do you think of the situation, Your Majesty?" the correspondent inquired.

"I think Gordon Lowe should win the men's singles, and that Mlle. Lenglen is certain to carry off the honors in the women's singles," replied Mr. G.

Mr. G., speaking not as the King of Sweden, expressed disappointment that his friend, the Earl of Balfour, with whom he has been used to playing tennis on the Riviera the last two Winters, should be absent at the present time.

hage, the resorts state, becoming more and more excited, and finally attacking the house in which the guard was quartered. On being attacked the soldiers fired, killing five of the Germans and wounding several others.

Additional troops were quickly ordered out and all civilians were ordered to return to their homes, but it was long after midnight before order was completely restored.

Germans Plan Big Funeral.

The Germans are planning to bury all seven victims at one great funeral some day this week.

Dortmund, where the eighth German was killed during the attack by the crewed on the French troops, is without police protection. The Berlin Government, according to the French authorities, have positively prohibited the municipality from organizing a "Blue" police force to replace the expelled Security police. As a consequence many of the citizens are arming themselves and patrolling the streets at night to protect their homes and property.

Information from various sources in the Ruhr indicates increased activity against the French and the Belgians, which the French attribute largely to Chancellor Cuno's speech in the Reichstag last week. Whether this is an organized movement or merely the result of individual attempts to hinder or injure the occupying forces seems uncertain. The German Nationalists have been very active lately with propaganda and otherwise, and the secret order of the Security Police is thought to have some relation to this renewed activity.

Near Heisingen-the-Ruhr, a time bomb was exploded last night near the Belgian soldiers' barracks. No one was injured. A large amount of dynamite was found early today near a bridge across the river at Altendorf. There was enough dynamite to blow up several bridges.

In the region of Kettwig several rails were removed from the roadbed over night, but the sabotage was discovered before any trains came that way.

Charge French Killed Frenchmen.

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press).—The German Government, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin, has issued an official statement declaring that the assassins of the French officer and civilian slain in Buer today were not Germans but French soldiers, and not Germans as alleged by the occupational authorities.

BERLIN, March 12 (Associated Press).—A dispatch received here from Dortmund reports that an altercation between civilians and French soldiers in a Dortmund restaurant had its climax in the French firing on the Germans, one of whom, a civilian, was killed and six others wounded.

The dispatch adds that General Caron, commanding the French Thirty-second Army Corps, has informed the municipal authorities at Buer that if any more Frenchmen are murdered in Buer the Burgomaster of the town, who is now a hostage in the hands of the French, will be immediately shot.

COLORED DEPUTIES PAINED.

PARIS, March 12 (Associated Press).—Deputies Diagne of Senegal and Boisneuf of Gaudeloupe have written Premier Poincaré, thanking him for the sentiments expressed in his letter of last Thursday to Gratier Candace, another colored member of the Chamber from the Island of Guadeloupe, concerning the withdrawal of colored soldiers from the Ruhr, but expressing pain that France could have been influenced by calumnious propaganda to an extent sufficient to bring about the withdrawal of the black men.

"We are absolutely indifferent," says the letter, "to the calumnies peddled by the Germans against our fellow-citizens, as well as to the hypocritical and ill-natured complaints from Germans recruited among certain neutrals.

"On the other hand, we are deeply pained at the thought that our Government could allow itself to be influenced by these calumnies and seem to give them a semblance of justification by an attitude which at the same time is irreconcilable with proper regard for our national independence and incompatible with the dignity of the constituents we represent."

M. Poincaré, in his letter to Deputy Candace, said it was easy to understand the reason for the odious campaign of the German Government against French black troops, but that France would never cease to claim the right to incorporate black men, in peace time as in war, in the French divisions.

He added that if the Government preferred not to employ black troops in the Ruhr at the present time it was because it was deemed wiser "not to furnish any pretext for propaganda, which unfortunately has penetrated even among friendly peoples."

FRENCH BLAME BERLIN FOR RUHR MURDERS

Public Opinion Now Inflamed—More Forces Will Be Sent to Occupied Area.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 12.—As a result of the outbreaks in the Ruhr the French Government, it is understood, has decided to increase the effectives in occupied Germany. According to one report contingents numbering 15,000 men have already received orders to entrain for the Ruhr. These reinforcements, it is believed, are being sent as a precaution and with no idea of extending the occupation.

The murder of two Frenchmen Saturday night at Buer, followed by the killing of seven Germans by French troops, constitutes an incident which will do much harm to the working out of a settlement between France and Germany. Certainly Germany can gain nothing by it, and the result in France is to confirm public opinion, which will get quick reaction in the Chamber and in a manner to make much more difficult the negotiations of Premier Poincaré.

In Paris the Ruhr murders are called the direct result of the encouragements received in the Ruhr from Berlin. They give powerful ammunition to the French faction which wishes more severe measures against the Germans and lead to declarations like that in the Liberté this afternoon:

"The reparations business does not depend on any skillful financial formula or diplomatic decision. It is more complicated than that. It is a question of a great settlement between two peoples of accounts which go back not only to 1914, but much further."

At first glance it would appear to be the height of folly for the Germans to expect to get the French out of the Ruhr by isolated murders. But back of the plan the French believe there is a design by Berlin to provoke many such incidents, growing in number and seriousness, so as to cause a situation which would bring outside nations to attempt that mediation for which Germany has hoped in vain.

The shedding of blood in connection with the Ruhr occupation prompts Frenchmen to recall the acts of the Germans when they occupied Belgium and France, and of course that sort of argument always shows the French have a large margin to go to equal the Germans if they undertook such a program.

All of which proves to French satisfaction that the Germans have no just complaint coming if the French become much more severe than they have so far been in the course of their well ordered military occupation of the Ruhr.

The Temps tonight publishes a long series of German orders during the occupation of France in which heavy penalties were laid down for any workmen who refused to work at the orders of the German military authorities, and the question the Temps leads up to is what would have happened if the French during the German occupation had behaved as the Germans under French occupation are doing. It recalls the shooting by Germans of 700 civilians at Dinant on an August afternoon in 1914, because some unknown person shot at German soldiers.

There is such a mass of this German-made material with which the skillful nationalist writers can fire French determination that is very easy to question the wisdom of any German Government's program—if it exists—of encouraging acts of violence against the French in the Ruhr. Germany, the French say, cannot win her game by running up any list of German Ruhr victims, and she is likely to lose a good deal.

GETS ALLIED PLAN TO PAY RHINE BILL

Hughes Is Studying the Proposal as Forwarded to Him by Wadsworth.

SHIPS AS PART PAYMENT

Paris Suggestion That the Value of German Ships Here Be Computed Is Frowned Upon.

WASHINGTON, March 12 (Associated Press).—State Department officials began today an analysis of the allied plan to reimburse the United States Government for expenditures it made in maintaining the American Army of Occupation in Germany, amounting to about $255,000,000. The plan was received in usable form from Eliot Wadsworth, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, now in Paris negotiating with the allied delegates.

Beyond the brief statement that the proposal would receive "most careful consideration" and would be acknowledged at an early date by appropriate instructions cabled to Mr. Wadsworth, comment was withheld by the State Department officials. It was regarded as uncertain, however, whether the acknowledgment would reach Paris in time for the meeting of the conferees there on Wednesday.

The suggestion contained in Paris reports that the United States reduce its claims by the amount received from the sale and retention of German ships seized in the course of the war was regarded in some quarters as introducing a new complication which might make necessary prolonged discussion before the total could be arrived at and deducted from the $255,000,000 claimed. Shipping Board experts said it would require a board of appraisers several months to estimate the value in dollars and cents of German ships on hand and sold. They pointed out that the craft seized, ninety in number, had an approximate deadweight tonnage of 650,000 and were calculated at the present time to be worth about $30 a ton. Their value during the war, however, ran as high as $200 a ton.

In the event that the proposal for such a reduction should be found acceptable—and there was no intimation from Administration officials of such a possibility—the first step of the appraisers would be to agree upon a time on which to base the valuation. On a war-time basis it might be $150,000,000, while on the present scale it would aggregate only about $19,500,000.

It was recalled that Secretary Hughes formally advised the British, French, Belgian, Italian and Japanese Governments last March that the United States expected full payment for the army of occupation "upon an equal footing with them." Administration spokesmen have reiterated this statement recently in defining their attitude and the right of this Government to be paid by the Allies out of the money and payments in kind which Germany has made to them.

CAPT. VON MUELLER DIES IN GERMANY

He Commanded the Raider Emden and Early in War Played Havoc With Shipping in the Orient.

BRAUNSCHWEIG, Germany, March 12 (Associated Press).—Captain Karl von Mueller, war-time commander of the German cruiser Emden, whose exploits contributed one of the most remarkable chapters in the history of the war died yesterday at the age of fifty years.

The cruise of the raider Emden, which ended in her destruction by the Australian cruiser Sydney in November, 1914, has been termed one of the brightest spots in the record of the German navy during the World War.

Under Captain von Mueller she began her operations only a few days after the outbreak of hostilities, and in three months of roaming the Indian Ocean she destroyed British shipping variously valued at from $5,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Captain von Mueller's most daring feat was at Penang, on the Malacca Straits. Rigging up a fourth dummy smoke stack and flying the Japanese flag he steamed his vessel boldly into the harbor under the British guns and launched torpedoes which sank a Russian cruiser and French destroyer. He then manoeuvred his speedy craft so skillfully that he escaped unscathed.

All his operations were marked by strict observance of the rules of legalized warfare, and, while news of the destruction of his vessel and his own capture at the Cocos Islands was celebrated with enthusiasm in England, the newspapers even in that period of war stress, paid tribute to his gallantry. One referred to him as "the gallant commander who handled his ship with the skill of an accomplished sea officer and courtesy of a chivalrous gentleman." Another pointed out that he had destroyed more than 74,000 tons of shipping without the loss of a single life.

ASK HARDING TO CALL NEW WORLD PARLEY

Union Theological Seminary Men Attack the Administration's Foreign Policy.

The Administration's foreign policy is an evasion of moral responsibility, students and faculty of Union Theological Seminary declared yesterday when they forwarded a protest to President Harding in which they asked that America take the lead in a world economic conference to reconstruct Europe. Seventy-eight students and thirteen members of the faculty signed the statement, which criticised the French occupation of the Ruhr, but found it the inevitable outcome of wrong international methods. The message to President Harding follows:

The Hon. Warren G. Harding, the White House, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

We, the undersigned faculty and students of the Union Theological Seminary, convinced that the international crisis is becoming increasingly alarming and desperate, and constitutes a problem to which every earnest Christian must give most serious consideration, and further convinced that the time has come when the Christian Church must declare its conviction regarding the moral issues involved both in the existing situation and in the prevailing methods of international action which lie behind it, desire to state our convictions as follows:

We deplore the seizure of the Ruhr, believing that, whatever may be the technical legality of it under the Treaty of Versailles, French policy is morally unjustifiable as well as politically unsound, and can result only in increasing the international tension regarding the achievement of a lasting peace in Europe.

But we further believe that the indefensible character of the French policy should not be allowed to blind our eyes to the fact that this policy is in itself only an inevitable result of fundamentally wrong methods of dealing with international problems, and we are convinced that there can be no assurance of a world peace until these methods are changed. In particular, we absolutely disbelieve in the ultimate efficacy of war as a method of international arbitrament.

We believe it is the moral duty of the United States to share fully in the task of reconstructing Europe and rehabilitating international peace, and that the policy of the United States since the armistice has been and is now an evasion of our full moral responsibility.

Finally, it is our conviction that the present crisis constitutes an impelling call to the people of the United States for national repentance for our part in allowing the crisis to come to pass, particularly for our denial of responsibility for the recovery at Europe since the close of the war, and we believe that the American Government should move at once to rectify our past deficiencies by committing American resources, political, economic and moral, to the task of reconstructing Europe. To that end we urge as an immediate step that the American Government take the lead in an attempt to convene a world economic conference.

SCHEIDEMANN URGES RALLY FOR REPUBLIC

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 12.—"Democrats rally to the standard! The republic is in greater danger than ever before," is the clarion call sounded by the Socialist ex-Chancellor, Philipp Scheidemann, for the third anniversary of the Kapp counter-revolution tomorrow.

"Just as on the eve of the Kapp Putsch, one is today deceiving one's self about the patent facts and dangers," he continues. "It is all wrong to preserve silence about these things, as if they did not exist, merely so as not to attract attention abroad to them. With this ostrich-like policy one merely helps reaction to prepare war against the republic. At the same time, what is even worse, we confirm Poincaré's military burglars on the Rhine and in the Ruhr in the belief that they have invaded a land whose whole mentality is represented by Ludendorff and Hitler, a country against which France must remain armed to the teeth.

"The whole German people, the Social Democratic masses in the first line, must unite in resistance against the French. But it is madness to imagine that the slightest thing can be accomplished with guns and hand grenades against the French, copiously equipped with tanks, mines, the heaviest artillery and airplanes.

"It is high time not only to muzzle but to handcuff our Bolsheviki of the Right. It is necessary in the speediest possible time to create a Democratic bloc for the defense of the republic. A serious attempt against the republic would be the beginning of a bloody civil war in which the unity of the Reich would inevitably be lost."

PROFITEERS FLAUNT LUXURY IN MOSCOW

Famous Hermitage Restaurant the Rendezvous of Russia's Newly Rich.

FINE WINES AND RICH FOOD

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, March 11.—In the dining hall of the famous Hermitage restaurant, where twelve months ago the American Relief Administration distributed a bare living ration to hungry children, overfed men and overdressed women now sup luxuriously with fine wines, a host of stiff-shirted waiters and an elaborate cabaret to distract them, from midnight until 4 A. M. The Hermitage, which was a haven of charity, even life itself, has become the paradise of the "nepmen," as profiteers under the new economic policy are called in Russia. The change is the measure of Russia's progress—if progress it be—during the past year.

Imagine yourself sitting in a huge, oblong room whose walls are dazzlingly white with stucco and plaster scroll work. Four immense electric chandeliers blaze so brightly that it hurts you to look at them. A performance for the benefit of one of the leading artists of the cabaret will soon begin on the stage before you. The tables, booked beforehand at $5 each, are all occupied, and the orchestra hardly drowns the clatter of gluttony as yet, for it is barely midnight. There is little conversation. The nepmen and their women friends make a business of eating as though they wished to make up for the hungry years so lately past.

What a queer, motley crowd they are! All have something greedy about them, not only as they wolf their food but in their faces at all times. You think it is imagination, but it is not. As you look around there is hardly a face thin or fat, but mostly fat—that is free from the lineaments of greed. And there is greed in their stumpy, grasping hands. Here and there a foreigner in a dinner coat is conspicuous among business suits that are the general wear. He, too, looks greedy, for the majority of foreigners in Moscow today are small-fry concession hunters, jackals of big business, "good mixers" willing to risk other people's money and to try to buy a Russian official with a good dinner or a plain bribe.

When you look about something strikes you as unusual and different. You wonder why, and then you realise that never before in a restaurant so pretentious and so expensive were the tables so crowded, the lighting so blatant, the vivacity so unblushing. This is a real profiteers' paradise, with plenty to eat, plenty to drink, bright white lights and half-naked girls capering on the stage.

Yesterday they introduced a new attraction, a playful imitation of Montmartre for increasing profits by inducing guests to pay heavily for colored ribbons to throw from one table to another. Here in the Hermitage the game quickly caught on, which is a misnomer, for only one to five, and for the most part the nepmen are too newly rich and too cautious to permit themselves the crowning luxury of courtesans. The shadow of the Cheka still haunts their lives, and in the past three months the Government's campaign against corruption has snatched hundreds from the joys of the Hermitage to cold, damp, hungry prisons.

But as the night advances alcohol throws a golden haze over the scene. The lights grow less crude, the girls on the stage more graceful and alluring. A buzz of conversation arises. The guests drink coffee and wine—the wine, colored vodka poured from bottles loudly labeled "port," for spirits are forbidden in Moscow—and paper ribbons begin to fly from table to table and hang brilliant festoons from the glittering chandeliers.

Suddenly on the stage there is a high-class number—a choir singing Ukrainian folk songs in admirable close harmony or dancing peasant dances with fiery élan and in unexaggerated costumes. It is the finale, and the patrons are leaving the place. One of them is grumbling loudly over a bill—$100 for two or three persons is steep for Moscow—but the majority are well satisfied. If the Cheka catches them tomorrow, well—nitchevo, tonight they have feasted with mouths and eyes.

PREMIERS IN AGREEMENT

erals and the Rhineland High Commissioner also at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and numerous technical experts in attendance.

No time was wasted by Premiers Poincaré and Theunis, who met at 1:20 P. M. at the station and began the conference at 2 o'clock. It lasted four hours. As he came from the conference hall, M. Poincaré declared that he would not say a word and that all members of the conference had been sworn to secrecy.

The reason for this is obvious in the necessity not to give the Germans an indication either of the date or the method which will be used for requisitioning coal. When the move is made it will be in the nature of a surprise, though it is anticipated that a formal summons will be given to each mine owner to deliver coal and pay the tax before requisitioning is begun and the miners will be invited to help.

Three other important questions discussed by the conference were, first, the settlement of the outstanding questions relative to the French and Belgian shares in control of the Rhineland and railroads; second, measures of repression to be used and punishments to be inflicted in case of new attacks being made similar to that at Buer against French troops; third, arrangement of some means whereby foreign purchasers can obtain delivery of goods ordered from Germany before the imposition of the licensing system and the 10 per cent. tax.

The first of these questions is a simple one of accounting and of the proportion in which France and Belgium are to share profits or loss on working the Rhineland railroads. As the probability is much more that there will be a loss than a profit, the matter is fairly easily settled by acceptance by France of the main part of the burden.

Severe Penalties in the Ruhr.

Just before the conference rose and discussed the second matter, the punishment of attempts against French troops, news was received of the quick punishment which had overtaken the supposed murderers of Lieutenant Colin and M. Joly and of the subsequent shooting into a crowd. For the future it is understood a definite and very severe schedule of penalties was agreed on which will be announced by General Degoutte on his return to Düsseldorf.

The third matter of delivery of goods ordered before the occupation was specially taken into consideration in response to representations from British traders in the Cologne district and in the Ruhr. A large number of these are making daily visits to French headquarters representing their difficulties. In one case where an order for £400,000 worth of machinery had been partly fulfilled delivery of the last instalment couldn't be obtained because German exporters refused to pay the additional 10 per cent. duty imposed by the French. In another case, where it is believed something like £2,000,000 is involved, the British Government was itself directly implicated. By today's decision it will now be possible for those firms which can show proof that they ordered goods prior to the date of occupation to obtain delivery without paying the full 10 per cent tax. All that will be demanded will be a kind of stamp duty which will satisfy the technical legalities, if such there are.

While maintaining their refusal to disclose their decisions, both Premiers Poincaré and Theunis declared themselves satisfied with the conference.

"We have decided how we are going to get coal," one member of the conference said, "and we are going to get it."

Withdrawal When Germany Pays.

BRUSSELS, March 12 (Associated Press).—Evacuation of German territory in the Ruhr recently occupied will be a gradual operation, carried out only upon Germany fulfilling her reparation obligations, it was declared in the communiqué issued this evening after the first meeting of the Franco-Belgian Premiers' conference here on occupational measures.

The portion of the communiqué carrying this announcement read:

"The two Governments (the French and Belgian) are again in common accord not to accept simple promises from Germany concerning the evacuation of the Ruhr and the territories recently occupied on the right bank of the Rhine, but such evacuation will be carried out gradually following the execution by Germany of her reparations obligations.

By this announcement the French and Belgians believe they have dealt a big blow to German propaganda, entirely contraverting the German statement that they were actuated purely by political motives in occupying the district.

It was noted in some quarters that no mention was made of the Rhineland in the statement.

As regards the evacuation, it is pointed out that the same principle is applied as when the Germans evacuated French territory after the Franco-Prussian war, the troop withdrawal being carried out progressively as the French paid the indemnity.

At the present time there are being sent into the Ruhr several thousand foreign workmen for use in case Germans cannot be found to perform the task of loading coal. More than 8,000 of these workmen are said to have arrived in the district already, among them Poles and Italians.

Italian workmen destined for the Ruhr were held up in Bavaria last week until a protest was made to Berlin by the Italian Government, and it was stated at today's meeting that the reason for this obstruction was because the German Government realized that when the Ruhr begins to produce coal in quantities the German policy will have met defeat.

The conference was concluded at 6:35 P. M., complete accord having been reached, it was stated. M. Poincaré immediately afterward visited King Albert.

The French Premier will attend a dinner tonight given in his honor by Premier Theunis, and will leave for Paris at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Previous to the conference, especially on Friday and Saturday, King Albert held long conferences with Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar. Thus, it is assumed, he was in perfect accord with the plans submitted by his Ministers and discussed today.

BIG LOCAL OPTION PLEA SENT TO REICHSTAG

BERLIN, March 12 (Associated Press).—A move to dispose of the prohibition question in Germany by means of local option is being urged upon the Reichstag. A petition to this end, signed by 460,000 qualified electors, has been submitted to that body by Dr. O. E. Melle, President of the Methodist Theological Seminary at Frankfort-on-Main.

Dr. Melle walked in on the President of the Reichstag, Paul Loebe, with a trunkful of signatures gathered in 200 German cities and towns from people favoring local option. Piling about the Reichstag chief forty-six volumes, each containing 10,000 signatures, Dr. Melle said that this was merely the result of one week's work and that it would be only a question of time to enlist millions of others.

In addition to his position as head of the seminary, Dr. Melle is Chairman of the Methodist Bishops' Committee on Temperance and Public Welfare in Germany. The dry movement which he has started represents the first well-organized practical attempt to put Germany in the prohibition column.

When it was learned that the Reichstag would soon act upon a bill regarding the licensing of bars and public houses, Dr. Melle drafted his proposal that provision for local option be incorporated in the bill. His plan provides for a vote on the question in any locality upon the formal request of one-tenth of the voters of the district, such referendum not to take place oftener than once in three years.

With this plan under his arm, drafted in the form of a petition, he assembled twelve of his seminary students and started them out to get signatures.

An open communication to the Government Ministers of Reichstag Deputies which accompanies the petition says that no other proceeding in the Reichstag would awaken greater interest in countries like America. The action taken, it adds, might be the means of gaining Germany a hearing and arousing sympathy for the enormous gravity of her situation.

Dr. Melle, who will also petition the Diets of the Federated States, says that the movement is gaining conspicuous support among all political parties.

YALE FRESHMEN RIOT OVER COMMONS FARE

NEW HAVEN, March 12.—Yale freshmen tonight abandoned their letter-writing campaign against compulsory eating at the Commons and staged a half-hour demonstration in their dining hall, in which bread was hurled about. Much crockery was smashed and one table was dumped unceremoniously into a corner. About 500 members of the class added their voices to the uproar. Authorities at the Commons took no action, but waitted until the demonstration came to an end.

In the course of the riot a sign was hoisted on which a skull and bones had been drawn, while underneath was written: "This man ate at Commons."

Yale freshmen have been protesting for some time against the rule put in force last year compelling them to eat at the University dining hall. Student publications have been printing many letters from freshmen complaining of the quality of the food served and protesting against what is regarded as paternalism on the part of the college authorities. Tonight's demonstration is believed to have been planned as a more vigorous protest than the letters have proved to be, in the opinion of the freshmen.

Professor R. P. Angier, Dean of the freshmen, will conduct an investigation. He refused to comment on the disorders.

70 STOREKEEPERS IN COURT

52 Draw Suspended Sentences for Keeping Open on Sunday.

Thirty-eight storekeepers charged with violating the Sunday closing law pleaded guilty before Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman in the Essex Market Court yesterday. They were freed on suspended sentences. They said there stores had been closed all day Saturday, in accordance with their religious beliefs. The defendants were grocers, haberdashers, butchers, shoe dealers and others with small shops in the heart of the east side. They had been served with summonses by the police on complaint of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Thirty-two other storekeepers were arraigned in the West Side Court in answer to summonses served as the result of a complaint by the same organization. Thirty were convicted and two Chinese were discharged. Of the thirty convicted, sixteen were fined from $1 to $5 each, and fourteen were freed on suspended sentences.

CHURCHILL DEFENDS RUBBER RESTRICTION

Says Stevenson Plan Will Not Work Injury to Our Rubber Manufacturers.

STABLE PRICE DESIRABLE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—A statement by Winston Churchill on "the Stevenson scheme" of rubber restriction is published tonight by The Evening Standard. The plan whereby it was arranged that only 60 per cent. of the British plantations' output for 1920 should be placed on the market unless the growers paid a higher export tax was drawn up by Sir James Stevenson, business adviser of the Colonial Office when Mr. Churchill was its head.

"One of our principal means of paying our debt to the United States," Mr. Churchill says, "is in the provision of rubber." Before the Stevenson scheme was brought into force at the end of last year we were selling our rubber around about sixpence per pound, that is to say, far below the cost of production. On this basis the plantations could not have been maintained, and the whole industry, in which quite 100 millions of British capital had been sunk, was falling into ruin.

"We were surely under no obligation to supply the United States with rubber below the cost of production. I do not believe that the United States rubber manufacturers will be at all injured by the measures taken to secure a staple price for rubber at levels which will enable the industry to exist. On the contrary, some of their best authorities have expressed the opinion that stabilization at two shillings per pound would afford a perfectly satisfactory basis for American manufacturers and would be preferable to the violent fluctuations which otherwise would have followed on the bankruptcy of the producers and the collapse of so many plantations. This two shillings would compare with the price of six shillings and seven shillings a pound which ruled a few years ago.

"From another point of view it was impossible for the Colonial Office to witness the financial ruin of the rubber-producing colonies owing to the continued sale of their products below the cost of production. The exhaustion of the rubber plantations would be fatal for many years to the prosperity of the Malay States and would greatly injure Ceylon. No question of free trade or protection was involved, the guiding principle being solely that of conservation of the natural products of these colonies.

"It is too early to say what the ultimate results of this scheme will be, but if it should succeed in sustaining the vital industries of these colonies and in addition should tend to improve the rate of exchange between Great Britain and the United States, it should be the cause of general satisfaction to us."

Mr. Churchill's successor at the Colonial Office, the Duke of Devonshire, concurs with him in approval of the Stevenson scheme, so that there is not likely to be any change in it. Practically 75 per cent. of the crude rubber in the world lies within the British Empire, and of this rubber the American market demands about 70 to 75 per cent.

YALE MEN BACK FRANCE.

Students Vote 3 to 1 in Support of Her Ruhr Policy.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 12.—Balloting which has been in progress for three days at Yale shows by a vote of approximately 3 to 1 that the undergraduates believe France is justified in sending troops into the Ruhr and that the step will help collect reparations from Germany but will retard the economic reconstruction of Europe and delay international peace.

By the same majority Yale students approve of a general policy of isolation from European affairs for the United States and do not favor immediate action by the United States to settle the Ruhr affair.

IRISH PLOT TO HIT BRITAIN DISCLOSED

Promises to Send Grenades.

There were jeers and laughter from the Labor Party at this, and Mr. Bridgeman indignantly protested it might be amusing to them. But to the British public it was not a laughing matter. It was not particularly satisfactory to them, he said, to feel that those activities meant a general destructive policy.

Another letter written to the "officer commanding in Britain" from the Quartermaster General of the Irish Republican Army in reply to a letter of his on grenades, said:

"At present I cannot promise you any. It is impossible to get iron founders going here. Hence the output is very small. I am having grenades made and packed with shrapnel which, I hope, will be effective. These shall be tested this week, and, if successful, I may be able to send you some.

"That showed that efforts were being made to persuade people to engage in a campaign of destruction in this country," said the Home Secretary. "The gentlemen opposite are not responsible for the safety of the country. I am responsible. It is quite impossible for any sane Englishman in my position to remain passive with such information in his possession."

Attorney General Hogg read a letter to the general officer commanding in Britain from the chief of the rebel staff in Ireland, in which it was stated:

"Having failed to get articles we expected, the Chief of Staff now writes that you be directed to have operations carried out at once. The day has now come."

Liberties Are Not Satisfied.

There were cheers as the Home Secretary sat down, but the Labor members were not satisfied and fired question after question at him. He was asked by Mr. MacDonald if the Government held that the Restoration of Order in Ireland Regulations ran in this country, and whether the Advisory Committee would sit in this country.

Jack Jones demanded exactly which Act was transferred on meeting whether a British subject born in England could be deported without an appeal to the ordinary courts. He declared that one of the men arrested was a British subject.

To these and other similar questions Mr. Bridgeman replied that he had legal advice, and had been assured he was acting within his rights. The Advisory Committee, he said, would be located in this country.

The Labor members elaborated their argument that there was no jurisdiction to justify the arrest and deportation. Mr. MacDonald declared it was not merely a lawyer's point; common sense should be brought to bear. He asked if the Home Secretary had satisfied himself that the people deported were citizens of the Irish Free State. As regards the Advisory Committee, it seemed to him, he declared, to be a case of hanging a man first and trying him afterward.

The Communist Newbold declared one of the deportees was a constituent of his, born at Falkirk. Mr. Bridgeman replied by restating the reasons for the action he had taken and quoting documents in support of it.

Sir John Simon said everybody must feel that the material laid before the Home Secretary was such that he was bound to take prompt and careful action. The action taken by the Home Secretary had been already decided by the Court of Appeal on another case. The court decided that it was within the law, but they regarded it as carrying the law to the extreme confines to which it could be taken. This was not primarily a legal question, he said. It was a question of policy and discretion, and he deprecated the arresting of men in this country and handing them over to a separate and independent government.

It was a gross betrayal of the ordinary liberties of the people living in this country, he asserted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—An official report issued from the Free State Army Headquarters in Dublin tonight places the number of arrests in England and Scotland at 110. They include Art O'Brien, President of the Irish Self-Determination League, and Sean McGrath, Secretary of the League, both of whom were arrested in London.

This was a day of excitement and mystery in Dublin. The reason was the arrival from Britain of the prisoners from London, Manchester, Liverpool and Glasgow, and the manner of their arrival enhanced the mystery.

It appears they were brought from Liverpool on H. M. S. Castor, from the Irish coast to two destroyers which, escorted by airplanes, brought them to Dublin.

The landing was delayed until between two and three o'clock this morning, when the first contingent, under a heavy guard, disembarked and entered automobiles which, accompanied by armed troops and armored cars, took them to Mountjoy prison. It was not until 11 o'clock today that the remaining batch was brought ashore and the same process observed.

DUBLIN, March 12 (Associated Press).—The arrests of Irishmen and women carried out on a large scale in England and Scotland Saturday and Sunday came as a surprise to the Republicans here. The prisoners include some individuals who had previously been arrested in Ireland and released.

The Castor was still at Dunleary on Dublin Bay today, but the two destroyers which accompanied her have returned to England, whence further shiploads are expected tonight.

The Free State Government issued tonight the names of 100 of its prisoners. The Government declares they had been engaged in a conspiracy to supply the Irish irregulars with war materials and thus support the rebel campaign of destruction.

Among the names on the list was that of Charles Diamond, proprietor of The London Catholic Herald, who in 1920 was found guilty of urging the assassination of Field Marshal French, then Lord Lieutenant and Governor General of Ireland. He was then sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

The arrests caused a tremendous sensation in Dublin, where it is believed that not more than a half dozen persons in Ireland knew they were contemplated.

The prisoners were accompanied here by Scotland Yard men and Wardresses.

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press).—The Daily Mail reports to its previous statement that some of the Irishmen arrested were co-operating with Communists. The newspaper asserts that an examination of the seized documents proved conclusively that they were in close touch with the Communists and aiming ultimately at the overthrow of the Crown as well as of the Free State.

The newspaper adds that some members of the Communist party objected to any fusion with the Irish, contending that the Irish were fighting for a Capitalist country and that a republic such as they favored would merely preserve the old system class of Government.

Rebels Attack Barracks in Donegal.

DUBLIN, March 12.—Irregulars attacked the military barracks at Creeslough, County Donegal, last night. The band was repulsed after a fierce engagement in which Lieutenant Cannon of the Free State army was killed.

BRITISH OFFICIALS LOOK FOR PEACE WITH TURKS

General Belief That Lausanne Draft Will Be Basis of Final Agreement.

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press).—Subdued optimism regarding the Near East settlement represents the reaction of the British official world to the Turkish reply to the peace treaty drafted at Lausanne. The text of the Turkish document has not yet been received by the Foreign Office, and a dispatch from Angora saying that the reply was being forwarded to London by courier indicated that a speedy handling of the Turkish question could not be expected, as the courier is not due to arrive until the end of the week just begun.

The information so far at hand regarding the reply has caused the British authorities to consider that the moderate Kemalists had the whip hand in the writing of the document, and the hope is held in Downing Street that developments will still further strengthen the hold of the moderates.

While comment on the various Turkish reservations is withheld, there seems to be no doubt that an amended version of the Lausanne draft treaty will constitute the final peace agreement. There is no question, it is understood, of the holding of a new peace conference as such, for whatever meeting is held will be a continuation of the Lausanne discussions and not the reopening of the whole question of Turkey's relations with the Allies. It is considered most probable here that the new negotiations will be held at Lausanne between the Allied High Commissioners to Constantinople and the Turkish representatives.

ROME, March 12.—The newspapers here comment unfavorably on that portion of the Turkish Government's reply to the allied peace proposals in which the Turks request the return to them by Italy of the island of Castelorizza, off the southern coast of Asia Minor.

The Tribuna says such a request at this moment is neither reasonable nor wise, and that it certainly will cause no good impression on Italian public opinion. The newspaper adds that Turkey has no national claims on Castelorizza, as the population of the island is not Turkish, but Greco-Levantine. Therefore Angora has no ethnical, political or national motives in claiming an island which forms a bridge joining the island of Rhodes, held by Italy, with Southern Anatolia, Italy's sphere of influence.

The Tribuna thinks that neither this request nor that to have the peace conference resumed in Constantinople will be granted by the Allies, it being impossible to resume the peace negotiations in a capital of one of the belligerent countries.

The Epoca remarks that the Turks never raised at Lausanne the question of sovereignty over Castelorizza, which was given Italy by France, which country had occupied it during the World War.

VALETTA, Malta, March 12.—The situation in the Near East seems to be regarded optimistically by the British authorities, as evidenced by the fact that the dreadnought Malaya and two light cruisers have been withdrawn from Near Eastern waters. The dreadnought Iron Duke has also been withdrawn from the Dardanelles and has arrived at the naval station here.

ATTACK NEW HAVEN SERVICE

Mount Vernon Commuters Say Club Trains Fly Past With Empty Seats.

At a continuation yesterday of the hearing before the Public Service Commission on complaints of the commuting service on the New York & New Haven Railroad, witnesses testified that commuters at Mount Vernon had to wait at stations for trains so crowded they had to stand, while club trains were flying by with plenty of vacant seats. W. W. Young, an attorney, said that either more trains should stop at Mount Vernon, or that the excess of cars on through trains should be shifted to trains that are usually overcrowded.

J. A. Droege, general superintendent of the New Haven road, said that to change the present club service would only inconvenience other service and that passengers on club cars were entitled to as much consideration as the commuters from Mount Vernon.

In the week of Feb. 15 to 21, he said, 144 trains from Mount Vernon in the morning rush hours carried 20,817 passengers, and in this time there were 17,320 surplus

BRITISH NAVY IS CUT TO ONE-POWER BASIS

COMPARES SHIPS WITH OURS

For the Next Four Years, He Says, Strength Will Actually Be Less Than That of Our Fleet.

ARMY ESTIMATES ALSO CUT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—Lieut. Col. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, had a light task in laying the navy estimates before the House of Commons tonight. For one thing he had a very slender program of new construction to unfold, and he contented himself mostly with an explanation for his enforced policy of economy.

He said the estimates of a year ago were based on the new policy of limited naval armaments prescribed by the Washington treaty. The country could not get the full financial results of that policy in the first year, he declared, and only in the present estimates could the full effect of the Admiralty policy be seen. The Washington treaty was a cause of great saving, for if the policy of replacement of obsolescent capital ships had been pursued on the old lines Britain would have been committed to an expenditure of another fifteen to twenty million pounds more than was now being asked for.

As it was he said that in twelve months the gross navy estimates had been brought down from £92,500,000 to £81,500,000, and the net estimates from £83,000,000 to £58,000,000.

To produce this drastic retrenchment they had to reduce the personnel by 23,000 officers and men in the dockyards by 10,000. They had also rendered impotent for fighting purposes fourteen splendid ships. Everything of munition, fuel and stores had been cut down to a minimum compatible with safety. They had postponed and spread over long periods the necessary expenditure which from a naval point of view ought to be incurred without delay, and many other reductions had been made which they could not contemplate without serious misgiving.

Contribution to World Peace.

The estimates, he said, represented a substantial contribution to the reduction in the burden of taxation and was also a contribution to the cause of world peace. But he felt, he declared, that from the point of view of the Board of Admiralty they represented a grave responsibility, which they had not assumed without anxious deliberation.

Colonel Amery found consolation in the thought that the lead this country had taken might prove the determining factor in the ratification of the Washington Treaty.

"Our policy," he declared, "has been carried out in advance of the Washington treaty and of all other countries, for we need not have taken any action until every power had ratified the treaty. In so doing we run no small risk, but by our act of faith we have secured for the taxpayer the fruition of economies which would otherwise have been delayed.

"We have given an earnest of our good-will and an example which should prove the determining factor in securing not only the early ratification of the treaty, but its full carrying out by all the powers concerned. It can safely be said that there is every reasonable prospect of the treaty not only being ratified, but being carried out effectively in the near future."

Compares Two Navies.

Comparing figures as between the British Navy and the American Navy Colonel Amery said that in capital ships Britain had now twenty-two built and one laid down, while the United States had eighteen completed, two of which would be displaced by two ships of the West Virginia class, now under construction. But until Britain's two 35,000-ton battleships were complete she would have only one post Jutland ship against three on the part of the United States and two on the part of Japan. While of ships over 30,000 tons Britain would have only one as compared with ten in the case of the United States and six in the case of Japan.

In cruisers Britain had fifty, including the Dominion's ships, against twenty for the United States.

In aircraft carriers Britain had five complete and two being built, while the United States had one complete and two building. In destroyers and flotilla leaders Britain had 200, including the Dominions, while the United States had 316. Britain had 95 submarines and 4 building, and the United States 99 built and 20 building.

The total British personnel provided for was 99,500, excluding coast guards, while the figure was 116,400 for the United States. The American Navy estimates, excluding aviation, were nearly $320,000,000 (or £69,350,000), while the British corresponding estimate of effective expenditure was £5,900,000 less.

Reduced to the Minimum.

Colonel Amery went on to say that so far from maintaining a one-power standard in a spirit of keen and jealous competition, Britain had interpreted that standard with a latitude which could only be a desire to avoid a provoking competition in armaments. It was impossible, he said, for this country of all nations, even when the horizon seemed clear, to run the risk of being inferior to any other power. There was no certainty in the domain of international affairs. A great navy once let down could not be provided again. There was a limit to which this country could go in weakening herself in order to promote peace, and she had reached it.

He would be failing in his duty to the House and the country, he declared, if he suggested the possibility of further reductions in strength in succeeding years. On the contrary, it must be borne in mind that these were exceptional estimates, framed to meet an exceptional financial situation.

Philip Snowden made a frontal attack on the whole program laid down by Colonel Amery, moving a hostile motion protesting that no sufficient reduction had been made in naval expenditure and calling for a new international conference with a view to further limitation by all nations. Lees Smith seconded and a brief debate ended with the rejection of Snowden's motion by 240 to 153.

Army Estimates Also Cut.

There is a cut of more than $100,000,000 in the British Army estimates for 1923-24. The official figures now show a total reduction of £106,278,492 on the three estimates as follows: Navy £8,075,492, Civil Service £88,000,000, Army £10,300,000. Against this there is an increase in the air estimates of £1,116,000, making a net reduction on the four estimates of £105,259,492.

Provision is made on the army estimates for 170,800 men of all ranks, exclusive of those serving in India (but including 16,000 Indian troops employed by the air ministry in Iraq) compared with 215,000 in 1922-3, a reduction of 44,200 men.

The number of British troops serving abroad and the total estimated cost are as follows: Rhine, 10,831, cost £2,046,500; Turkey, 4,617, £1,483,280; Egypt, 12,525, £3,307,000; Iraq, 1,836, £412,600.

After drawing attention in his accompanying memorandum to the fact that an allowance of £3,000,000 has been made with regard to certain charges in the Middle East, War Minister Lord Derby adds:

"It is evident that the War Office has fully discharged the task assigned to it by the Geddes committee."

It is pointed out that as compared with estimates of two years ago there has been a reduction of £9,000,000 in the terminal charges of war and £21,000,000 in the current charges, making £30,000,000 in all.

CANDLER TELLS WHY HE REFUSED TO WED

Files Answer in Atlanta to Mrs. De Bouchel's $500,000 Breach of Promise Suit.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 12.—Asa G. Candler today filed in the United States District Court here an answer to the $500,000 breach of promise suit recently brought against him by Mrs. Onesima De Bouchel.

Mr. Candler told the Court that he became engaged to Mrs. De Bouchel in January, 1922, and that immediately thereafter she proposed "that they go at once and be married." This he declined to do.

The answer concedes that "a member" of Mr. Candler's family visited New Orleans to investigate "certain suggestions" regarding Mrs. De Bouchel's conduct contained in letters from persons in New Orleans. These letters, it was said, were turned over to the petitioner's attorney and never have been returned.

The answer contends that it disposes fully of the charges brought by Mrs. De Bouchel and asks that her suit be dismissed.

"In answer to paragraph 85," the answer said, "defendant admits that he made no investigation other than to establish the fact that the statements referred to were actually made by a gentleman in Atlanta, and defendant felt that in any event a marriage thereafter consummated could not be a happy one, as he stated in his letter."

Denial was made that Mr. Candler's family renewed their efforts to prevent the marriage after he had announced such intention.

The answer admitted that Mr. Candler wrote Mrs. De Bouchel a letter, as stated in her petition, but added "the exact language" of the letter was not quoted. Mrs. De Bouchel's petition charged that she had received a letter from Mr. Candler breaking off their engagement after it had been reported to him "from sources he was bound to believe" that two men had visited her during the Confederate reunion in Atlanta for improper purposes.

Referring to Mrs. De Bouchel's statement that she had more than once expressed her willingness to cancel the engagement when she discovered the opposition of the Candler family, the answer of Mr. Candler said:

"In answer to paragraph 96, defendant admits the statement therein contained in the first three lines thereof, but can neither admit nor deny the remainder of said paragraph for want of sufficient evidence."

The remainder of the paragraph in Mrs. De Bouchel's petition referred to was a statement of her innocence of the charges which she said had caused Mr. Candler to break the engagement.

Continuing, Mr. Candler's answer said:

"Further answering this paragraph, this defendant says that when the statement contained in the said letter was first made to him he was inexpressibly shocked and confused and did not know what course to pursue, and that at the time he wrote the letter frankly telling plaintiff of the statement made to him, and of his confusion and mental distress, he did not communicate said statement to any one but the plaintiff, nor would they become publicly known through him.

"Defendant felt that the statements were made out of a spirit of friendship for him and for no benefit or hope of benefit of any sort to the man making them, and that having been made, plaintiff and defendant could in no event, therefore, be happily married, and that he should not therefore involve any one who had been actuated by friendship for him in a fruitless controversy with plaintiff."

Mr. Candler in his answer said that in his letter he made no charges against Mrs. De Bouchel.

YOUTH TELLS HORROR OF HIS VAULT PRISON

Paterson Bank Clerk Says Rescuers' Hammers Almost Crazed Him—Nearly Suffocated.

PATERSON, N. J., March 12.—Details of his imprisonment last Thursday night in a vault in the People's Park Bank were given out for the first time today by Charles Di Giacoma, bank clerk, through his uncle, James J. Di Giacoma, according to the uncle, the young man told the following story:

"During the first two hours in the vault I could breathe all right, but that awful hammering nearly drove me insane. I knew that I was in a serious plight and that I would soon breathe up all the air in the small enclosure, but I held hope that my rescuers would get to me in some way. All this time I was standing up because I was too frantic to sit down. Then by degrees the air became so hot and heavy that I found difficulty in breathing. I knew that hot air always goes to higher levels, so I got down on my knees. For a short time breathing was easier, but it was not long until I had to lie down on my back. I began to feel weaker. My head spun around and around. I remember clutching at my collar and tearing it open so I could breathe easier. I was about to cash in when through the haze I saw the hole that my rescuers had cut through the top of the vault. Although scarcely able to move, I managed to get to my feet after a minute that seemed years. Finding myself too short to reach the hole, I succeeded in climbing on top of a chair that had been left in the vault. The chair had a number of ledgers on it, but I could not find strength to push them off. Finally, after much struggling, I climbed to the top of the books and pushed a note through the hole. Then I fell. The chair and ledgers fell on top of me. It was in this position that my rescuers found me."

FREED, THEN REARRESTED.

Two Men Held in Ammunition Plot Detained on New Complaint.

Edward Hoey and Joseph O'Byrne, who were arrested on Feb. 24 on suspicion of being the ringleaders in a plot to send arms to Ireland, were discharged yesterday by Magistrate McAndrews in the Jefferson Market Court at the instance of Deputy United States Marshal Malmoli, who immediately rearrested the men on a warrant issued by a United States Commissioner. The complaint was made by Special Agent John L. Haas of the Department of Justice, who charged the two defendants with being concerned in the illegal transportation of explosives in interstate commerce. Each of the defendants was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing.

The prisoners are believed to know all about the ammunition, rifles and machine guns found in a basement in West Twenty-fourth Street. It was said that the stuff came from some point in New Jersey and was awaiting shipment to Ireland. Two other men are named in the complaint made by Haas.

WANTS $25,000,000 FOR ARMY AIRCRAFT

Wainwright Urges $15,000,000 Annually for Expansion, $10,000,000 for Operation.

WAR EQUIPMENT USED UP

Alarming Situation is Caused, He Says, by the Lack of Material.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—In his final report as Assistant Secretary of War, made public today, J. Mayhew Wainwright, who resigned on account of his election to Congress, advocated the adoption of a program calling for an annual expenditure of $15,000,000 in the next five years for the development and expansion of the Army Air Service, besides $10,000,000 annually for operating the service. Industrial mobilization in time of war was also dwelt upon by Mr. Wainwright, who said that the plans of the War Department in that respect were far advanced. "Our most notable deficiency at the present time," Mr. Wainwright said, "is in the matter of aircraft. The situation in the Army Air Service is most critical. Up to the present time this service has been using very largely equipment produced during the war. This supply is practically exhausted. What there is left of it is disappearing rapidly, due to deterioration and to the inevitable losses while in actual use.

"The amounts appropriated for the purchase of new air craft are insufficient to provide what is necessary even for the normal peace time equipment of the present small air service organizations.

"The aeronautical industry in the United States, built up to large proportions during the war, is now practically facing extinction. Until commercial aerial transportation becomes a fact the only demand for such equipment originates with the military branches of the Government. Unless the Government places with aircraft manufacturers sufficient orders to enable them to continue in operation the industry as such will disappear.

Alarming Situation Faced.

"The Army Air Service is faced with this condition of affairs: Its war-time manufactured equipment has been practically used up. The amounts of money appropriated for the purchase of new aircraft are so small that within two years it will have on hand less than one-half the number of aircraft necessary for normal peace time work.

"There will be no aircraft to equip and expand the air service in time of emergency, no reserve on hand, and it will be impossible in less than a year to expand the remnant of the aircraft industry which may be left or to create it anew so that this material can be manufactured in sufficient quantity for use in such an emergency. This situation not only is serious, but actually is alarming.

"The Army Air Service should be large enough and adequately equipped so that it would be prepared instantly to meet any air force which an enemy might bring against us. The importance of the rifle in the air service will play in the defense of the nation should be thoroughly understood, and this component of the army should be increased to its proper strength. The air service then should have a definite procurement program which will insure proper equipment, replacements and the reserve supply of aircraft for use in an emergency and until war-time requirements could be met by increased production. Such a program would call for an annual expenditure of approximately $15,000,000 per year for the next five years. Thereafter this annual expenditure no doubt could be decreased.

"In addition to this expenditure for new aircraft there would be required approximately $10,000,000 for operating the service."

Industrial Mobilization Problem.

Regarding industrial mobilization, Assistant Secretary Wainwright said in part:

"The problem is to insure, so far as foresight may provide, that our industrial establishments and factories may be prepared upon the outbreak of war to turn, as rapidly as possible, from their peace time tasks to the production and operation of those things that shall have the primary call and preference upon their facilities for production. This call and the load so placed should be, however, so nicely adjusted that the essential needs of the people should be disturbed only so far as is necessary.

"But with munitions and aircraft and related supplies it is another matter. Here as well as elsewhere complex problems arise. The effort must be made to secure an acceleration of production to the utmost extent conformable with the size and rate of mobilization of man power."

SCHOOLBOY TESTIFIES ON VILLAGE DANCES

Bradley Clark, a fourteen-year-old schoolboy, of 887 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, was the principal witness in Special Sessions yesterday at the trial of Robert Cushman, proprietor of a restaurant at 160 West Fourth Street, in Greenwich Village, on a charge of maintaining a public nuisance. The charge grew out of a raid on the place by detectives several weeks ago, in which about fifteen young men and women were taken into custody, after complaints had been received from residents in the vicinity. A charge of maintaining a disorderly house was dismissed in the same court last Friday.

The boy was called to the witness stand by Assistant District Attorney Frank E. Carstarphen. He told Justices Salmon, Herrman and Kernochan that he visited the restaurant about fifteen times, usually in the afternoon, between September and January last; that he carried his school books on several occasions, and that in all but two instances he wore knickerbockers.

He added that on each visit there was piano playing and dancing in the place, and that on one occasion, on Cushman's request, he presented a note, ostensibly written by the boy's father, permitting him to visit the place. The boy said he wrote the note himself. Young Clark swore he visited the place about 9:30 o'clock one evening and remained until 11:30 P. M. He said that on that visit he saw a boy who was seated with a girl on the balcony drinking from a bottle.

When the boy left the witness stand Thomas F. McLaughlin, counsel for Cushman, asked that the charge be dismissed. The motion was denied, and the hearing was adjourned until next Friday.

MUD BANKS HOLD UP PRESIDENT'S PARTY

Fort Lauderdale Reception Committee Rescues It and Harding Has an Afternoon's Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 12.—Something always happens when President Harding comes to Fort Lauderdale. Two years ago it was a dredge that blocked the channel; so Mr. Harding, then President-elect, came ashore and played golf. Today the houseboat Pioneer was caught in the mud at low tide and blocked the channel eight miles from here, so Mr. Harding came ashore and played golf.

When the Pioneer failed to appear at the scheduled time, the Reception Committee knew just what had happened and exactly where the houseboat could be found.

Automobiles brought the Presidential foursome to Fort Lauderdale and its golf course, where there was a large gallery, augmented by tourists motoring along the Dixie Highway.

After the match the Presidential foursome returned to the stranded Pioneer. It is expected that the houseboat will be floated during the night and will continue the run to Miami tomorrow, with the President stopping off here for another round of golf or motoring seven miles from here to the Hollywood curse.

SAYS AMERICANS MADE BRISTOL PLANES UNSAFE

Company's Counsel Declares 'Too Much Ingenuity' Caused Breaking of War Contract.

LONDON, March 12.—The Bristol Aeroplane Company presented a claim to the Anglo-American Inventions Commission today for Bristol fighting planes supplied to America during the war.

Sir Duncan Kerly, counsel for the claimants, quoted Major Gen. Sir William Brancker as declaring that the Bristol fighter was the best all-around machine produced during the war.

Sir Duncan said the United States decided to produce the machine on a large scale and ordered 2,000 of the planes from the Curtiss Company, but "unfortunately" it was decided to install Liberty-12 engines, "which were 400 pounds too heavy for the Bristol fighter."

"There was in the United States," he asserted, "not a lack of ingenuity, but far too much of it. There were far too many people who were able to improve anything on earth, and they were all willing to do it."

Too many persons were allowed to introduce improvements into the Bristol fighter, he added, with the result that the contract was cancelled.

WEST BUYS FEDERAL NOTES.

Kansas City Expects to Exceed Quota for Treasury Issues.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 12.—Unofficial information at the headquarters for the tenth district of the Federal Reserve Bank here was that the local allotment of the $400,000,000 issue of Treasury certificates would be oversubscribed.

A. C. Frost, assistant cashier of the bank, said that the subscriptions in the last two and a half years had been oversubscribed and probably would be this year. Last year the subscriptions exceeded by three times the apportionment of the district.

Local estimates are that the demands for this district will exceed $15,000,000. Letters to the sub-banks of this district were mailed March 8 and the district is so large that returns are not in by this time.

Sir Robert Horne Says Anglo-Saxon Amity Brightens World's Future.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, March 12.—Sir Robert Horne, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, who received the freedom of Edinburgh today, said in a speech that only one factor shed a gleam of hope on the dark prospects for Europe; that was the increasing friendship between Great Britain and America.

"There was scarcely any issue in modern politics upon which these two great countries at the present time did not see eye to eye, he said.

CHICAGO BANKER ADMITS FORGERIES

High Official of the Logan Square Trust Says They Amount to $60,000.

RECEIVER TAKES CHARGE

Chicago Clearing House Association Declares That All Its Member Banks Are Sound.

CHICAGO, March 12.—The appointment of a receiver for the Logan Square Trust & Savings Bank was ordered today by Harry W. Savage, State Bank Examiner, after a high official of the bank had admitted forgeries to the amount of $60,000. Edward I. Williams was named receiver and began the task of untangling the finances of the bank, which are said to be in such shape that it will be several days before the extent of the deficit will be known. It was stated that there was no chance of the bank's reopening for several days at least.

Officials of the Chicago Clearing House came to the defense of the integrity and soundness of the 189 banks which are in its membership. They said that none of them had any of the "interim receipts" which are said to have been the largest contributing cause to the closing of the Logan Square Bank, which was not a member.

Andrew Russel, State Auditor, said that his office some time ago discovered that several banks were dealing in the interim receipts and that he had put a stop to it. One or two banks in neighboring towns are undergoing a process of housecleaning, according to the Auditor.

The following statement was issued by Mr. Savage late in the afternoon:

"On account of the lack of time and sources of information, the examining force has been unable to ascertain the value of the assets of the Logan Square Trust & Savings Bank, and it was not possible to perfect plans whereby the bank could be reopened for business this morning."

Foster C. Scott, deposed President of the Stony Island Trust and Savings Bank, who is said to be responsible for the floating of the interim receipts, was neither found nor arrested. Directors of the Logan Square Bank were outspoken in their declarations that Scott had brought financial distress to them through his dealings with President Popp and Vice President D. Weidemann Jr.

Earl K. Stitt, former partner of Scott in the brokerage business, conducted under the name of Scott & Stitt, said today that the bad paper did not get into the various city and country banks through the brokerage firm, but was "worked off" on them by Scott through the Stony Island Bank.

In discussing the dealings in "interim certificates" an official of the Chicago Clearing House said:

"The activities of a certain band firm through the Stony Island Trust and Savings Bank were criticised as far back as December, 1921, by us. Thorough examinations were made of that bank between then and February, 1923. When expostulation did not remedy the situation action was taken in time to protect the depositors against loss.

"When that was done the trouble was found to extend to three other banks—two near Chicago, the third being the Logan Square Bank—none of which were Clearing House banks. The national and State authorities were informed by us that in our judgment the situation required immediate constructive attention.

"Popp's suicide was merely an incident after we had uncovered the whole mesh. It is being made to appear that a rink of crooks is operating among the banks through fraudulent interim certificates. We discovered that the interim certificates were out on certain bond issues as collateral and that the permanent bonds were also out as collateral, so far the bond firm referred to is the only one involved in this.

"We have seen to it that the 129 banks in the Clearing House association are clean, and the depositors in Clearing House banks need not have the least concern, as they have been protected through the vigilance of this department."

BANKER FOUND DEAD, CYANIDE IN DRAWER

Theophilus Butts, 56 years old, Vice President of the First National Bank of Hoboken, was found dead in the office of his brother, George Butts, President of the Hudson Trust Company, in Hoboken yesterday afternoon. The police think that he took cyanide of potassium, a box of which was found in a drawer in the room. He had been dead for several hours.

George Butts has been critically ill for some time, and fear that he might not recover had depressed his brother. They were strongly attached to each other, and business associates noticed that Mr. Butts had worried much recently about his brother's condition. Yesterday morning he went to his brother's office in the trust company building. A woman employe opened the door after a time and noticed Mr. Butts reclining in an arm chair. She closed the door, thinking he was asleep.

Later business associates sought the banker. When they learned from his home in Westfield that he had gone to Hoboken as usual they began to hunt for him. It was not until 5:30 o'clock that he was found dead in the chair.

The cyanide had been purchased by Mr. Butts on last Thursday from William Kamish, a druggist on Newark Street, Hoboken. On Friday he went back to the druggist and said:

"That was great stuff. It worked well on the dog and he had a peaceful death."

An autopsy will be performed today to establish definitely the cause of death. Mr. Butts is survived by a widow, Mrs. Mary Butts, and two daughters. His father was prominent in business in Hoboken. He left George Butts an interest in the trust company and Theophilus some stock in the First National. Mr. Butts had not been active in the affairs of the bank, it was said by W. W. Young, its President, and his absence did not arouse comment during the day.

SEARCH FOR PEDDLER IN KIDNAPPING CASE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—While Angelina Tavano, nurse, and alleged kidnapper of Leopold Minkin, the three-year-old son of City Judge Minkin, is in jail awaiting a hearing before a Police Magistrate tomorrow, the police of many cities are trying to apprehend Joseph Kenny, an alleged dope peddler, said to have been the person who inspired the kidnapping of the boy, who was taken away from his parents last Thursday and found on Saturday in Newburgh. The nurse told the police that Kenny gave her dope and a drink of drugged whisky in Albany before she went to the Minkin home to work as a nursemaid.

The girl was taken to court at noon today. She had passed a sleepless night and was extremely nervous. She had consented, after the usual preliminaries, Judge Brady adjourned the case until tomorrow, taking a plea of not guilty and committing her to jail.

FORTY-SIX KILLED IN SWEEP OF STORM

the same time, carrying live wires with them.

Thirty Dead in Tennessee.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Tenn., March 12.—Sunday's storm death roll in Pinson, twelve miles south of here, was increased to thirty when ten additional bodies were brought in by train this afternoon. More than seventy-five storm victims are now being treated at Jackson hospitals, and it is feared some of the injured cannot recover. Relief workers from here are pushing on beyond Pinson and fear many fatalities will be disclosed when they search the farming communities which are known to have been in the direct path of the storm.

Deanburg, a small town twenty-five miles from Jackson, is believed to have been nearly destroyed. Relief workers have sent one body out of Deanburg and have succeeded in getting eight badly injured victims to hospitals here. There is no wire communication between here and Pinson and Deanburg.

Heavy damage is reported to have been done at Medon, a small town south of Jackson. A small baby, with no mark on its body, but with neck broken, was found in Pinson, but so far has been unidentified. Two little girls were found dead with their arms about each other.

Pinson was a prosperous small town of about 500 inhabitants. There were two churches and a modern school building in the town before Sunday's storm. Both churches were demolished and the school building is today nothing but a pile of ruins.

There were many miraculous escapes. Survivors tell varying stories about the approach and breaking of the storm, but the majority agree that two storm clouds, one moving from the south and the other from the north, seemed to converge above the village. Estimates place the velocity of the wind at from sixty to ninety miles an hour.

JACKSON, Tenn., March 12 (Associated Press).—First news of the wind's damage at Pinson reached here when a boy, whose name was not learned, arrived in Jackson after walking ten miles through the storm, having started from Pinson on horseback. Two miles from Pison he had to abandon his horse because of impassable roads and continued on his way afoot through the pouring rain and darkness.

Mayor J. D. Johnson, acting on the young messenger's information, with eight local physicians hastened to Pinson on a special train of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad. The relief party worked ceaselessly, uncovering the injured in the wreckage and giving first aid to those who survived.

Five negro section hands were found dead in a heap, the building which they occupied having been blown 100 feet.

Officials of the Red Cross were soon on the ground, distributing clothing, cots, bandages and medical supplies. Houses were demolished and cattle killed on farms at Neeley's Station, near here, according to reports, but no other fatalities occurred.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., March 12.—Property damage estimated between $200,000 and $500,000 was caused by a windstorm in Montgomery County early today, according to belated reports received here. Three buildings in the business district were gutted by fire which originated after the roof of one of the buildings had been razed. The fire loss is estimated at about $200,000.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 12.—Hundreds of trees were uprooted and many roofs damaged in Nashville and vicinity by Sunday night's wind, which reached a velocity of 90 miles an hour, the highest ever recorded here. Wire service has suffered severely.

At The Hermitage, the home of General Andrew Jackson, the wind blew down forty cedar trees planted more than eighty years ago.

Nine Deaths Reported in Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 12.—At least nine deaths resulted from the wind storm which swept South Central Kentucky last night and early today, according to reports received here.

Reports from Richmond said that three persons lost their lives in that vicinity when the wind lifted a small farmhouse, with three adults and ten children, from its foundation, carried it fifty yards and hurled it to the ground in splinters.

From Bowling Green came a report that Mrs. Jennie Doasy, 21, and Mrs. Margaret Cox, 51, were killed and Mr. Dossy was probably fatally injured when the storm blew.

An unverified report from South Union, Logan County, said that the man, his wife and child also lost their lives in the storm.

Dennis Boggs, 9, was killed and five other children injured, two seriously, when the roof was blown from the high school building at South Portsmouth, Ky., and carried into the school yard, where the children were playing.

Gale Sweeps Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 12.—Damage which will run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars was done by the wind and rainstorm which swept over Indiana early today, according to reports received here over crippled wires. While persons were reported injured in many sections, no word of any fatalities had been received early tonight.

Business buildings, residences and barns were unroofed and wrecked in many localities, and live stock on farms was killed, but the heaviest sufferers, it was said, were the telephone, telegraph and interurban companies. Poles were swept down by the dozens, and the wire service companies called out all of their emergency forces in an effort to clear their lines tonight.

Several places in the State were almost completely isolated at various times during the day, and few interurban lines were operating throughout their length.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 12.—Much of Northern Alabama was visited early today by a windstorm which partly paralyzed telegraph and telephone wires.

JURY TO TRY FOSTER DIFFICULT TO PICK

CASE BEGUN AT ST. JOSEPH

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 12.—The trial of William Z. Foster, radical leader, under the Michigan anti-syndicalism laws, was begun here today in the Berrien County Circuit Court. Prospective jurors were questioned at length concerning radical literature, which the State charges was sent to residents of the county.

Harry Archer, a farmer, was excused from jury duty when he said that he had a fixed opinion of the guilt of the defendant. Mrs. Mary Woodruff was selected to fill his place.

Attorney Frank P. Walsh, for the defense, questioned Mrs. Minerva Olsen, a prospective juror, defining terms which will be used in the trial such as "Soviet," "free speech," and "Red." He read from the Declaration of Independence setting forth what he called the "fundamental right of revolution."

Indications are that it will take perhaps a week for the selection of a jury.

Foster entered the courtroom early. Rose Pastor Stokes of New York and Ella Reeve Bloor were also in court.

"I do not deny that I was at the convention," Mrs. Stokes told an interviewer. "The persons present are being persecuted and prosecuted for their political beliefs."

O. L. Smith, Assistant Attorney General of Michigan, who is directing the prosecution, said that he had a copy of a circular bearing the letterhead of "The American Civil Liberties Union," appealing to the people of Berrien County not to give their support to the trial of Foster and his alleged fellow-Communists. Mr. Smith said that 15,000 of these circulars had been distributed through the county in the last week for the purpose of increasing the difficulty of obtaining a jury—a task which he said was already difficult because of the prominence of the case.

The letterhead bears a list of what purports to be the National Committee of the American Civil Liberties Union. On this list appears the name of Jane Addams, Chicago, social worker; Norman Hapgood, editor; Morris Hillquit, former Socialist candidate for Mayor of New York; William Z. Foster, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, James A. Duncan, Felix Frankfurter and others.

The circular declares that the trial of the alleged Communists "was brought not because the local authorities were interested in it, but because the Federal Secret Service at Washington intended to wipe out the Communist movement in the United States. Having no Federal law under which to jail the men who met in their convention at Bridgman last Summer, they used a Michigan State statute passed in the hysteria of a few years ago."

DINES WITH PRESBYTERIANS

Dr. Fosdick, Baptist Under Fire, is Guest of Clergymen.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, whose weekly appearance in the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church has been condemned by several Presbyterians because his orthodoxy is under fire, was a guest of honor last evening at a dinner given between the sessions of an evening session of a meeting of the Presbytery of New York. The meetings and the dinner were held in the Morningside Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Paul E. Baker, pastor of Morningside Church, was the host. Dr. Fosdick was the only person present who was not a Presbyterian minister.

When Dr. Fosdick arrived ninety-four clergymen already were seated at the dinner tables. He tried to slip in unnoticed, but faced a burst of applause. Before he left Dr. Fosdick thanked his hosts in a brief speech.

IN ORDER TO SUCCEED

One of the urgent industrial problems is to develop a constructive attitude of mind on the part of employees.

A constructive viewpoint in the mind of individual workmen will not take root or grow of its own accord.

The only solid foundation for straight thinking and wholehearted co-operation is practical education of employees by making available the vital facts pertaining to the industry as it relates to employer and employee.

In order to succeed, this education must be carefully planned. It is necessary that more than letters, bulletins, printed matter, lectures, etc., be used.

The workman must be appealed to in language which he will understand, and through methods which he will grasp and appreciate.

HEARS RICH MAN BACKS RUM FLEET

London Report That He Plans Wholesale Invasion With Vessels Under Panaman Flag.

HEADED BY GERMAN CAPTAIN

He Was Formerly a Hamburg-America Line Commander—Stories of Piracy Revived.

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press).—Wholesale rum running into the United States by a fleet of four or five ships registered under the Panaman flag is being financed by a prominent German magnate, according to information received in responsible American quarters here. The fleet, it is declared, is being chiefly operated from the United States and by a former German captain of a Hamburg-American liner.

The fleet itself, it is understood, is under the command of a character of questionable nationality, who achieved notoriety in connection with marine operations of a dubious nature during the war.

While absolute proof of these vast operations is lacking, the information received by American circles here points to colossal landings of liquor cargoes in the United States, chiefly from Glasgow.

Report Pirates Prey on Rum Runners.

Indications that the Atlantic coast of the arid United States is to be attacked by rum fleets from three-quarters of the globe were seen here yesterday in the foregoing dispatch. A squadron believed to hail from the Bahamas already is rocking off the northern New Jersey coast and preliminary landings are reported to have been made.

Word that a British syndicate is assembling an armada to storm the Atlantic coast has been brought here recently by tourists visiting Nassau, and Federal agents are said to be investigating.

With this three-fronted attack come other indications that Spring will bring melodramatic activities in the North Atlantic, reminiscent of the days of Captain Kidd.

Several schooners have sailed into Halifax and St. John, Canada, reporting that they had been attacked by rum pirates off New York and their cargoes seized. At first Government agents were inclined to smile at these reports, taking them as feeble excuses for missing freight. Lately, however, several events have served somewhat to substantiate the theory that rum runners are meeting another foe in the Jolly Roger.

On March 3 the schooner Victor was found crewless, drifting around off the Ambrose Channel lightship. A meal was spread in the cabin. The cargo was gone. The theory was advanced that pirates had captured the crew and seized the rum.

Crews Have Pistol Practice.

Recently dispatches from Highlands, N. J., the centre of last Winter's rum running, reported that local runners were indulging in pistol practice ashore to protect themselves against modern Captain Kidds.

Bootleggers have indicated previously that Ambrose Channel was the best rendezvous, because of its proximity to New York, Philadelphia, Newark and other ready markets. Rum craft, however, have been reported at various times off the New England coast. Recently John D. Appleby, formerly in charge of marine dry forces in New York, announced his intention when he was transferred to Boston, to organize a prohibition navy in that district.

Many of the captures made last Winter checked up to the credit of the coast guards, who on several occasions pursued runners in one of their own craft which had been seized. Orders received later at coast guard headquarters indicated that this force would be used even more actively by the Government in its anti-smuggling campaign.

PEEKSKILL RIDES ON PASSES

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, March 12.—A novel fare system was introduced on street cars in Peekskill today when the Peekskill Light and Railroad Company began selling passes, good for one week for an unlimited number of rides in the central zone of the village.

Without a pass a ride in this zone of Peekskill costs 10 cents. Now anybody can ride within the village on a pass, good from Monday morning until Sunday night, any number of times. The pass sells for $1 and is transferable, so that anybody holding it can ride.

There is another form of weekly pass, selling for $1.90 under the new plan, good in the village limits and also to the neighboring village of Verplanck. The fare between the two villages without a pass is 20 cents a ride.

Under the new pass plan commuters who paid 20 cents a day heretofore to ride between the New York Central station and their homes in Peekskill will save 20 cents a week and besides will have a pass to use at odd hours.

ADMITS RATE AGREEMENT.

E. N. Todd Tells of American-Canadian Grain Freight Schedule.

MONTREAL, March 12.—E. N. Todd, freight traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, testified today before a royal commission which is investigating the charges of a combination among American and Canadian trunk railways to maintain freight rates on grain that these railways made an agreement last Spring to maintain the rates.

That agreement, he testified, was reached after the American roads had threatened to cut rates at and east of Buffalo to the Atlantic seaboard and the Canadian roads had determined to meet any reduction. He said that officials of the American roads held that too much grain had gone to Montreal by the water route in 1921, and they believed that they could get more business if the rates were cut.

CRITICISE PROSECUTION OF LIQUOR HIRELING

Philadelphia Judges Order an Inquiry Into Failure to Arrest Brewer and Truck Owner.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—Judges Thompson and McKeehan in the United States District Court today expressed surprise when testimony showed that Joseph Etkin, driver of a truck on which alcohol had been hauled from the Glenwood distillery here, had been indicted and the owner of the vehicle and the officers of the distillery had been permitted to go free. After the Court had questioned Assistant United States District Attorney Friedman, Judge Thompson, consulting with Judge McKeehan, ordered an investigation.

"This is a most remarkable situation," said Judge Thompson, "that a hireling, such as this man is, should be prosecuted, indicted and plead guilty to transporting liquor and no action be taken against either Max Feldbaum, who owns the truck, or the Glenwood distillery. This matter certainly should be investigated, and we now order the District Attorney to make such an investigation, and if the facts justify it he is ordered to take the proper proceedings against Feldbaum and the Glenwood distillery. Meanwhile we will not impose sentence on Etkin, driver of the truck."

It was brought out that Etkin was merely an employe of Feldbaum. The Government failed to prosecute Feldbaum and the distillery officers on the ground that there was no evidence to prove the alcohol came from the distillery. Andrew A. Quigley, a special prohibition agent, testified that he saw the alcohol come from the place.

Friedman said that no request for a warrant against the distillery or Feldbaum had been made to the District Attorney's office by the prohibition officials. "Our job," he added, "is to prepare warrants, not to make affidavits."

WOMAN OF 60 GETS 3 MONTHS' SENTENCE

Saleswoman, Also Involved in Silk Theft, Is Freed on Suspended Sentence.

Mrs. Theresa Cohen, 60, who said she was a widow and lived at 236 East Eighty-fifth Street, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in the workhouse yesterday for inducing a young saleswoman in Macy's store to rob her employers of silk worth $451. The young woman, Adelaide Rothstein, 21, of 425 East 166th Street, the Bronx, was released on a suspended sentence after she had told how Mrs. Cohen had tempted her to join in thefts of silk by telling her that the saleswoman resembled her dead daughter.

Detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association told of arresting both women in the store last Jan. 16. They said they saw Mrs. Cohen pass a canvas bag over the counter to the saleswoman and some time later saw the latter pass the bag back to Mrs. Cohen, who also carried a suit case. They said that the bag and suit case contained silk worth $152. Other goods, they said, were found in Mrs. Cohen's home.

Mrs. Cohen pleaded guilty to the specific theft of $8 worth of silk, which was found in the canvas bag. Probation Officer William Bose told the Court that the saleswoman received only $10 in small sums as her part of the thefts. After Justices Freschi, O'Keefe and Herbert had discussed the case, Justice Freschi, who presided, told Mrs. Cohen that if it were not for her age she would be sent to the penitentiary.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL.

H. W. Taft Heads Campaign for $500,000 in New York.

Henry W. Taft, having accepted the general chairmanship of the 1923 Home Service Appeal of the Salvation Army in Greater New York, wrote to Major Edward Underwood, Home Service Director of the Army, in a letter made public yesterday:

"I will do my utmost to assist the Citizens' Committee in assuring the Salvation Army its financial needs for the coming fiscal year. Much of the work of this organization is not even approached by any other agency, and so it has long been recognized as a civic necessity, not merely as an activity to be supported from sentimental motives. Through intimate contact with the leaders of the organization I hope to learn the secret of the amazing ability of the Salvation Army to accomplish so much on so little capital. If the average business or professional man could make a dollar go half as far most of the financial and economic problems of the country would largely disappear. I think the success of the Army is largely due to the spiritual consecration of its individual officers and members."

The appeal is for $500,000 to support all Army work in New York. Every penny is for use in the city. E. M. Statler has given to the Citizens' Committee headquarters on the mezzanine floor of the Pennsylvania Hotel. The appeal will be launched formally on May 1.

Navy Cruises for Engineer Students.

BOSTON, March 12.—The Navy Department will provide a group of engineering students with experience on cruising battleships this Summer. Leading universities and colleges will be allowed to designate two students each, who will be assigned to vessels under conditions that will enable them to become familiar with the machinery, especially of the electric installation.

ALBANY WETS LOSE FIGHT ON DRY LAW

public officials in the State," Mr. Miller added.

In opposing the Cuvillier measure Assemblyman Esmond of Saratoga declared the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law would make New York State "a battleground for the bootleggers.

"If we repeal the State Dry Enforcement law, the State not only will be a battleground for the bootleggers, but brutal violence will run rampant in the cities and up and down the highways, which eventually might lead to revolution," Mr. Esmond asserted. "The repeal of the State's dry law would bring a carnage of crime into this State such as the people have never before seen. I can picture the army of bootleggers which would be using our highways and running down innocent persons in their high-powered machines."

Assemblyman Long of Delaware, Chairman of the Excise Committee, asserted that the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law would be the first step toward bringing back the old-time saloon.

Assemblyman Cosgrove of Richmond inveighed against "damnable slickers and reformers" for "putting over on us this damnable law in the guise of wartime prohibition when 4,000,000 red-blooded American citizens were over in France fighting and dying for their country."

Charles Donohue, the Democratic leader, pointed out that while undoubtedly there was popular demand for repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, there was in the Democratic platform "not a single word which held out any hope that the party would take its stand in favor of a repeal bill."

BOOTLEGGER'S LIST STARTLES CAPITAL

Army, Navy, State Department Officials and Society Leaders Named in Morning Paper.

DEPARTMENTS NOT EXCITED

They Will Leave Any Inquiry to Prohibition Officials—No Evidence of Sales Offered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Army and Navy officials refused to become excited over the publication today of an alleged bootlegger's list of patrons which contained the names of officers of the Army and Navy, as well as subordinates in the State Department. The list came into the possession of the police when they arrested Joseph E. Connor, charged with the illegal sale of liquor.

Official Washington was surprised when it opened The Washington Post and read the names of some 200 supposed patrons of bootleggers, arranged alphabetically. The list published today ended with the letter R, and it is said that many Washington people whose names begin with subsequent letters are apprehensive of what tomorrow's edition may contain.

While many bootleggers have been arrested here recently and their selected lists confiscated, this is the first time that the names and addresses of supposed patrons was published.

Some officials who discussed the matter today said the list did not necessarily mean that all those on it had been patrons of the man new known as the "State, War and Navy" bootlegger. Three naval officers told Acting Secretary Roosevelt that while their names were on the list, they had never purchased any supplies from the agent. They said he had solicited them over the telephone, and was as persistent in offering his wares as a book agent.

Alibis were going thick and fast all day long. The telephones leading into the State, War and Navy buildings were busy with friends calling up those on the list. Practical jokers also had a good time as they called the officers, and, impersonating prohibition officials, demanded their presence in Municipal Court tomorrow. Before the day reached the lunch hour the officers "on the list" were considerably annoyed with developments. Those connected with the Army Judge Advocate General's office told officers whose names were on the list that no punishment could be inflicted upon them unless Federal prohibition officers proved that they had illegal whisky in their possession.

The list contained names of a number of business and society men of Washington. Many in the social register whose names follow R, it was said, kept the wires busy today appealing to the owner of The Post, now in Florida, to prevent the publication of the rest of the list.

Acting Secretary Roosevelt, when asked to explain what the Navy Department would do officially, said that "insofar as the Navy Department is concerned it regards the matter as distinctly under civil authority, and one, therefore, over which it cannot exercise any jurisdiction. If the sales had been made in naval territory that would be a horse of another color, and then the Navy Department would take up the matter and investigate."

Acting Secretary of War Davis took the same view, saying: "The mere fact that the names of army officers appear with many other names on an address list captured in a raid on a bootlegger does not justify an inference detrimental to such officers or to the military service. Investigation, if one is deemed necessary, is up to the civil authorities."

Secretary Hughes smiled pleasantly when asked to comment on the appearance of the names of State Department employes on the list. Then he said bluntly: "I have nothing to say."

In the absence of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes the prohibition unit did nothing toward investigating the list to determine whether those named on it had violated the law.

Some of those named in the list have been away from Washington for several months and in certain cases as long as two years.

BANTON HITS GREENE ON BLUE SKY LAWS

Says Assertion That Sheridan Bill Will Hurt Brokers Is Ridiculous.

District Attorney Banton, who had been ill several weeks, returned to his office yesterday and later issued a statement replying to assertions the day before of Jerome D. Greene, Chairman of the legislative committee of the New York Group, Investment Bankers of America, in opposition to the Sheridan blue sky laws now before a committee of the Legislature. Mr. Banton said that Mr. Greene's assertions showed that he did not understand the Sheridan bill, "or he has placed himself in the position of advocating the issue of fake securities and the continued maintenance of bucket shops in the guise of brokerage offices."

Referring to Mr. Greene's statement that the provisions of the Sheridan bill with regard to the supervision of brokers are so strict that they would interfere with the business of the brokers and would require the State Superintendent of Banks to inspect each loan, Mr. Banton said:

"This is ridiculous. If the Superintendent of Banks discovered a fake loan, as a means of heading off a larceny or other crime he would certainly take some steps toward the bank. If the Superintendent, in supervising the broker's business, discovers that the broker is bucketing, trading against his customers' orders, crossing orders or committing like crimes, he will act.

"Mr. Greene says it would be physically impossible for the Superintendent of Banks to satisfy himself of the trustworthiness of those connected with the brokerage business. Why? Because of the great numbers in the business, evidently his inference. We might just as well say that because of the great volume of business done by the banks and insurance companies of New York, compared with the business done by outside banks and insurance companies, that our banks and insurance companies could not be supervised.

"It has been developed in investigations conducted by the District Attorney against some of the 154 brokers who have failed in this county within the last fifteen months, that there were those who had criminal records and who were doing business as brokers; that there were persons who had failed under one name and had opened another brokerage business under other names; that there were those who systematically practised bucketing, converting to their own use their customers' money and traded against their customers' orders; and there were those who stole their customers' money.

"Surely the crowd of crooks and thieves would not have been permitted to continue business by the State Superintendent of Banks, if the Sheridan law had been in effect during the past thirteen months, the people of New York would have been richer by over $100,000,000, for this is the sum which has been taken from them by the bucketeers in that time."

Mr. Banton said that the Martin law, to which Mr. Greene referred as a means of curbing bucketeers, was useless, and that under that law the Attorney General of the State "must pounce before the crook does his crooked act."

NINE MONTHS' LIMIT ON NEW FARM LOANS

Federal Board Frames Rules—$60,000,000 Fund Credited for the System.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Federal Farm Loan Board, charged with the administration of the new Government-Financed Intermediate Credit Banks, completed today the regulations for the system's operation.

The $60,000,000 capital, authorized by the law establishing the banks, has been credited to the Farm Loan Board by the Treasury. Indications were given, following a conference today between Commissioner Lobdell of the board and Secretary Mellon, that $1,000,000 will be turned over to each of the twelve banks immediately upon the issuing of charters. Additional funds will be supplied as needs arise.

The board plans, temporarily at least, to hold loans made under the new law to a basis of nine months' maturity.

A construction of the law's provisions, made public by Commissioner Lobdell, was agreed upon in the recent conference of the board with the Land Bank Presidents. It includes the following:

"Direct loans cannot be made to individuals. Direct advances may be made to co-operative marketing associations or live stock associations secured by warehouse receipts for staple agricultural products or by chattel mortgage on live stock.

"No such loan may exceed 75 per cent. of the market value of the agricultural product or live stock.

"Loans may be rediscounted for national and State banks, savings banks, trust companies, agricultural credit corporations and incorporated live stock loan companies.

"No paper can be rediscounted upon which the borrower has been charged a rate more than one and one-half per cent. in excess of the discount rate of the intermediate credit bank of the district.

"Ample funds will be available for loans to facilitate ordinary marketing but none to support speculative holding of farm products."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said today that in order to get the full benefit of the provisions for marketing credit, farmers should see to it that the warehouses in which they expect to store their products on the way to market are licensed under the Federal law. There should be a large increase, he said, in the number of warehouses which handle grain and other farm products.

LADY WARWICK OFFERS A LABOR 'CHEQUERS'

Socialist Countess's Essex Home to Be a Place for Week-End Party Conferences.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—The Labor Party is to have a "Chequers" of its own. "Chequers" is the country residence which Lord Lee of Fareham gave for the use of the Prime Minister of the day and at which many conferences were held during Mr. Lloyd George's Premiership.

Lady Warwick, who is known as "the Socialist Countess," has now offered the Labor Party the use of her beautiful Essex residence, Easton Lodge, near Dunmore.

"My offer," she said tonight, "has been accepted by the National Executive of the Labor Party. A subcommittee of the Executive has been appointed and the members are coming to Easton Lodge for a week-end visit, when we shall thrash the matter out. My idea is that Easton Lodge shall be looked upon as the 'Chequers' of the Labor Party—a place of rural quiet, where conferences may be held from time to time.

"The time is coming, of course, when Labor will be installed at Chequers' itself, but until that happy day Easton Lodge may prove to be a useful substitute. I feel that the Labor Party ought to have the advantage of restful country environment for discussions among themselves or with delegates from abroad.

"My proposal has met with the enthusiastic approval of Mr. H. G. Wells, who lives not very far away. He wants his own home to be regarded as a sort of overflow Labor 'Chequers' when Easton Lodge gets crowded out."

HYLAN SEEKS POWER BY SPECIAL BILLS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—With the Smith home rule program in jeopardy, the Hylan Administration is seeking special legislation that would enable the Board of Estimate to abolish by a majority vote existing city departments or consolidate them with other departments "for the good of the service."

The bill is similar to a measure as proposed while Mitchel was Mayor. It then had the backing of the Citizen's Union, City Club and other civic organizations in New York City as an approach to home rule. This year support from these organizations is not forthcoming. They feel, according to one of their spokesmen, that the powers might be abused by Mayor Hylan to make a drive against Controller Craig or give enhanced importance to his favorites.

The bill was brought to the Capitol tonight by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walling, who represents the city at the capitol. Mr. Walling said that it would be pressed with all the resources at the command of Mayor Hylan.

gregating $3,168,788. Then the Governor points that $3,300,000 has been directly appropriated from current revenues for new highway construction, when this item could have been met last year with what was left out of the last good roads bond issue.

Construction work to eliminate fire hazards of State institutions this year, the Governor states, will be $2,800,700 in excess of what was allowed last year. He points to $1,500,000 appropriated for the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital at Kings Park and $800,000 to indemnify owners of slaughtered tubercular cattle and $604,073 immediately in order that the barge canal may be put in shape for operation when the season opens."

The Governor points out that part of the payroll increase is made up of an item of $184,030 to extend the work of the Cornell College of Agriculture, and $64,500 for the return of game protectors, forest rangers and fire observers, whose work was done in part during the Miller regime by the State Constabulary.

Adding up statutory, extraordinary improvements and other needs that did not enter into last Year's budget, the total, according to the Governor, would be $18,413,496. Mr. Smith says there should be considered in addition deficiencies of $6,462,746—a grand total of $24,876,741. He said $5,646,590 should be deducted for extraordinary items in last year's budget not occurring in the budget this year.

Cuts Difference to $19,230,851.

"Deducting that from the grand total, we have a difference of $19,230,851," the Governor said, "which would indicate that, so far as the total estimated appropriations this year are concerned, in view of statutory increase, in view of extraordinary appropriations, in view of deficiencies that were well known last year, the increase in the budget is easily explainable.

"If the Legislature of this year pursued the policy of neglecting known appropriations, this total could be much lower, but we would then not be making provision for the support of Government and would only find ourselves confronted with these delayed items one year from now.

"We heard a great deal of talk about putting the Government of the State on a pay-as-you-go basis. The above figures do not indicate that that was done. They indicate the contrary, and the appropriation bills this year, totaling close to $150,000,000, will absolutely and positively establish and fix a 'pay-as-you-go' policy.

"To my way of thinking, it is a good thing that the people of the State have all the facts and not be lulled into a temporary slumber by the belief that the cost of their Government is going down when, in reality, by a process of deferring payment, it is going up. False economy brought about by postponing payment of known debts results in doubling of costs next year, if the obligations are met in full."

APPLEBY GIVES UP PROHIBITION POST

WILL PRACTICE LAW HERE

Liquor Bandits Get $50,000 Haul by Boring Into Cellar of Republic Storage Co., Inc.

John D. Appleby, who was Prohibition Divisional Chief for New York and New Jersey until he was transferred to Boston March 1, has tendered his resignation from the Federal service to take effect on March 15, it was disclosed yesterday at local prohibition headquarters. It is understood that Mr. Appleby will open law offices in New York City. Mr. Appleby came here yesterday from Boston and confirmed reports of his resignation. He said:

"My work in the department, because of the steadfast support of my superiors and men, has been most pleasant. Commissioner Roy A. Haynes and E. C. Yellowley have especially supported me in all my efforts to uphold the law. Of course, we have not been able to accomplish all that we desired, and that is the one regret I have in leaving the service.

Mr. Appleby, who will be succeeded by Charles J. Smith of Ohio as Divisional Chief at Boston, was appointed Departmental Chief of the States of Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and part of Texas, with headquarters at Little Rock, Ark., on Aug. 28, 1921. He came to New York with Mr. Yellowley and was appointed Divisional Chief for New York and New Jersey on March 28, 1922.

The Republic Storage Company, Inc., a bonded warehouse at 541 West Thirty-fourth Street, was robbed of $50,000 worth of liquor some time between Saturday night and yesterday morning by criminals who apparently hauled the large quantity of liquor away in a motor truck after they had chiseled through a brick wall to gain entry to the cellar. In offering a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of the robbers, A. B. Harrington, President of the Republic Storage Company, explained last night that it was the second time the company had been robbed within the last six months.

It is believed that the robbers must have taken over two hours to drive a hole through the 8-inch brick wall and make other arrangements to transfer the large quantity of choice whisky. The loss of the liquor was discovered yesterday morning by Ralph Fisher, the engineer of the warehouse. He notified prohibition headquarters and Prohibition Agents Phillips, Van and Doeser were assigned to investigate.

In announcing last night the $1,000 reward offered by the Republic Storage Company for the arrest of the thieves Mr. Harrington stated that there had been sixteen different attempts to remove liquor illegally from the warehouse. Three attempts were successful, he explained.

Mr. Harrington said:

"There is at least one agent from each department assigned to guard each of our warehouses where, by authorization of the Government, we accept whisky for storage. When these officers leave at 5 o'clock each night there is a Government seal placed upon the door and even should our employes, whom we keep on duty guarding the premises all night, hear a burglar at work within, they would not be authorized to break the seal and investigate.

"If the Government is not to keep a man on guard all night it is ridiculous that watchmen we place there must stay outside the premises."

Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black signed an order yesterday directing the police and Prohibition agents to show cause why they should not be restrained from interfering with a quantity of liquor stored in the Hofbrau Haus, 1,214 Broadway, and 32-34 West Thirtieth Street. Justice Mitchel L. Erlanger in Equity Term of the Supreme Court will hear argument on the motion next Thursday.

JERSEY GRAND JURY MAY GET MOVIE 'PLOT'

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 12.—In a report presented to the Legislature tonight the Special Committee named some weeks ago to inquire into charges that Senators and Assemblymen had been or were to be bribed for votes in support of a bill legalizing Sunday motion pictures, recommended that the prosecutor of Mercer County lay the entire matter before the local Grand Jury to the end that some one be indicted and tried for perjury.

The charges of bribery were contained in a newspaper statement given out by the Rev. Frank Ritter, pastor of the Waverly Congregational Church of Jersey City, on the witness stand before the Legislative Committee. The minister testified that his statement was based on his talk with Lionel Wilson, an investigator for the Society for the Prevention of Crime in New Jersey. Mr. Wilson, when sworn, stated that he had repeated to the clergyman a conversation he had overheard between Fred Hensel and Louis Bolinger, Jersey City "movie" men. Each of these men flatly denied having made any of the statements attributed to them.

As all of the witnesses were under oath, the committee holds that perjury was committed during the taking of testimony. The committee also said the minister was subject to censure for having circulated charges for which he had no proof.

FEAR CRUSADERS AID BAD BOOKS' SALE

SAYS THEATRE INVITED SUIT

Thinks Sumner Has Turned Obscure Works Into Best Sellers by Prosecution.

Chief City Magistrate McAdoo made public yesterday a letter to Supreme Court Justice Ford commending the Clean Books League organized by Justice Ford, but pointing out some of the pitfalls in the way of the literary reformer which he had been taught, he said, by "long and painful experience."

Unpopular and obscure works have been put in the best-seller class by injudicious prosecution for immorality, according to Magistrate McAdoo, while many a failing play has been turned into a success overnight by the onslaught of a reformer.

The Chief Magistrate said that, within the last few days, an effort had been made to induce him to start a dilatory prosecution against a drama now playing.

"And I am convinced," continued the Magistrate, "that the theatre people themselves were behind the movement to advertise their thoroughly nasty, rotten production."

The letter was written by Chief Magistrate McAdoo to explain that, though absent from the meeting of the Clean Books League, he was in sympathy with its purposes. The league is preparing an amendment to submit to the Legislature to make it easier to prosecute an evil book. In his letter Magistrate McAdoo said:

"I have had a long and painful experience as a Police Commissioner and a Magistrate dealing with indecent and immoral plays and books. In my opinion the law has broken down in effectively dealing with such matters.

Blames Higher Courts.

"This break-down, in my judgment, is not because there is an insufficiency of statutory law, but by reason of the decisions of the reviewing courts. The sound rule with reference to testimony in these cases was laid down in the case of People vs. Muller (1884-94, N. Y.), that whether a book or play is indecent, immoral or obscene is to be determined by their reaction on the ordinary citizen, the every-day man and woman of average intelligence, and having regard to what is conventionally considered decent and moral. In that case, as you know, the Court ruled that the evidence of artists, professional writers and all others having a personal or pecuniary interest in the productions of plays, paintings and books, was incompetent.

"The objection will possibly be raised against this rule that the law should also exclude the evidence of those who deal, as it were, professionally with morals. I am quite sure, for instance, that a court or jury would be much more impressed by the evidence of a disinterested and obviously impartial citizen acting on individual initiative as to whether a book or a play was indecent, immoral or obscene as against that of even Mr. Sumner, excellent and conscientious man as he is.

Disclaims Slap at Sumner.

"Please understand I am not criticising Mr. Sumner, although I think his judgment, as I wrote him, was not good in resurrecting old and somewhat classical works erotogenical in character and which were found only in the libraries of certain types of men who were willing to pay a high price for them.

"Recently, after certain of these books received a great advertising in the courts, I read several catalogues in which the price has gone down from $50 to $5, and they are being more widely circulated than probably ever in their whole history.

"I have become so convinced of the ineffectuality of the proceedings under the law and the circumstantial environment, and having regard to the considerable minority of people who like these things and want to read them, that I have given it up as hopeless, under existing circumstances, to punish these people who write or produce these plays and books that make, and are intended to make, an appeal to base and lascivious minds and to bring marriage and married life into ridicule and contempt.

"If you attack such a play or a book now you only advertise it for the class of people who want just that sort of thing. In the last few days I was asked to begin what would have turned out to be a long dilatory proceeding against a play, and I am convinced that the theatre people themselves were behind the movement to advertise their thoroughly nasty, rotten production.

"The only way to deal with the play which comes under the statute is to issue a warrant, if the complaint justifies it, and then have the police do their duty in closing the theatre, treating it as a common nuisance.

Finds No Merit in Popularity.

"On one occasion where I agreed to look at a play before taking final action, the management pointed to the audience which packed the house to the roof as a vindication of the play itself. I said to him, why if you make it a little more indecent, you would have to roof Central Park to hold the sort of people who crave such spiced and poisonous so-called amusements. But this is too big a subject for a letter.

"The trouble now is that individual citizens will not come forward, complain to the Police Department, if necessary go into court as a public duty, and give evidence against these people."

Justice Ford said yesterday that the amendment to the present law covering indecent publications would be ready to present to the Legislature in a short time.

CANADIAN UNIONS ROUSED.

Decision International Brotherhood is Illegal to Be Appealed.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 12.—Appeal will be taken to the Manitoba Court of Appeals by the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers against the judgment handed down Saturday by Justice Galt declaring that organization to be illegal and "in restraint of trade," it was announced today by counsel for the Brotherhood.

The judgment was given in a suit brought by the Brotherhood against Samuel Starr, former secretary, to force an accounting of funds.

MONTREAL, March 12.—The decision of Justice Galt of Winnipeg that the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers had no standing in Canadian courts, because it was "an illegal body operating in restraint of trade," will be taken up at a special meeting of the executive committee of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, labor leaders predicted today. An appeal to the Privy Council is likely.

The decision, which, if upheld, might lead to the outlawry of all labor unions in the Dominion, occasioned great surprise here.

Mexican Woman Says Inventor's Ancestors Ruled Over Mexico's Buried City.

HE IS DUTCH AND SCOTCH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, March 12.—America's greatest inventor, Thomas Alva Edison, is the descendant of Aztec Kings and has royal blood in his veins, according to Excelsior, which publishes pictures of Edison and Señora De Alva, who claims that Edison is her second cousin. The pictures show a great resemblance, especially in the nose, mouth and chin.

Señora De Alva has documents showing that the great inventor descends in a straight light from an Aztec ruler who had as his kingdom the City of Teotihuacan, now famous for its buried city and the only pyramids on the American Continent.

The family name before the conquest was Ixtilxochitl, Tomas, founder of the family, was baptised by the Duke of Alva, taking the name of Tomas de Alva Ixtilxochitl. Twenty-five sons were born to Tomas, the third son being the grandfather of the American Edison. Pascual, the third son, was the father of Tomas De Alva, who married an English woman named Edison, adding her name to his as is the custom in Latin countries, starting the family line of De Alva Edison.

Guadalupe de Alva, now 75 years old, living near Mexico City has the birth certificate of the original Thomas de Alva Cortes, son of Thomas Ixtilxochitl. She states her father had often spoken of his nephew who lived in the United States and was an inventor. She adds that during 1916 a number of Americans, including one college professor, visited her home looking for proofs of a family connection.

Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard, has no Mexican blood in his veins. Neither has he Spanish blood. This was the statement yesterday of William H. Meadowcroft of Boonton, N. J., Edison's personal representative and private secretary, who has written a history of Edison's life, referring to a dispatch from Mexico City.

The inventor and his wife left their home at Llewellyn Park, West Orange, last Thursday for Fort Myers, Fla., where they will spend from four to six weeks. Meadowcroft, who is in charge of Edison's industries during the latter's absence, said yesterday:

"There is no truth in the report whatsoever. Some Indian tribe claims Edison for its very own about every ten years or so. From Spain come reports every five years that Edison has Spanish blood in him."

Meadowcroft declared that the ancestry on Edison's father's side is Holland Dutch, the grandfather having been a Baptist Minister. On the mother's side, the lineage is Scotch. Edison's mother's maiden name was Nancy Elliott.

Alva, Edison's middle name, seems to be the cause of all the confusion, the historian said, due to the similarity of the name among Spaniards and Indians.

At Prices Attractively Low

No rug so fits the atmosphere of a modern Colonial house as the hooked rug, for it was in the original Colonial homestead that the hooked rug of our grandmothers was born.

Our grandmothers made lovely braided rugs, too, and laid them as warm spots of color on chill bedroom floors.

Today, New England housewives are using the same naive, colorful patterns our grandmothers used and, for pin money, are weaving charming reproductions of the old rugs so that our own bedroom floors may be lovelier for these rugs today.

Both groups of rugs come in dozens of sizes, varying by inches only. The following are average sizes and prices:

RECKLESS MOTORIST KILLS JOHN F. M'CABE

DRIVER SPED ON, UNHEEDING

Victim Dies of Shock and Injuries—Was Foreman of The Times Proofroom and Widely Respected.

John F. McCabe, day foreman of the proof room of THE NEW YORK TIMES, in whose employ he had been for nearly thirty years, was run down on Saturday night by a speeding automobile, running without lights and on the wrong side of the street, a few blocks from his home at 906 Newkirk Avenue, Brooklyn, while he was returning from the theatre with his wife. Mr. McCabe died yesterday morning from shock and injuries he had received. He was about 66 years old. The automobilist whose car struck him sped on after the accident and the police have not yet succeeded in tracing him.

Mr. McCabe and his wife had left the sidewalk to avoid certain ice-covered pile of material stored there for use in a building operation. He was supporting her by the arm when the automobile, veering from the other side of the street, speeded up behind them without signal. The machine came on so swiftly that Mr. McCabe was unable to get out of the way or even shout a warning to Mrs. McCabe. He was carried about thirty feet on the front of the car and hurled to the pavement.

Without slackening speed the driver swung his car from Newkirk Avenue into Twelfth Street and escaped before any of the witnesses could get the number on the car. Detective Jerehiah Murphy of the Parkville Station is now trying to trace the car from such description as the witnesses can furnish.

Mrs. McCabe says she saw the car when it was more than a block behind them, but it seemed to be on the right side of the street and following traffic regulations. It came on so swiftly, she said, that they did not have time to look around again before it had veered to the wrong side of the street and swept Mr. McCabe from her side.

Another motorist stopped to aid Mr. McCabe, who was in a semi-conscious condition and could only say, "Take me home." This motorist said that the driver of the other car was speeding along carelessly without either headlights or tail light. He told the members of the family he was unable to see the license number but believed the car was a Dodge touring model. Mrs. Mary Komer of 1,525 Newkirk Avenue also told Detective Murphy that the car was speeding recklessly.

Dr. Ernest L. Miller, the Kings County Hospital ambulance surgeon, wished to have the injured man go immediately to a hospital for a thorough X-ray examination to determine whether any bones had been broken, but the members of Mr. McCabe's family were afraid to have him moved in his precarious condition. On Sunday, however, they called in other physicians and a surgeon, Dr. Howard T. Langworthy, who discovered that Mr. McCabe had suffered a broken shoulder. That injury was treated, but Mr. McCabe had suffered so severely from shock that he sank rapidly during Sunday night and died at 10:15 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. McCabe was a printer of the old school whose accomplishments as a proofreader and skill in selecting and supervising others of the craft had spread far beyond the confines of THE TIMES office, although he had always steadfastly refused to leave it. He received his early training in the days when type was set by hand and was known far and wide throughout the printing trade. Shrewd and witty, his advice was frequently sought and often heeded in Typographical Union 6, of which he was one of the oldest members.

He was born in Taunton, Mass., in 1857, and after finishing his education in the public schools there went to work in the Boston newspaper offices. For ten years preceding 1890 he worked in the composing and proofrooms of The Boston Herald. About 1890 he came to this city and for several years worked on the old New York Recorder, joining the proofroom staff of THE TIMES in 1896. He was night foreman of the proofroom until three years ago, when a serious illness befell him. On his recovery he became day foreman.

While he was on duty in the proofroom of THE TIMES one night, about fifteen years ago, Mr. McCabe corrected the proof of a news story telling how an unidentified young man had been killed under the wheels of an elevated train in Brooklyn. When he reached home the next morning he learned that the young man was his son, who had been playing baseball in Prospect Park and accidentally fell under the wheels of the train.

Mrs. McCabe and three children survive him. The children are John F. McCabe Jr. of 1,352 Pacific Street, William F. McCabe and Mrs. Edward Lope.

No plans have been made yet for the funeral, but it will probably be tomorrow, if the Medical Examiner's office finishes its inquiry into the circumstances of the death by that time.

THE NEW YORK TIMES chapel of Typographical Union 6 last night appointed a committee of four to draw up resolutions of regret on the death of their associate of so many years. The members are J. M. Turney, W. A. Penney, H. L. Williams and F. L. White.

Mayor Hylan notified Mr. Kennedy that he probably would be out of town, but said if he was here he would be in the reviewing stand.

RUNS TO DRUG STORE AND DIES FROM SHOT

Staggering into a drug store at Madison Avenue and 117th Street about 8:30 o'clock last night, Abraham Offin, a tailor, fell dead on the floor. He had been shot over the heart in his tailor shop at 55 East 117th Street, and had run out in his shirt sleeves.

The victim was unable to utter a word before his death and the police have no clue to the identity of the murderer or the reason for the shooting. The neighborhood is a very busy one and many people saw the tailor sitting in his shop a few minutes before the murder, but no one saw any one entering or leaving the shop.

All the police could learn was that Offin is supposed to have had a quarrel earlier in the day with a man who did not like the way he had repaired a suit. Robbery is not believed to have been the motive, for the tailor had about $6 and a gold watch in his vest pockets when he died.

The bullet that killed Offin went through his body and was found in his clothing. It was a .32 calibre steel jacketed bullet, evidently from an automatic pistol. The shell was found on the floor.

Offin was 51 years old and lived at 64 West 129th Street. He had owned the tailor shop for years and was well known in the vicinity. Besides his widow, three grown daughters survive him.

Millett, had withdrawn her suit for exclusive possession of her three children by her marriage with Mr. Millett. An agreement signed by Mrs. Malcom and Mr. Millett also declares withdraw all charges made by Mrs. Malcom against Mrs. Millett, whom she accused of being not Miss MacNeal, daughter of a prominent British family, but Irene Laurenz, former artists' model and Paris actress, and an improper person for her daughters to associate with. Mr. Millett in turn retracts all the charges against Mrs. Malcom his lawyers were to have made in court on Wednesday.

6 DAYS ADRIFT, SAVED AS MINDS TOTTERED

could and holding off sparingly on the water. We had a lot of tobacco with us and we kept smoking and this sort of kept us up. Occasionally we saw a ship but they were always bound out and were too far away for us to make ourselves heard. They didn't seem to see our signals, because none of them ever took notice of us. I reckoned it would be foolish for us to start up the engine and give 'em a chase.

"Tuesday evening we finished the food and the fresh water went out. We had a bottle of rye with us, but when we tried to drink it we only got more thirsty. I tried to boil some of the sea water, but it didn't work. Then I tried, I guess it was Wednesday morning, to boil some more and I put some coffee and sugar into it, but it was a damned sight saltier than the water itself. It tasted rotten and we were mighty thirsty, too.

"All this time we were drifting along and hadn't the slightest notion of where we were going. Wednesday we began to feel so we didn't care where we were headin', and we tried chewing tobacco to moisten up our mouths. It worked pretty fair, but toward night I got so dry I took some of the salt water.

"On Thursday I took five swigs of the salt water and I got pretty well 'bughouse,' because I grabbed Matthews around the waist and tried to throw him over the side. I was just 'bughouse' for the time, I guess. I don't know whether I slept at all during the whole time, but I guess I did."

Matthews broke in here to say that he had slept now and then, and that every time he awakened he found Captain Smith awake and on the job.

"Chewing" Keeps Them Up.

"The only thing that kept us going at all," the Captain resumed, "was tobacco. We had a hard time keeping the boat afloat in the rough seas and I was kept busy pumping out. Harry was a greenhorn and couldn't stand up at the pump and I had to stick at it and at the steering day and night while he was in the cabin. Sometimes I would lash the wheel while I was pumping. It all depended on the weather.

"There were several times when I thought my time had come, but we stuck it out pretty well until I began taking the salt water. On Wednesday Harry wanted to take some iodine from a bottle I had for cuts. He said that we should split the bottle, and that we should both kill ourselves. I told him I wouldn't do it and that I was going to wait a while longer. I took the bottle away from him and put it in the locker.

"It was very cold out there, and we had to keep our oilskins on most of the time. Of course we were pretty well bundled up when we set out, but we burned every piece of spare wood we had on board trying to keep warm. We even burned the engine box.

"On Friday, along about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, I sighted a ninety-foot schooner which had been here to and was just getting under way on a tack which would bring it somewhere near us. Although I was about crazy from drinking salt water, I knew enough to start the engine, and we started over to meet the vessel. She was the Catherine M. I hailed the Swedish Captain and he got a rope to us and we went aboard. Our motorboat was towed behind.

"The Captain gave us clothes and food, and best of all, fresh water. On Sunday he transferred us to an auxiliary boat that set us ashore.

MEDICINE ACADEMY WANTS $250,000

KEEPS DOCTORS UP TO DATE

Carnegie and Rockefeller Institutions Are Aiding Project for Greater Activity.

The Academy of Medicine announced yesterday that it would try in the next few months to raise $250,000 from its Fellows and their friends to carry out the Academy's part of an arrangement with the Rockefeller Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation to construct and equip a $1,000,000 Academy building at Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street.

The Carnegie Corporation has offered to erect a building to cost about $1,000,000. The Rockefeller Foundation has agreed to contribute an endowment sufficient for the increased needs of the library and enlarged educational activity in the way of keeping the general practitioner in close touch with medical progress. A statement of the Academy continues:

"In this new building the Academy of Medicine hopes to create a medical centre in New York which will be second to none. The success of the effort will mean an institution ranking with New York's public library and its great museums.

"The site and carrying charges to permit occupation of the present building until the new one shall be ready will cost approximately $725,000. Toward this the Academy has in real estate and available funds assets of $500,000. One-quarter of a million dollars is needed to complete the purchase and to provide adequately for the operation of the new building.

"The Academy of Medicine has been maintained for seventy-six years wholly by its Fellows. The general meetings of the Academy constitute a forum for the presentation of subjects in the realm of medicine, of public health, of social welfare and of biological science. They attract from all parts of the world as speakers eminent medical men who feel honored by this privilege.

"The library of the Academy is the intellectual centre of the profession in New York and contains 260,000 volumes. It is the third largest medical library in the world. It is in effect the medical department of the New York Public Library and available to every one. During 1922 upward of 30,000 readers made use of the many opportunities it offers. To replace it would cost upward of a million dollars."

A benefit performance of "Pasteur" will be given at the Empire Theatre on Wednesday night for the building fund. The entire proceeds of this performance are to be used for a memorial to Louis Pasteur in the proposed new building. Ambassador Jules Jusserand and Dr. L. Emmett Holt of The Academy of Medicine will deliver addresses.

FINDS CITY SCHOOLS NEED MORE MONEY

Charter Framer Would Divorce Education Board From Local Government.

More money for the schools is urgently needed, according to Henry de Forest Baldwin, Chairman of the Charter Revision Commission, who explained the commission's proposed charter at the City Club last night.

"It seems quite clear to all the Commissioners that the city will soon be faced with the necessity of raising more money for schools," said Mr. Baldwin. "The better opinion seems to be that the public school system should be divorced as far as possible from the City Government. I have not heard of any serious suggestion that the appointment of the Board of Education should be made from Albany; certainly no member of the commission suggested any such thing.

"The only two methods of appointing the Board of Education that were discussed were either to have them appointed by the Mayor or to have them elected by proportional representation. I am quite convinced that the only satisfactory solution of the problem of financing our educational service will be either to divorce the Board of Education entirely from the City Government, giving it taxing power, in which case, in my opinion, it should be elected, if possible, by proportional representation, or to fix by constitutional amendment a separate tax limit for the educational budget.

"The provisions in the proposed charter relating to the public school system, by requiring a separate school budget, are calculated to lay the foundations for one or the other of these plans."

An accounting in the estate of Mrs. Margaret S. Rutherfurd White, who was the wife of Henry White, former Ambassador to France and Italy and a member of the American Peace Commission, was filed here yesterday. Mrs. White, who died in 1916, was the sister of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. Mr. White's present wife was Mrs. Emily Sloane, widow of W. D. Sloane, whom Mr. White married two years ago. She is one of the eight children of the late William H. Vanderbilt and sister of the late William K. Vanderbilt.

The accounting of Mrs. White's estate gives the value at $238,926 in securities and three parcels of realty at 175 Second Avenue, 234 East Eighteenth Street and 255 Houston Street. She had jewelry worth $16,000, including a pearl necklace worth $5,500 and diamond necklace valued at $1,000. Mrs. White provided $4,800 a year for her son, John C. White of Baltimore, and her daughter, the Countess Margaret Muriel Scherr-Thoss of The Hague, Holland. Mr. White gets the income from the residue for life and upon his death $90,000 each will be paid to the son and daughter.

The petition for the accounting states that a bequest of $5,000 to the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation has been paid and that the accounting has been delayed because the Countess Scherr-Thoss, as the wife of a former officer of the Royal Prussian Cuirassiers, was an alien enemy and the executors deemed it advisable to delay the accounting until peace had been declared.

Edward Perez, 32, of 710 Washington Street, was arrested yesterday by Detective Sergeants Kemp and Strojohan on complaint of Enrique J. Sarchia of Bridgeport, Conn., who alleged Perez had swindled him out of $800 by trick and device.

Sarchia said he met Perez several months ago and that Perez had advised him to draw his money out of a bank and put it in a "tin bank," such as Perez showed him, keeping it always where he could get it in case of need. After following the advice of Perez, who was accompanied by another man, on Feb. 28, Sarchia declared he had taken several drinks with the tin bank advocates and had fallen asleep.

Later he said he found that some one had taken his new bank and substituted one containing only pieces of newspaper. He led the detectives to a coffee house on Roosevelt Street, where Perez was found.

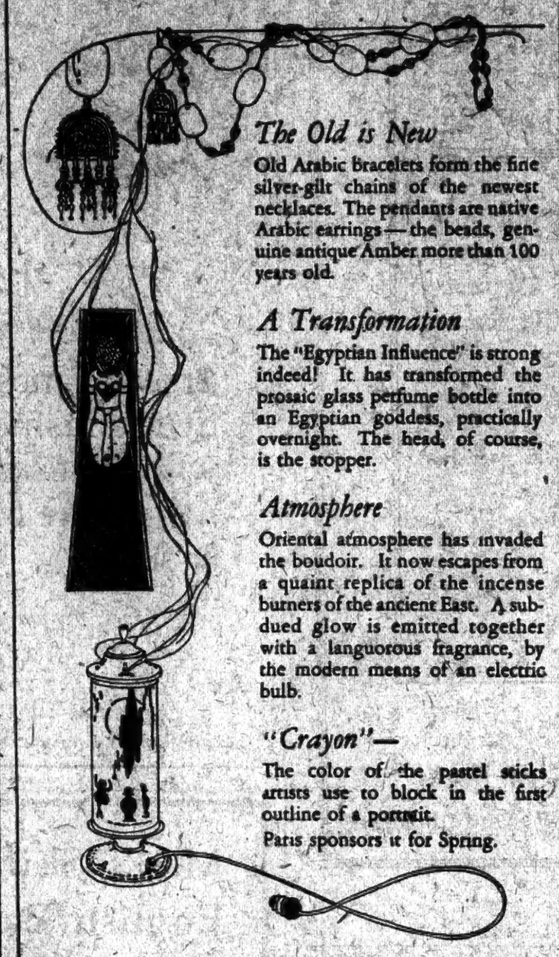
Modes of the Moment



The Old is New

A Transformation

The "Egyptian Influence" is strong indeed! It has transformed the prosaic glass perfume bottle into an Egyptian goddess, practically overnight. The head, of course, is the stopper.

Atmosphere

Oriental atmosphere has invaded the boudoir. It now escapes from a quaint replica of the incense burners of the ancient East. A subdued glow is emitted together with a languorous fragrance, by the modern means of an electric bulb.

"Crayon"—

The Arabinda Jacquette

This new jacquette, of which even the ancients of three thousand years ago might have been proud, is quite as harmonious in coloring as its name is euphonious. The fabric and design are derived from Arabia and India. It is hand-loomed in soft warm tones and bound with henna crepe.

MISS HAY IS PRAISED BY WOMEN VOTERS

UNDER NEW ORGANIZATION

Tributes to Miss Mary Garrett Hay, whose retirement as Chairman of the New York City League of Women Voters became effective at the end of the evening session, constituted the feature of the league's annual convention yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Miss Hay, who had been Chairman of the New York City League and its preceding woman suffrage organization for fourteen years, will continue active in the league, but will do no further executive work.

The convention ratified the choice of the Executive Committee of Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany to be Miss Hay's successor as regional director under a new plan of organization. Mrs. Walter Timme has been elected Chairman of the Manhattan Borough League to succeed Mrs. Tiffany.

Telegrams congratulating Miss Hay upon her long service as a leader of women were received from Governor Alfred E. Smith, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Chairman of the New York State League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, President of the National League, paid a tribute to Miss Hay. "It seems to me that Miss Hay's success—and I think her worst enemy could not fail to concede that she is successful—points to a combination as yet very rare with women, the combination of the ability to deal with individuals and groups of men as well as of women," Mrs. Park said.

"That is the kind of knowledge that many women will get hereafter, but that only a handful of women have at the present time. Miss Hay has remained truly a woman's woman and a woman's hero, and at the same time she has had the friendliest co-operation with men in political work."

Representative F. H. LaGuardia recalled incidents of the long fight for the enfranchisement of women and expressed the hope that the League of Women Voters would continue.

"I like to think of the work that you will be called upon to accomplish during the coming years," Miss Hay said in her farewell address. "Until there is compulsory civic and political education you will have to help educate the voter and give out information like that contained in the questionnaire. You will have to do more work among women, reaching out to the thousands immured in their homes and to the foreign born. You will have to help in the selection of women candidates so that they will be of a higher order.

"You will do fine work advancing welfare and reform legislation. And I want to advise you to back only such bills as are really needed. Congress passes more bills in one year than the British Parliament does in twenty, and our State Legislatures grind out laws in an endless stream. Remember the poor men and women who have to obey these thousands of laws and act with sense and discrimination."

At the close of the evening session the members of the league gave a gold watch to Miss Hay in appreciation of her long and successful leadership.

Other speakers included Mrs. Raymond Brown, Miss Rose Young, Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. Willard Straight, Mrs. Walter Timme and Mrs. H. Edward Dreier. Miss Ella Sherwin, Corresponding Secretary of the Women's Equal Opportunity League, and Miss Frances Perkins, member of the Industrial Board of the State Department of Labor, discussed whether special labor legislation was advantageous to the cause of women.

The convention adopted resolutions endorsing the bills for an eight-hour workday and a minimum wage for women—the bill of Senator Nathan Straus Jr., to enable the State to take advantage of the Sheppard-Towner Maternity act—and a bill to place women upon an equal footing with men in performing jury duty, and advocating the restoration of the direct primary for nominating State officers, United States Senators and Justices of the Supreme Court.

Creamier Milk
Convince Yourself

DAIRYLEA is a new milk, so much richer and creamier that it improves the taste of everything with which it is used.

It looks like cream, it has the smooth richness of cream and the true flavor of cream.

On the table—and in the kitchen

Serve Dairylea with coffee—the coffee-lovers will be delighted with its creaminess. Pour it over the morning cereal, slightly diluted with whole milk if the family prefers it. Use it in making thick, rich cocoa for the children.

Try Dairylea in your cooking and baking. Smooth cream soups, rich sauces and dressings for vegetables, better cakes and cookies and home-made bread—you can make all these with creamy Dairylea.

You couldn't have purer milk

It is precisely the same milk that you get in the milk-bottles every day.

Nothing is added; some of the water is removed by the most safeguarded and modern methods of evaporation. This process concentrates the precious butter-fats and increases the creaminess.

The result is this creamier evaporated milk—richer, thicker, better. Ask your grocer today for one or two cans of Dairylea Milk and convince yourself.

When you buy Dairylea, you not only get creamier milk, but you also get the purest, best milk in the world.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, as Health Commissioner of New York City, said, "New York's milk is the best in the world, and the cheapest food at the price."

The Dairylea Test that safeguards quality

The severest test of evaporated milk is the way it tastes in coffee. For this reason in every Dairylea plant a coffee percolator is constantly going and every day's shipment of Dairylea is subjected to the coffee test. If it fails to produce good-looking, good-tasting coffee in our laboratories, that lot of milk is rejected.

This test insures that when you serve Dairylea at breakfast, in coffee, or on fruits and cereals, you will be delighted.

SEEK TO SAVE A BOY FROM THE GALLOWS

LAD SHOT DEPUTY SHERIFF

Pleaded That He Was Trying to Protect His Brother, at Whom Officer Was Firing.

Millions of boys in the United States through executive representatives of their organizations in this city, joined in telegraphing yesterday to Governor Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia urging him to prevent the hanging on next Friday of 15-year-old Ralph Baker. Ralph, with his brother George 23 years old, was convicted several months ago of shooting and killing Deputy Sheriff J. W. Morton at Durham, Ga.

Evidence at the trial of the brothers in Walker County revealed that the Deputy Sheriff was killed by the younger boy after George had been shot by the officer and while they were struggling for possession of the Deputy Sheriff's pistol. It was shown that Ralph, who was alleged to be mentally defective, had wrenched a pistol from his brother a few minutes before the killing when he found George brandishing it at the railroad station at Durham. Deputy Sheriff Morton came along and tried to arrest George, who had been drinking.

George, an athletic youth, attacked the Deputy Sheriff, who drew his pistol and fired several shots at George. Ralph testified that he thought Morton was intent on killing his brother and that he crept up behind the Deputy and shot him through the body. The prosecution tried to show that Ralph, who was only 14 years old at the time, also had been drinking.

Soon after the brothers were sentenced to be hanged movements were started in several parts of Georgia to save at least the younger Baker from the gallows. Petitions were sent to Governor Hardwick to commute the sentence of both boys to life imprisonment. Governor Hardwick announced a short time ago that he would consider all these petitions before the time for the imposition of the death sentence arrived.

It was understood that the Governor was awaiting the report of the State Prison Commission on a hearing on the case brought about by R. D. Baker, the father of the condemned youths. Representatives of numerous local bodies in Georgia attended the hearing and advocated commutation, many of them declaring that a 14-year-old boy, and especially one whose mental faculties were impaired, could not possibly realize the enormity of his crime.

Reports which have reached boys' organizations throughout the country in the last week have indicated that Ralph might have to pay the extreme penalty. Fence petitions from boys' organizations the country over were sent to the National Boys' Work executive organization here.

The subject came up yesterday before a regular monthly meeting in the Madison Square Hotel. Philip D. Fagans, President of the executives' organization, who also is the President of the Woodcraft League of America, urged action, especially in behalf of Ralph, and the body voted unanimously to send the following telegram to Governor Hardwick:

At a meeting held today of executives representing national movements engaged in work for boys throughout all parts of the United States, including Boys' Club Federation, Community Service, Playground Association, Boys' Work Department International Y. M. C. A., Big Brothers' movement, Jewish Welfare, Woodcraft League of America and Boy Scouts of America, reaching millions of boys throughout all parts of the United States, it was voted that a petition be respectfully presented to you on behalf of the boys of America that some way be found to avoid the hanging of Ralph Baker, fifteen-year-old boy in your State, because of his extreme youth and that consideration be given to development of some plan whereby this lad may be given a chance to make good. We are confident that the boys of America, if they but had the chance, would speak as one in support of this earnest plea.

PHILIP D. FAGANS.

A copy of the telegram was sent to the Georgia Prison Commission at Atlanta. It was understood that the Prosecutor of Walker County opposed interference with the execution of the death sentence on the ground that Ralph Baker was 19 years old and that he and his brother were fully capable of realizing the seriousness of the crime. On the other hand, it was said that woman's organizations throughout the country, and particularly in Georgia, had been urged to aid in saving the younger boy's life. If Governor Hardwick and the Georgia Prison Commission ignore the pleas for clemency in Ralph's case, he will be the youngest person ever legally hanged in that State.

40 KLANSMEN INVADE CHURCH IN NEWARK

Astonishment was expressed in official circles here yesterday over the boldness of the Ku Klux Klan in sending forty hooded and gowned Klansmen to a public service in the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Newark, N. J., Sunday evening. Belief was expressed that, although the Klan has a large membership in New York City, nothing of that kind could happen here without police interference.

The forty Klansmen entered the Newark church, which is at New York Avenue and Ann Street, while the choir was singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." They marched up the main aisle and one of them, later introduced as "the Exalted Cyclops," mounted the pulpit and shook hands with the pastor, the Rev. Parris C. Greenley. The latter read a text and introduced "the Exalted Cyclops," who, without removing his mask, said:

"This is a white man's organization for exalting the Caucasian race and teaching the doctrine of white supremacy. This does not mean, as some would have you believe, that we are enemies of the colored and mongrel races, but does mean that we are organized to maintain the solidarity of the white race.

"This is a Gentile organization, and as such has as its mission the interpretation of the highest ideals of the white Gentile people. However, we sing no hymns of hate against the Jew.

"It is a Protestant organization and its membership is restricted to those who accept the tenets of true Christianity, which is essentially Protestant. We can say to the world that our fathers founded this as a Protestant country and our purpose is to establish and maintain it as such. While we will support energetically the principles of Protestantism, we will also maintain the principle of religious liberty as essential for the future growth and development of this country."

The speaker denied that any Klansmen had been concerned in the Mer Rouge murders in Louisiana and asserted that nowhere did Klansmen violate the law or take it into their own hands.

The pastor followed the address with a sermon on "Americanism," without mentioning the Klan by name. He admitted after the service that the visit of the Klansmen had been expected and that arrangements for it had been made with him in advance.

The New York City police were reported yesterday to have accurate information concerning the Klan membership in the city, and to estimate it at about 10,000. There were said to be thirty policemen who are Klansmen, including a Lieutenant and two detectives. Denial was made of the report that five police Captains were Klansmen or that any high public officials in New York City were known as Klansmen to the police.

GLASS

An Egyptian Heritage

Historians credit Egypt with being the birthplace of the present-day glass industry, glassware having been made there as far back as the time of the XVIIIth Dynasty.

So the art of making glass is as old as remote antiquity; and even in those days the work of the glass-makers showed a peculiar skill which has never been surpassed by any other people from the standpoint of exquisite architectural delicacy.

When Egypt passed under Roman domination in 30 B. C., the Romans apparently learned the secret of Egyptian glass craftsmanship, and in the first centuries of our era the art of glass-making was developed in Rome and other Italian cities to a point only equalled by the ancient Egyptians.

Venetian glassware, first made in Venice in 1090, reached the highest perfection, with regard both to form and decoration, in the sixteenth century, and is to-day famous throughout the world.

Three hundred and twenty-eight establishments in this country reported total value of glass products of $338,303,000 for 1921, of which $83,692,000 was for the account of bottles and jars, representing the largest single item in the total.

Little did the Egyptians, the Romans or the Venetians dream that their craftsmanship in making glass objects would centuries afterward develop an industry of such magnitude.

Great as is the manufacture of glass, it is only one of a thousand industrial monuments that bear testimony to the commercial progress of America. Genius, skill, determination and, by no means least, proper banking facilities, have been factors in their upbuilding.

For eighty-five years we have used our resources and experience in furthering legitimate enterprise. We are never formal with our customers, so if you wish to talk over banking relations just say so and we will send a representative to see you.

In 1838 this Bank occupied one floor in a very inconspicuous building. To-day, in its own building, the business of the Bank necessitates the use of eight entire floors—about 50,000 square feet of space.

She Can't See A Glow From An Unlighted Lamp

WHEN you "jiggle" the receiver hook rapidly in an effort to get immediate response to your recall signal, you expect the operator to see a signal lamp that barely flickers or does not light at all.

But when you move the hook up and down s-l-o-w-l-y, the signal lamp glows and goes out at regular intervals and thus attracts the operator's attention.

Your line is only one of several she is handling and watchful as her eyes are, she cannot serve you properly unless you allow the signal lamp to function correctly.

The next time you wish to recall the operator, remember that she cannot see a glow from an unlighted lamp. Move the hook up and down s-l-o-w-l-y.

Visit a central office and see the signal lamp and other apparatus in operation. You can arrange for this trip at any of our business offices

Millions of Americans start every day under a handicap because lack of sleep-comfort has disturbed or cut short the rest which should have restored their vigor and energy.

A recent Government survey of 12,000 homes in 92 cities showed the average family buying one mattress every five years and paying $10.11 for it. Any mattress sold at such a price is little better than lumpy junk after one or two years' use. What a fraud on health at the end of five years?

Set aside enough time today to call on your furniture dealer and examine Simmons springs and mattresses of buoyant new material—now offered at prices to fit any pocketbook. Compare them with your own bedding and decide whether health, vigor and personal success are not worth the investment in Simmons sleep comfort

"I have had people come out to see my apartment to whom I had talked at great length before they came; and they could not conceive of the room in the apartment at the price that we got it for. They were used to little cramped city apartments or they lived in houses and could not see how anyone with a family could live in an apartment.

"We had been living in the country on account of the children and had looked for a long time for an apartment. We didn't believe it was possible for three children and two grownups to live in an apartment until we came to Jackson Heights and saw the convenience of the rooms and the joys of living there with no furnace to care for, and lots of hot water.

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes of 5 to 7 rooms, 2 and 3 bathrooms, are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life, and yet live in New York City.

DE FOREST SHOWS HIS 'TALKING' MOVIES

NOT FOR PHOTOPLAYS NOW

Inventor Thinks "Phonofilm" Will Be for Instrumental Pieces and Lectures.

The Phonofilm invented by Dr. Lee de Forest, as announced some months ago, said now to have been brought to the marketable stage, was demonstrated yesterday afternoon at Dr. de Forest's studio at 318 East Forty-eighth Street. The instrument reproduces sounds in synchronization with motion pictures. The sound record is photographic and occupies a narrow margin of the film on which the pictures appear. It is converted into sound simultaneously with the picture projection by the same machine, so that one sees the animated figures on the screen and hears the voices and music accompanying their actions.

Only instrumental musical numbers were offered in the demonstration yesterday and Dr. de Forest's opinion is that the Phonofilm will be used more for such acts than in the development of vocalized photoplays. Motion picture and vaudeville houses will install the Phonofilm equipment, he believes, for special musical and dancing pieces, and perhaps monologues. There will be a dancing act, for example, with its own accompaniment, or a quartet of voices or instruments. The Phonofilm also will be useful for lectures in the educational field, according to Dr. de Forest.

Dr. de Forest uses a standard motion picture camera and projection machine with his sound recording and reproducing attachment. In recording sounds a transmitter is used which transforms the sounds into electric currents. These currents are amplified and modulate an oscillator connected with which is a gas-filled tube called the Photion. The intensity of the light in this tube varies according to the modulations of the oscillator, and its variations are recorded photographically on the margin of the film.

In reproducing the sounds the process is, in a general way, reversed. A light is focused on the film, and the fine lines of the sound record, passing across the slit through which this light comes, produce variations in the light beam, which, so affected, falls upon a photo-electric cell. This cell transforms the light into telephonic currents which are amplified. These currents are then transformed into sounds through loud-speakers.

Dr. de Forest will demonstrate the Phonofilm before the New York Electrical Society soon and after that in a motion picture house on Broadway.

SEES GREAT BEAUTY IN CITY BUILDINGS

"America, known as a commercial nation throughout Europe, is not entirely lacking in love of architectural beauty, according to Eliel Saarinen, winner of the second prize in The Chicago Tribune competition, who arrived here last week from Finland to study city planning and the buildings and museums in New York and Chicago.

"'Europe is mistaken when it thinks that the United States is wholly given over to commercialism,' said Mr. Saarinen, when seen at the Hotel Plaza. 'I have been amazed by the beauty, both exterior and interior, shown in many of the banking and office buildings.

"'Architecture, in my mind, is divided into two branches—love and commercialism. That American architects have combined the two branches is quite evident when one looks at such buildings as the National City Bank, the Cunard Building, the White Star Building and many of the big hotels. The exterior of these buildings gives a pleasing effect and the interior shows that great thought has been given to the comfort of those who occupy them—such magnificent lighting effects and space and arrangement. Beauty is there in the lines of the walls and the placing of the windows; in carefully planned floors and the bright, roomy corridors.'

"This beauty, however, is isolated rather than universal, Mr. Saarinen says, and he deplores the fact that so little attention has been given to city planning. 'All over the city it is just a jumble of buildings,' he explains, 'and the beauty of many of the architectural show places of the city is minimized by their surroundings. Take Madison Square, for instance—one of the city's civic spots. It is ugly. There is a park-an open space—with a tall building here and a flat, squatty little makeshift building adjoining it. Places like Madison Square should be surrounded by beautiful edifices and not by irregular, ungainly stores and office buildings.

"'Many of the public buildings are beautiful, especially the library building at Columbia University. That, I think, is one of the most beautiful buildings that I have seen. The department stores here, too, are a revelation to me. I think they especially show that all is not given over to commercialism, for they are beautiful. I am eager to see the Marshall Field plant in Chicago.'

"Discussing city planning, Mr. Saarinen said that the big cities in the United States undoubtedly were awakening to its importance.

"'I think America has reached a turning point in architecture,' he declared, 'for here in New York the newer buildings show that the love branch of architecture has not been neglected. One of the best examples of group architecture is around Grand Central Station. The magnificent hotels and office buildings there harmonize with their surroundings and make it one of the truly beautiful spots in Manhattan. Of course there is much more to be done—many smaller buildings to be removed, and the open spaces need improvement—but it shows that architecture is looking forward.

"'I am greatly interested in Chicago's city planning move. I am going out there with my associate, Gustoff Strengell, to make a close study of the architectural arrangements of the city, and it is my hope that both of us will be able to help.'

"Mr. Saarinen, accompanied by Mr. Strengell and Bertel Greaman, also a fellow-countryman, who is associated with Dwight G. Wallace, the Chicago architect, will remain in New York for the American Institute of Architecture dinner Wednesday night and will depart for Chicago on the Twentieth Century Thursday afternoon."

DECIDES FILM OWNERSHIP.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—In an opinion handed down today by Associate Justice Holmes, the United States Supreme Court decided that the sole rights to the moving picture film "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse," founded on poems by the late Will Carleton, belong to the Fox Film Corporation. It was understood later from representatives of the Fox interests that producers now showing a film with this title would have either to make a settlement or would have to cease exhibiting the picture.

The Tax that Hurts

IN this week of income-tax reports, the price you pay for being governed comes home to roost on your own pocketbook.

Our taxes threaten our American standard of living—smother ambition—penalize the man who saves, and discourage the man who invests.

To make America a better place to live in, we must devise taxation that will encourage productive enterprise and take the wet blanket off brains and energy. In this week's Collier's, Irving T. Bush shows where your taxes go and the harm they do. Mr. Bush says:

"Our standard of living has been built up on investing about six billion dollars a year in new projects and equipment. We have not been able to make that investment for several years past. We cannot invest one-third less than we used to and keep on raising our standard of living.

"Unless we change our system of taxation the opportunities for your sons and mine are going to be less. We shall either smash up or shrivel up.

"If you have a boy and want to make a real man out of him, do you tell him you will take away half of what he saves? That is just what you are saying to the young men of America today. The more they make themselves a vital, constructive force in the country, the more you will tax them.

"The common sense of taxation, in a nutshell, is: put your taxes upon what people spend and not upon what they save."

America is—always has been—a country of opportunity. To preserve that opportunity for our sons, we must work together toward a new and better plan for organizing our great business of living together. Public opinion—your opinion—must do this. Collier's is helping, not by making up people's minds, but by shaking up people's minds—telling them not what to think, but what to think about.

The alert, substantial men and women who read Collier's look to it as the sound and lively core round which the public opinion of America can be moulded. These people useful and influential in their communities, provide the most responsive market an advertiser of good goods can reach.

POTHIER LOSES PLEA IN CRONKHITE CASE

SAYS HIS COUNSEL ERRED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The appeal of Sergeant Roland R. Pothier, one of the men figuring in the mysterious death of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite, to bring his proceedings for a writ of habeas corpus into the United States Supreme Court, was met by that body today with an order to transfer the matter to the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

A Federal Grand Jury in the State of Washington indicted Sergeant Pothier and Captain Robert Rosenbluth last October, charging them with murder. Pothier was taken before Henry C. Hart, United States Commissioner for Rhode Island, and, after pleading not guilty, was handed over to the custody of the Marshal without bail. Pothier then filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the United States District Court of Rhode Island, but this petition was dismissed.

A few weeks ago the Sergeant's attorney, Major Davis G. Arnold, appealed to the Supreme Court, asking to have the order dismissing the writ set aside and to have the case reviewed. He contended that the crime had not been committed in Federal territory, but in land belonging to the State of Washington. At the same time he submitted an affidavit saying Pothier was without funds and asking leave to prosecute his appeal without being required to prepay fees or costs.

May Yet Reach Supreme Court.

If the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit decides adversely there is no doubt the case will be brought again to the Supreme Court. The importance with which the case is viewed was emphasized today by the exhaustive opinion delivered by Chief Justice Taft.

"Counsel for appellant files the motion setting out in brief the facts of the cause and accompanies it with an affidavit of his own," said the Chief Justice, "alleging that he has examined the case, that he believes that the appellant has a just cause for appeal, that the appellant is without funds and because of his poverty he is unable to pay the costs of the appeal, that his friends and relatives have already expended large sums in his defense, and that during his continued confinement in jail, the American Red Cross has been providing for his sickly wife and child. The affidavit further alleges that the appellant was allowed to prosecute the proceedings before the District Court in forma pauperis.

"Under the statute, the affadavit as to the poverty of the applicant is to be made by himself and not by another, even his counsel."

The Chief Justice set forth the proceedings in Sergeant Porthier's case in Rhode Island and the decision of the District Court of that State declining to discharge the Sergeant. He cited the classes of appeals which might be made from District Courts direct to the Supreme Court.

Must Go to Circuit Court.

"The case presented on this motion comes within none of these classes," said the opinion. "Even if a direct appeal from a conviction under the indictment in the District Court of Western Washington would lie to this Court under Section 238, on the question whether Camp Lewis was within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, still the issue of jurisdiction which Section 238 makes cognizable by this Court on direct appeal is the jurisdiction of the District Court from which the appeal is taken, not that of the Court to whose jurisdiction it is proposed to remove the petitioner. * * *

"Nor is there any question of the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States or of the walidity of a Statue or Treaty of the Uniel States or of a Statute of a State under the Federal Constitution. The assignments of error recite that constitutional questions did arise, but neither the motion nor the record discloses one. The issue is simply whether the specified place of the alleged murder is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, and that does not appear to involve in any way the construction of the Federal Constitution.

"This motion must, therefore, be denied, but the ground upon which we deny it requires us to go further. The Act of Sept. 14, 1922, requires us, when an appeal has been taken to this Court that should have been taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals, not to dismiss the appeal, but to transfer it to the proper Circuit Court of Appeals, which in this case is that of the First Circuit."

GREECE HONORS ROOT AND DR. PRITCHETT

The Government of Greece has conferred upon Elihu Root, Chairman of the Trustees of the Carnegie Corporation, the Cross of Grand Commander of the Royal Order of George I., and the Cross of Commander of the same order upon Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, acting President of the corporation, as a mark of appreciation for the gift of a library building by the corporation to house the Gennadius Library. The insignia of the order was presented to Mr. Root and Dr. Pritchett by the Minister of Greece to the United States.

"The Gennadius Library, now in London, the property of Dr. Johannes Gennadius, dean of the diplomatic corps of Greece, and until recently Minister of Greece at the Court of St. James, is unquestionably the richest and completest collection of its kind in the world," said the announcement of the corporation. "It comprises 50,000 items and is devoted to the illustration of the Hellenic civilization, in all its aspects, from the earliest times down to the present.

"Dr. Gennadius offered to give this library to the American School of Athens on the sole condition that a suitable building be provided for its care and use. This building is being provided by the Carnegie Corporation, which has voted the sum of $250,000 for its erection, the Greek Government having donated the land.

"The building, to be known as the Gennadeion, has been designed by Van Pelt & Thompson of New York, in the classical style, and will be one of the handsomest buildings in Athens. It will be entirely of marble and will occupy a site of conspicuous beauty on the slopes of Mount Lycabettus. When the library is installed, some time in 1923, the American School of Classical Studies at Athens will have unsurpassed facilities for the study of Greek literature, art and civilization, and will be the best equipped of all the foreign learned foundations established at Athens.

"The Carnegie Corporation has repeatedly contributed to the upbuilding of this American institution of learning in Athens and by this latest grant has made possible a notable extension of its scope and influence. It is this gift to learning, in which Greece and all the countries of Europe share, that the Government of Greece has acknowledged in bestowing these decorations upon Mr. Root and Dr. Pritchett."

TRANSIT PROBLEM COMMON.

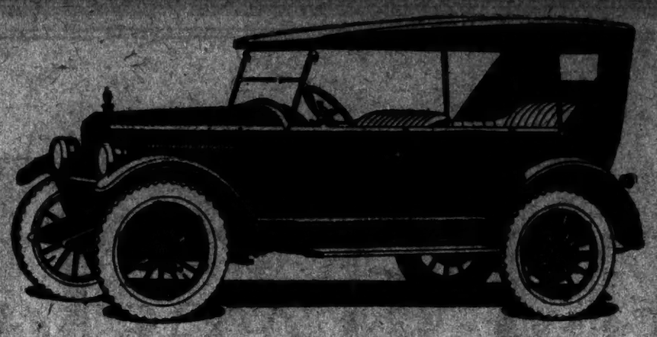
Westchester Finds It Cannot Solve It Alone.

Westchester County cannot solve its difficult transit problems by itself, declared John G. Agar, member of the Westchester Transit Commission, at a luncheon meeting of the county's Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Commodore yesterday. After two years' existence, the commission found that it would have to assist in developing a comprehensive State transit plan, rather than labor only in Westchester's behalf, Mr. Agar said. He added that many had suggested that the West Side subway be extended into Yonkers, while others wanted buses to replace street cars.

"It became immediately apparent that the difficulties were insurmountable," said Mr. Agar.

"It was impossible to get the Transit Commission to recommend use of city credit to construct lines in Westchester County," said Mr. Agar. "In the opinion of the commission there should be a very extensive study made and proper appropriation by the Board of Supervisors for this comprehensive study. New York City won't do it. Westchester will have to do it for itself."

Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the Port Authority, said that "the best citizenry of New York 'had left' the city for Westchester, the Oranges, Nassau County and other suburban localities, and had lost their civic interest in the great city where their business connections are."



Hidden Values

They Keep Essex Young

From the first Essex wins the admiration of owners.

But the greatest Essex enthusiasts are those who have driven their cars 50,000 miles or more. They have discovered the hidden values.

Design and construction details not observable in the new car assert their importance as use increases. They keep the car young.

Essex values extend to the minute details. The finest bearings made are used throughout. They are to an automobile what jewels are to a watch. Parts that wear are inexpensively replaced.

In chassis and body, Essex throughout possesses qualities essential to long hard service. That means economical service, always.

Essex is the only American car with roller bearings in the valve mechanism. This construction overcomes wear and frictional loss at one of the most important points. It prevents noisy valves and saves a big item of replacement expense. All other cars use plain bushings for this vital function. Just another of the hidden values that account for the everlasting goodness of Essex cars.

Flogging Prevents Crime

CANADA keeps down crimes of violence with the lash. A criminal may be whipped before being sent to prison, while he is serving his term and just as he is being released. The cat o' nine tails is the usual weapon, and the number of strokes to be administered is left to the discretion of the judge. Statistics show that crimes of violence are very infrequent in Canada. The whippings are held responsible. Men fear not only the pain, but the indignity of the whippings.

There is much of interest in Charles Frederick Carter's article on crime in Canada, especially where he compares Canadian statistics with those of the United States.

Selling the Investor, too.

LEADING financial and investment houses in the United States now realize that to maintain the market for investment securities and provide for the success of future issues, it is essential to promote the absorption of securities by "ultimate consumers"—individual investors.

This is most efficiently and economically done by advertising in those mediums that most influentially reach the greatest consumer markets. In Chicago the medium is The Daily News,* which by reason of its large home circulation and influence in the "family councils" of financially competent Chicagoans most completely and effectively reaches the great outstanding consumer market in its territory.

Realizing this, the following representative financial houses have each placed in The Daily News, since January 1, 1923, more than 1,000 lines of financial display advertising.

SAYS COAL EXPORTS 'ROB POSTERITY'

WOODIN ON THE SHORTAGE

Former Administrator Blames Conditions on the Five Months' Strike of Miners.

Exportation of coal under any circumstances "robs posterity," F. D. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad, declared in replying to a questionnaire recently sent out by the Committee on Terminal Facilities of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. Mr. Underwood, who was one of many persons connected with the sale or distribution of coal who have answered the questionnaire, attributed the coal shortage to two causes—the anthracite strike and the railway strike, which, he said, "cut down the efficiency of locomotives and cars."

"In carrying on the commerce of the world," said Mr. Underwood, "there should be a reciprocal exchange of coal consumed by steamships and by railways. Scientific purchases of coal based on heat units is a process in daily use. I do not know that it can be applied to domestic users, and its effect on the price probably would not cover the cost of the inspection necessary to accomplish it.

"It is a plain fact that no transportation interest could function perfectly in any twelve months that contained a five months' coal strike and three months' railroad strike," Mr. Underwood said.

E. E. Loomis, President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, takes issue with Senator R. S. Copeland regarding the relation of the railroads to the coal shortage problem. He says:

"The difficulty is that many people, uninformed as to the real facts or with a special object to gain, are engaged in an effort to put all the blame for the present situation on the railroads. For that reason they ignore entirely the fact that anthracite mining was suspended for five months because of the strike of the miners. No matter what the railroads do, the coal shortage caused by the strike cannot be overcome entirely.

"Dr. Copeland and some people who have been to the coal regions recently referred to what they regarded as abundance of coal to be seen standing in cars in yards along the railroad lines. Their immediate assumption is that this coal is an accumulation the railroads are unable to move. None of these people, however, apparently realizes that the coal mines, located on the Lehigh Valley alone, daily fill more than ten miles of coal cars.

"This enormous output, of course, is most impressive as it is assembled in yards prior to being made up into trains. It is being moved promptly, however, as I said in my letter, for if it were not we would never be able to keep the mines supplied with the necessary empty cars which enable them to continue operations. As it is, not one colliery located on the Lehigh Valley has shut down since the miners returned to work because of a coal car shortage."

Mr. Loomis, discussing the labor outcome of the railway strike, said:

"The Lehigh Valley management assured its employes it would make no settlement which would affect adversely the men who stood by it in the emergency and we have been faithful to that pledge. Since then a working force has been built up which is now as large as that we had on July 1, and these men, of their own volition, have formed an organization with which we have made an agreement—an agreement we propose to keep.

"The door has not been closed, however, to all who went on strike. A large number already have returned to work, and we will find places for others, known to be good workmen, where their records are satisfactory.

"Since Oct. 1 we have dumped 750,571 tons of anthracite at Perth Amboy, our coal terminal for New York and New England, which is 238,540 tons more than we dumped during the same period last year. Incidentally, the coal delivered to the Long Island is just twice as much as a year ago."

M. F. Burns of Burns Brothers, coal distributors, in his answer to the questionnaire, says:

"There isn't anything in the world I can suggest that is likely to improve the situation except to recommend that the operators and miners keep closer together and work whenever necessary to assure us of a supply of coal, so, after all, that is, fundamentally, the only thing that is likely to keep a supply of coal available when the consumers want it."

Former Fuel Administrator William H. Woodin replied as follows:

"The present distress from the shortage of anthracite coal is due to the fact that there was a five months' suspension of operations last Summer on account of the miners' strike."

DELAY FOR PAINTED SATIRE.

Magistrate Ryttenberg Reserves Decision Until March 15.

Decision as to whether a satirical painting exhibited at the Waldorf by the Independent artists constitutes an offense against public morals again was postponed yesterday by Magistrate Moses Ryttenberg, presiding in the West Side Court. In this picture the main figures are Christ, William J. Bryan, Andrew J. Volstead and William H. Anderson. The Magistrate reserved decision until March 15, as the briefs were submitted only yesterday morning.

The Magistrate remarked that in his opinion the painting did not violate Sections 1140 and 1141 of the Penal Code, relating to the corruption of public morals by obscene exhibitions, but that it might conceivably fall within Section 43, relating to any willful act disturbing public peace or health, or openly outraging public decency.

SACCO FASTING, IS WEAKER.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 12.—Nicola Sacco, who with Bartolomeo Vanzetti, is awaiting court action on appeals of their counsel from their conviction for the murder of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree in 1921, tonight ende the twenty-sixth day of a hunger strike begun in protest at the law's delays. Jail attendants said Sacco was visibly weaker today.

With nothing to sustain his strength but a daily gallon of water, Sacco has taken to bed to conserve his waning powers. It was reported at the Norfolk County Jail tonight. He can walk, but prefers to rest on his cot most of the time.

The prisoner's wife called at the jail this afternoon and spent two hours in vain efforts to induce Sacco to take food. He persisted in his determination to fast until the court rules on his case.

Motions for a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti will be heard on Friday.

Denies "God of Vengeance" Plea.

A motion to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury which last week indicted two managers and twelve members of the cast of the "God of Vengeance" at the Apollo Theatre for giving an alleged immoral play was denied yesterday in General Sessions by Judge Crain. The motion was mde by Harry Weinberger, a lawyer and owner of the play, who is one of the defendants.

MRS. WELLS HAS ALIBI FOR NIGHT OF MURDER

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, March 12.—The jury was chosen today to try Mrs. Mary Elizabeth "Billie" Wells, charged with second degree murder in the slaying of Captain Pettit, Massapequa Inn owner. Taking of testimony will begin tomorrow morning before County Judge Lewis J. Smith. George Morton Levy of counsel for Mrs. Wells, indicated that the defense would try to prove an alibi.

Mrs. Wells, pale and weary, was apathetic during the morning session of examination of talesmen, but in the afternoon she took interest in the proceedings and advised her attorney on questions directed at the prospective jurors. Aiding Levy in the defense was Miss Helen F. McCormick, former Assistant District Attorney of Kings. Mr. Levy made it clear that the defense would "not ask for sympathy," because of the sex of the defendant, but would prove by witnesses that Mrs. Wells was not at the Inn on Jan. 1 when Pettit was shot.

The jury chosen was: Alexander Strahan, farmer, Plainview; G. C. Conklin, superintendent, Roslyn; Silas H. Williams, retired contractor, Freeport; Edward H. Vandewater, building material dealer, Oceanside; George W. Cox, boat builder, Seacliff; Edward W. Tree, publisher, Freeport; Otis J. Weed, carpenter, Bayville; Herbert W. Phillips, contractor, Farmingdale; Leonard Ritonis, gardener, Glen Cove City; Walter R. Ross, superintendent, Seacliff; Hyman A. Maykis, retired, Baldwin, and Thomas P. Tisdall, linen merchant, Glen Cove City.

PROBATION OFFICER HELD.

CLEVELAND, March 12.—James P. Kirby, in charge of the Common Pleas Court Probation Office, was released in $500 bail on habeas corpus proceedings today, three hours after Common Pleas Judge Walther had sentenced him to an indefinite term in the County Jail for contempt of court.

The sentence came simultaneously with an order to County Prosecutor Stanton from Judge Walther for a complete investigation of rumors of a criminal court "graft ring."

Former Judge L. L. A. Leighley presented the habeas corpus petition, alleging unlawful detention, before the Court of Appeals and a writ returnable forthwith, was granted. Kirby was summoned to the Circuit Court and the hearing on a permanent writ set for March 23.

KEWANEE

A Steel "Hand Tailored" Boiler

One of our foremen in the shops one day referred to the Kewanee All-Steel Boiler as "a hand-tailored boiler." We like the description, because it's true. Each boiler is cut out individually. Each one is given individual care, and each rivet is individually riveted, with tremendous hydraulic pressure.

Every steel plate that goes into the Kewanee Boiler is carefully selected. And after each boiler is completed, it is given a test far in excess of any pressure that it is ever called upon to endure. It is put together in one piece at the factory, delivered in one piece and installed in one piece. No joints to leak—no sections to crack. No wonder it stays on the job forever.

The great result from this "hand-tailored" job is unquestioned quality—strength and endurance in every detail. We don't know how long Kewanee Boilers will last, as we have only been making them thirty years.

And don't forget a Kewanee burns ANY coal and makes more heat with less coal than any other boiler built.

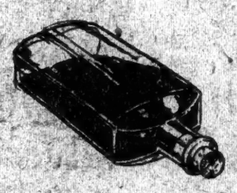
Have You Ever Looked at a Cork?



TAKE a piece of cork in your hand and examine its qualities. Rub it, feel it, press it. Cork is tough. It does not abrade easily.

Throw this piece of cork on the floor and it will rebound. Cork is elastic. It has springy qualities. When compressed it returns to its original shape.

Drop it in water and it floats. Cork is light. Stop a bottle with it and it will confine liquids for years. Cork is waterproof, and nonabsorbent. Cut a piece in two and you will see that it is compact and solid.

How cork is used in linoleum

Cork in powdered form is a basic material used in making linoleum. It combines perfectly with oxidized linseed oil, from which linoleum gets its name.

For linoleum, cork is ground as fine as flour

Here is what we mean by "oxidized" linseed oil: When this liquid is exposed to heat and air, a solid, tough film forms on top. That is a simple form of oxidization. When this tough substance is mixed with powdered cork the two blend together naturally. Pressed on a strong burlap back, you have what is known as linoleum.

For the tread of many feet

Linoleum is used as a floor; it has all the qualities that a good floor should have. It is durable, smooth, and resilient. It is restful to stand or walk on. It is warm, waterproof, and nonabsorbent.

As early as 100 B.C. the peasant of Gaul wore cork sandals cut from the bark of cork oak trees to keep his feet dry

There is another advantage to linoleum. It is produced in many colors and patterns. Armstrong's Linoleum is made in plain colors, in Jaspé or two-tone effects, in carpet inlaids, tile inlaids, and in many different printed designs. Also linoleum rugs, printed and inlaid, for people who live in apartments or houses on short leases.

When properly laid, a permanent floor

We have told you all these things about linoleum so that you will not by any possibility confuse it with other floor coverings that are not made of cork, linseed oil, and strong burlap. When properly laid (not tacked), Armstrong's Linoleum is not merely a floor covering, but becomes a permanent floor, one that with occasional waxing and polishing should look as good as new for many years, and one that will never splinter or need costly refinishing.

How to lay linoleum over wooden floors

In summer wood floors expand. In winter they dry out and contract, with a tendency to open up the cracks between the boards. Your linoleum floor, therefore, should be cemented (not tacked) over a lining of builder's deadening felt which has been previously glued to the bare floor boards. The felt takes up expansion and contraction and gives you a permanent, waterproof, good-looking floor. The added service and wear this method gives are well worth the extra cost.

Linoleum permanently cemented in place requires no stretching or retrimming. Such a floor is smooth and tight

How to tell genuine linoleum

All genuine linoleum has a burlap back that you can see. It does not tear easily. When you see the Circle "A" trademark on this burlap back, you can be sure you are getting the genuine Armstrong's Linoleum, made by the Armstrong Cork Company.

Write for free sample and booklet

Let us send you a sample of Armstrong's Linoleum, and our 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old," containing a score of colorplates of distinctive designs that you can see at good stores. It also shows linoleum rugs, both printed and inlaid.

WILL FOLLOW COAST LINES

Rear Admiral Fullam, Col. Jesse G. Vincent and 33 Others on the Advisory Board.

A network of aerial commercial transportation routes following the waterways and coast lines of the United States will be put into operation as soon as the personnel and equipment can be developed, Charles F. Redden, President of Aeromarine Airways, Times Building, announced yesterday. In connection with the program of expansion, Mr. Redden said that an Aeromarine Advisory Board, consisting of thirty-five industrial, banking and aeronautical men, had been formed to arouse the country to the necessity of developing support of commercial aircraft.

The Aeromarine plans to inaugurate flying boat service between New York and Miami (daily service beginning next Fall); New York and Chicago via Montreal, Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit with stops at these cities; Galveston and Tampico, New Orleans and Havana, New York and Newport, R. I., Los Angeles and Catalina Island and Vancouver, B. C., and Seattle.

The Aeromarine Company, which is said to be the largest operator of flying boats in the world, at present maintains routes from Miami to Nassau and Bimini, and Key West to Havana, in addition to a sightseeing service around Manhattan. Last Summer the company operated a route between Cleveland and Detroit and from this city to Atlantic City and Newport.

Among the members of the Aeromarine Advisory Board announced by Mr. Redden are: Rear Admiral W. F. Fullam, U. S. N. Colonel Sidney D. Waldon, formerly President of the Detroit Aviation Society and a leader in aeronautical development; Colonel J. G. Vincent, Vice President of the Packard Motor Car Company and designer of the Liberty motor; Colonel H. H. Emmons, President of the Detroit Board of Commerce, Allan Jackson, Fifth Vice President of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana; John D. Larkin Jr., Vice President Larkin Soap Company; R. C. Hyatt, Vice President Union Trust Company, Cleveland; W. E. Scripps, Vice President of The Detroit News; E. C. Rennie, President The First National Bank, Miami; E. G. Sewell, President Miami Chamber of Commerce; Professor Edward P. Warner, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; C. J. Tilden, Chairman, Division of Engineering, Yale University; C. F. Marvin, Chief of Weather Bureau; Gordon Lee, formerly Chief of the Automotive Division, Department of Commerce; Colonel H. W. Alden, Chairman of the board, Timken-Detroit Axle Company, and General Alberto Herrera, Chief of Staff of the Cuban army.

Commenting on the project, Mr. Redden said:

"Believing that aeronautical development has now reached a point where it is entitled to public support on a substantial scale, when conducted under proper auspices, we have asked this committee to co-operate with us in our efforts to put the cause of commercial aviation on a permanent basis. In the course of our operations we have built up a fleet of air cruisers and developed a flying organization which has established a record of performance that has never been equaled heretofore except possibly by the United States Air Mail Service. With more than 1,000,000 passenger miles flown and 20,000 passengers carried, we have demonstrated conclusively that flying is safe, and, further, that, given a safe and efficient flying service, the public will take advantage of this newer and speedier means of transportation.

"During the coming twelve months it is our intention to add extensively to the Aeromarine Airways service by opening up new routes and increasing the facilities of present lines, and it is in preparation for this step that we have obtained the co-operation of this committee. Being firm believers in the future of air transportation, as these prominent men are without exception, we are satisfied that their co-operation will be an assurance to the public that this great young industry has now established itself on a sound and permanent basis."

The officers of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., are: President, Charles F. Redden; Vice President, John W. German; Development Director, H. F. Bruno, and Chairman of the board, Inglis M. Uppercu.

THROUGH FIRE TO SAVE DOG.

Patrolman Rescues Couple, Then Returns for Their Pet.

Patrolman Joseph Carberry of the Liberty Avenue Station, Brooklyn, yesterday rescued Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warden from a fire in their home at 3,240 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, carrying them from the second floor to the street, and making a third trip into the building to rescue a pet dog.

The patrolman was driving a motor cycle and side car in which Sergeant Frank Lawless was making his round of the precinct when cries of "Fire!" were heard and smoke was seen coming from the furniture store of Louis Rosen at the foregoing address. Heat had cracked the front windows, and flames were bursting out. Lawless turned in the alarm while Carberry went into the building to see if any tenants were on the second floor. He found Mrs. Grace Warden unconscious from the smoke and her husband, who had been trying to help her out, on the verge of being overcome. Carberry picked up Mrs. Warden, who is a heavy woman, and carried her to the street. Then he returned for her husband. Mrs. Warden was quickly revived and begged the patrolman to save her dog, a French bulldog. Carberry went back for the animal and brought it safely through.

Damage to the two-story building was estimated at about $8,000.

SLEEPING SICKNESS GAINS.

Influenza Cases Also Show an Increase, With Fewer Deaths.

There was an increase for the week-end in the number of cases of sleeping sickness reported to the Department of Health. Twelve were reported yesterday and nine Saturday, while the deaths were four as against two on Saturday.

Influenza cases were 130, of twenty-one more than on Saturday, while the deaths were four, three less than on Saturday. Pneumonia cases and deaths decreased from 115 cases and forty-one deaths to ninety cases and thirty-seven deaths.

Sleeping sickness was cited as the ailment of Louis Montgomery Kardos Jr., one of the members of Kardos & Burke, stock brokerage firm, which failed for $2,000,000 in February, 1922, when a hearing in the bankruptcy proceedings was postponed yesterday until April 12. The delay was asked by Arthur L. Ross, attorney for Mr. Kardos. The hearing was before Referee Peter B. Olney, at 68 William Street.

Carmen Reuben in Song Recital.

Carmen Reuben, mezzo-soprano, gave a recital in the Town Hall last evening, assisted by Marie Louise Ford at the piano. In the Italian songs of the opening group the singer displayed the warm quality of her voice and its technical capabilities at the best advantage, and she gave much individuality to her interpretations. The group of songs which she sang in German were chosen with little consideration for her voice, for there were a number of tones too low for her to sing, and with the exception of the last of the seven songs there was not much variety of mood in the selections. Kelley's "Lady Picking Mulberries" was the most successful of a group of songs in English. There was an audience of good size, which demanded several encores.

The Beethoven Association.

The Beethoven Association continued true to Beethoven in its fifth concert given last evening in Aeolian Hall, and to divide its attention also among other great masters. The program contained Beethoven's quartet in F, the first of the Rasoumoffsky set; eight songs by Schubert and Brahms's piano quintet in F minor. The Letz Quartet played, assisted in Brahms's quintet by Arthur Schnabel. Mme. Therese Schnabel sang the songs, her husband playing the accompaniments.

The Letz Quartet played the quartet of Beethoven well, as it has played this and similar works many times in recent years. Mme. Schnabel was heard for the first time here. She is fortunate in possessing a husband to play her accompaniments in such a complete and finished manner. There is need of some such assistance to round out her own performance.

She is at present slenderly equipped with voice; what she has has no great power, resonance or color, and is afflicted with an incessant tremolo. But Mme. Schnabel sings with meticulous care for phrasing, accent and expressive declamation and with a clear enunciation. These things were sufficient to gain her a kindly hearing and no little applause. The eight songs she sang were of the more familiar ones, except "Der Zwerg" and "Die Männer sind Mechant."

WAGNERIAN FESTIVAL GETS $35,000 LOAN

The Wagnerian Opera Festival opened its supplemental three weeks here last evening at the Lexington Opera House, where a host of new-found friends visibly filled the theatre's 2,700 capacity, while other friends in the background supplied a needed $35,000 working capital to the Berlin singers, who are said to have earned $216,000 during the past six weeks in this country. There was natural jubilation over surmounting the temporary difficulties of moving from the Manhattan across town. A performance of "Meistersinger," befitting the mood of the night, engaged singers already familiar, including Messrs. Cehorr, Hutt, Schwarta, Zador and Lohmann, the Misses Fleischer and Koettrik, under Mr. Moeritke's baton.

An official statement was issued following a meeting of Messrs. Blumenthal, Hartmann, Metzger and others in charge of the German performances hitherto. While thouse furnishing new capital were not named, the statement said that "several wealthy music lovers," through their legal representative, Melvin H. Dalberg, had yesterday entered into active control of the festival and by a substantial loan have "rendered certain the future of this organization."

This loan, it was added, has been used in liquidating the most pressing obligations of the company and in paying in advance the theatre rent, and salaries of the principals, chorus and musicians. Mr. Dalberg has been made general director and is to have full management of the company.

In discussing the reorganization, Mr. Dalberg said his client's action assured not only a three weeks' season at the Lexington, but also, following that, a tour through the country.

Will show you how folks get those whiter, cleaner teeth

Go ask for a test of this new way of teeth cleaning. It means too much to miss.

Film makes teeth dingy

That viscous film you feel on teeth is their chief enemy. It clouds them. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why few escaped tooth troubles.

Old brushing methods did not effectively combat film. As a result, nearly all people suffered from it.

Now dental science knows two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those film combatants were embodied in it for daily application.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. To millions of homes it has brought a new dental era.

Corrects old mistakes

Research also proved that old methods brought undesired effects. They decreased the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

They reduced the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Pepsodent brings just opposite effects. It multiplies that alkalinity, multiplies that starch digestant. Thus it gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

This test will show

The results of this test will amaze and delight you. Make it—watch the changes that occur.

Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Compare the results with old methods—by what you clearly see and feel. You will gain a new conception of clean teeth.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent avoids the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Careful people the world over now use Pepsodent, largely by dental advice. It has supplanted in millions of homes the methods of the past.

With the "Abraham Lincoln" of John Drinkwater a strange new genre appeared in the theatre. The "Pasteur" of Sacha Guitry brings the biographic play one step further away from conventional drama. There is not only no love story, but no woman appears on the scene. There is no heroic struggle, no great sacrifice, no final exaltation of tragedy.

Where Lincoln was, and was felt to be, the centre of great national drama, Pasteur is the pure scientist and lover of his fellow-man. He appears at his most belligerent in a squabble with the reactionaries of the Academy of Medicine. In this scene he faces the audience, which is "planted" with actors—is denounced by them and answers back. It was a strange sensation to find that the seeming spectator at your elbow was in fact a dramatic persona crying out upon Pasteur at the top of his lungs. It was strange and curiously effective. Against all likelihood, one felt thrilled—impelled to join in the fray. But when this theatric device was past the play resumed its even tenor, with Pasteur a little ashamed of his vehemence, perhaps, though refusing to admit it.

There was a hint of the German invasion of 1870, but only the distant blare of a trumpet, the departure of a pupil or two for his regiment. The real dramatic climax occurred in the third of the five episodes, when the Alsatian boy, Joseph Meister, appeared with arms and legs lacerated by a mad dog. The long-waited opportunity has come, and Pasteur makes the triumphant trial of his serum. The fourth episode shows him, ageing and ill, in a passage of more than parental tenderness for the lad whose cure was the herald of so many of its kind. The final scene, far from being tragic, shows the aged Pasteur at the Sorbonne receiving the acclamation of his countrymen and of all civilized nations.

In one sense, that is all. But there was more than this in the spell that held the audience. A public that once demanded its baubles of outward heroism and personal romance has, as it seems, learned to find a genuine and moving interest in the heroisms of the mind and in the service of diffused humanity. That "Pasteur" will have the success of "Abraham Lincoln" is scarcely possible. But there can be no question that it interested its first-night audience throughout and moved it deeply at times with a very noble emotion.

There were times, especially in the earlier scenes, when Henry Miller slurred his lines and blurred the meaning of this or that moment. One missed the sense of a great personality, of a heart enkindled and a thought-driven, creative mind. But the scene in which Pasteur denounced his audience found Mr. Miller on familiar ground. Richard Mansfield could scarcely have been more at home. In the scene with the wounded lad, admirably played by little William Pearce, Mr. Miller cast upon his audience a spell of warm humanity and maintained it thereafter to a triumphant close, after repeated calls which eventually elicited a curtain speech.

Lady Sneerwell's Maid	Jean Matthews
Joseph's Servant	Harry Montague

In view of the fact that artificial comedy has so long been obsolescent, the performance of Sheridan's masterpiece yesterday afternoon was remarkably competent, and this in spite of the fact that a number of well-known players who had been announced failed to appear in the cast. The text used was commendably full, and the five acts were prefaced by the prologue written by David Garrick. The result was a leisurely unfolding of plot and character, yet without tedium, and an establishment of intimacy and understanding on the part of the audience that was signalized by an eager interest and much laughter.

It is not without a certain obviousness of effort that latter-day actors take on the elaborate manner of the eighteenth century. In elaborate compliment and bowing, posing of leg and flourishing of lace ruffles, the sheer humanity of character and situation too often go by the board. There is much more of the beef and wine of Old England in this play, of feminine caprice and womanly feeling, than came to the surface. Yet the Sir Peter of Lawrence Hanray and the Lady Teazle of Theresa Conroy emerged as thoroughly delightful human beings, quite lifelike in their quarrels and equally admirable for the dignity and the wit with which they conducted them. Charles Harbury was familiar in his youth with the old stock companies at their best and invested Sir Oliver with a robustly comic humanity.

The performance is given in behalf of the Co-operative Home for Small-Salaried Girls and will be repeated on Friday afternoon and on Monday and Friday afternoons of next week.

FRANK TINNEY AT PALACE.

Appears in "Meet the Wife"—Anna Chandler at the Central.

Frank Tinney in "Meet the Wife" was the headliner at the Palace yesterday afternoon. Others on the bill were Adelaide and Hughes in a new dancing feature; Blossom Seeley and Bennie Fields in "Miss Syncopation"; Woods and Wyde in "All Right, Eddy"; Venita Gould in "Impressions"; Van Cello and Mary in "Foot Feats"; J. Rosamond Johnson and company, Frank Dixon, Vivienne Segal and Harry Carroll and Charlie Chaplin in "The Pilgrim."

The bill at the Central Theatre yesterday afternoon was composed of attractions chosen from the various Shubert vaudeville units. Anna Chandler was the headliner. Others on the bill were Kramer and Boyle, Moran and Wiser in "The Hat Shop," Francis Renault in "The Slave of Fashion," Hattie Althoff and Sister and Buddy Doyle.

'The Chastening' at 46th St. Theatre

"The Chastening," the Charles Rann Kennedy play which has been done in special matinees by the Equity Players recently, last night became the evening production at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre. It will run for a week and will be replaced next Monday by "Why Not?" which thus, after two weeks under non-Equity management in another theatre, returns to the house in which it was originally produced.

"Roger Bloomer," which was taken off by the Equity management Saturday night, will make a reappearance at the Greenwich Village Theatre Thursday night, but not under Equity auspices. It is reported that the author has arranged for this second bow.

'BARNUM WAS RIGHT' FUNNY.

Musical Comedy "Without Music" Pleases at Frazee Theatre.

Miriam Locke	Marion Coakley
Hyde	Suzanne Willis
Samuel Locke	Edward H. Robins
Harrison	Dermot Mahey
Seymour Standish	Robert Adams
Felix Hammer	William B. Morris
Fred Axwell	Jack Boyle Brice
Harry	Arthur J. Wood
Mr. Tuttle	Neil Martin
Mrs. Tuttle	Emid Marker
Bibbs	Will Morris
Phoebe O'Dare	Lilyan Tashman
Guiseppi Verdi	George E. Mack

It was, of course, bound to happen. There have been so many musical comedies without comedy that it was certain that sooner or later a musical comedy without music would come along. It did come along last night—in the shape of "Barnum Was Right" at the Frazee, and the producer has conveniently called it a farce.

It was not only the presence of Donald Brian in his first non-musical play, nor even the second act setting, with his hotel lobby and the convenient balcony running clear across the stage, nor just that the first people to come on stage in this second act were young honeymooners, nor that every new and then Mr. Brian and the very comely Marion Coakley sat on benches and talked of moonlight and honeysuckles and such music-cue-like affairs, nor that Will Deming had a leit-motif of "strawberries at the foot of the hill," but all these things together, added to the fact that everything dialogue and action, was so obviously divided into separate scenes, gave rise to the suspicion that if the play were not originally meant for a musical comedy it soon will be one. And then it is there won't be a musical show in New York with a funnier book.

The new play is screamingly funny a good deal of the time. One of its chief comical stimuli Dearman Maley, in an effective "nut" role. (The third act curtain showed him to have been a detective from the Central Office all the time, but no one was much bothered by the news.) Since the play, originally by Philip Bartholomae, now also bears the name of John Meehan, the relationship between Mr. Maley's role of last night and the very similar part played by Mr. Meehan in "The Tavern" is clear. In "The Tavern" the line was "What's all the shootin' for?" and last night it was "Wot seems to be de matter?"

The plot at odd moments concerns itself with the attempts of a young man, none other than Mr. Brian, to win the hand of Miss Coakley by increasing the value of her father's Long Island estate through discreetly provocatory denials of rumors that the place was used as a burial ground for doubloons and pieces of eight by the pirates of old. How Mr. Maley turns out to have been a detective as mentioned above is one of the mysteries that regularly are writ in the book of Brian.

The third act is a brilliant satire on the mystery plays that have been growing throughout the country like so many mushrooms. There are doors slammed, chimneys climbed up and down, panels that open in walls, men that hide under beds, maids that explode cans of TNT, shots that are fired in the night—and music cues galore.

In distinctly musical comedy bits, Susanne Willis, Neil Martin, Emid Markey and William E. Morris practically did everything but cry aloud for a bevy of beautiful girls to come and stand behind them and revolve into formations while the orchestra broke into a foxtrot. Lilyan Tashman, not so long ago one of Mr. Ziegfeld's glorified, worked hard, but her reach exceeded her grasp.

It remains only to be recorded that the audience gave loud and continued signs of its pleasure throughout the entire evening.

Mrs. Parker	Katie Murray
Otis Hubbard	Paul Burns
Isabel Parker	Josephine Stevens
Florabel Parker
Harry	Vassi Murray
Mrs. Phyllis Full	May Boley
Telma Finnish	Lora Sanderson
Senator Lockwith	Billy Clifford
Jack Full	Don Barclay
Jack Locksmith	Bernard Granville
Verdile	Miss Vernile
Brigas	D. L. Roberts

Spring has finally pushed as far north as Sixty-third Street, where "Go-Go" was put on last evening in Daly's Theatre amid a whirr and reverberation of percussion. It was a very noisy evening. The comedy was written by Harry L. Cort and George E. Stoddard, the lyrics by Alex Rogers, and the music by grim-visaged Mars. From the initial potpourri of airs which fairly burst the saxaphones to the concluding "ensemble," in which the handsome young man (Bernard Granville) smoothed out the last difficulties separating him from the winsome young woman (Josephine Stevens), "Go-Go" ripped and roared with "rubato rage." And on a narrow and shallow stage chorus maidens turned in bewildering figures, buck-and-wing dancers cut gauche capers, principals dashed up and down and dancers defied the limitations of the human body until the audience burst into perspiration.

Respecting the Autocrat's sage advice that one should never be as funny as one can, the comedians held themselves admirably in check throughout the evening. Scarcely once did they jest spontaneously; it was usually by way of the pun or the joke announced long in advance by all the trumpets of the sky. Large trousers and a small hat did not make Don Barclay the perfect comic fool; nor did the horn-rimmed spectacles and gaudy waistcoat introduce Paul Burns to that volatile company. But it was only necessary, when laughs were slow in coming, to rattle the traps and limber the trombone, and "Go-Go" ran on through several more scenes.

As for the plot (if mention of such a thing is not in bad taste) "Go Go" has enough for its purpose. Isabel Parker and Florabel Parker are twin sisters. New do you see? Jack Locksmith gave his heart to one of them in France. When he tried to get hers in exchange, back in the United States, he encountered the wrong sister. As the devious ways of musical comedy will have it, she did not offer the obvious explanation. And that melancholy circumstance keeps the comedy in motion, and gives rise to several very bad sentimental songs. Mr. Roberts composes best in a boiler factory.

Several sets of pleasing color and design carry "Go Go" from the usual Bamboo Rose Cottage to an exotic cafe entitled "The Pink Poodle," and to a Summer residence on the Sound, where a moon, being three-quarters full, holds the same position in the sky throughout the evening. Miss Stevens, in the twin parts of Mrs. Parker and Florabel, was attractive and demure, and Mr. Granville was thoroughly correct as Jack Locksmith. From time to time Miss Vernille varied dancing with daring contortion, twisted some absurd knots, and then gathering her spare parts together left the stage. But all that was as nothing to the din, the clanger, the blare, the hobbery and the pandemonium of orchestra and dancer.

Chaliapin Returns in "Mefistofele."

Metropolitan lobbies had to be cleared by police at last night's opera on Broadway, when Mr. Chaliapin's return again brought a host of his Russian compatriots to swell the sold-out Monday subscription. The opera was Boito's "Mefistofele," in which the basso had first sung earlier in the season. With him were Mme. Alda, Mr. Gigli and others as before, and Mr. Moranzoni conducted.

"MARCH HARES" REVIVED.

Inter-Theatre Arts Gives Harry W. Gribble's Novel Comedy.

"March Hares," the delightfully mad comedy by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, first seen here a season ago, has been revived by the Inter-Theatre Arts for a series of special performances. There were two of these yesterday, one at the appropriately March-hatesy hour of 12:15 A. M. and the second at a more orthodox matinee hour. A third and last performance will be given on the coming Friday afternoon.

The people to whom "March Hares" will appeal have nearly all already seen the play, and it is impossible to summarize the scheme of the action for the rest. Yesterday's audiences howled with laughter throughout its three acts and in every way showed their keen appreciation and approval of the going-on.

Moffatt Johnston, who only last Friday gave a magnificent performance of Kent in "King Lear," further added to his reputation as an actor of parts by his portrayal of a decidedly mad-hatterish person in "March Hares." There were unfortunate moments when he seemed not so sure of the author's lines as this mad play demanded, but these moments were soon forgotten in the afterglow of his Mareness and dexterity and restraint of his comedy sense.

Norma Mitchell, in a delirious Donna Juanna role, which she played too when the show was first produced, gave an admirable performance. Adrienne Morrison, also a member of the original cast, had an unsatisfactory role as the only sane person in a family of lunatics, but carried it off nicely. Charlotte Granville did well in a very grateful part. Other roles were played by Gertrude Purcell, Fairfax Burgher, Lawrence Cecil, Kate McComb and Frank Dekum.

Marguerite Namara in Concert.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 12.—Marguerite Namara of the Chicago Opera Company made her first appearance on the French concert stage in a recital at the Salle Gaveau tonight. She was assisted by Captain Randall Stevens. Miss Namara was well received by a crowded house. She gave selections in English, French, Italian and Spanish.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The new musical show for Mitzi, by Geers and Lewey, who wrote "The Clinging Vine," will be called "Minute and Me."

A. H. Woods announces that the company supporting Pauline Frederick in "The Guilty One," which opens at the Selwyn Theatre next week from tonight, will include Charles Waldron, Charles Dalton, Henry Warwick, Neal Leslie, Ethel Intropidi and Florence Edney.

"Jack and Jill," John Murray Anderson's new musical comedy, opened last night at the Majestic Theatre in Buffalo. The production, staged by John Murray Anderson, is announced to come to the Globe during next week. Included in the cast are Ann Pennington, Georgia O'Ramey, Roger Imhof and others.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

Paramount Pictures, New York.

Reached here today with copy of "The Covered Wagon," on my way to New York for the Criterion opening Friday night. It was near here that the attack of one thousand Indians on the wagon train took place. I showed this morning some photographs from "The Covered Wagon" to an elderly woman sitting across the car aisle. She told me she had crossed the plains in one of the wagon trains of 1848, when she was a little girl of five. She is now eighty years old and this is the first time she has gone back East. The route is over the old Oregon Trail, and she is covering in four days the territory which as a little girl she spent a year in crossing. Vividly she pictured to me the terrors, the hardships and long, weary sufferings of those pioneers, whose lives are so interestingly portrayed by James Cruze in his production. "It is all so real, so real," she said. "My father was massacred by the Indians, and mother and I went to Oregon alone. And now, when I look out the car window I see great wheat fields, and cattle ranges, and splendid roads, and Fords and Buicks. Young man, it is wonderful to live in America!" Will wire tomorrow, regards

John C. Flinn.

MANDATORY LEGISLATION.

Mayor HYLAN's frequent outcries during the past five years about the "outrage" of mandatory legislation imposed upon this city by the Legislature hardly prepared us for what is now going on at Albany. From the representatives of the greater city a perfectly unprecedented flood of bills in absolute violation of the sacred principle of municipal home rule is inundating the Legislative halls. Most of these bills are viciously mandatory. They direct the authorities of the city to create a miscellaneous lot of new offices, and to pay higher salaries to those holding old ones. Yet so far not one protest has come from the City Hall.

It is evident that in this matter citizens must be prepared to make nice distinctions. When a Republican Governor with a Republican Legislature exerts the power of the State to compel the city to do various things, it is an act of oppression and tyranny. But if the same course is pursued by a Democratic Governor, with one branch of the Legislature in control of his party, then mandatory legislation appears as a convenient and beneficent means of helping out distressed officeholders and officeseekers in the metropolis. If this makes the impassioned appeal for home rule in New York seem hollow, it is because it has really been hollow.

The commission which has been engaged for nearly two years in drafting a new charter for Greater New York avowed as one of its chief aims the establishment of a system under which the city "will control its own affairs" in a way to put an end to the "continual appeals to the Legislature." In this laudable object did the commission receive any support from the city authorities? Not at all; they kept sedulously aloof. The commission early discovered that the police of the city, together with the firemen and other large municipal departments, did not want home rule for New York. They preferred the old method of running to Albany for what they could not get here. To them, home rule appears not only as an iridescent dream but as an unwelcome reality. They and their political associates will be delighted if the pending constitutional amendment securing municipal home rule shall prove to have been so bungingly framed that it cannot be submitted to the people this year. As for a genuine home rule charter for New York, their first impulse would be to heave it from the top of the City Hall so as to hit the statue of Civic Virtue square on the jaw.

DOUBLE DRY ENFORCEMENT.

New York Wets chortled with joy after Governor SMITH's election. At last "personal liberty" was to be vindicated. That hilarity was premature; the bright grin has faded. The harmless declaration of the New York Democratic platform of 1922 for a mitigation of the Volstead act has been adopted by the Legislature. But it can't do much about prohibition. It could repeal the Mullan-Gage act and refuse any longer the exercise of the concurrent power of the State to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment. But the Governor doesn't seem to want to have a bill for that purpose brought before him to sign or veto. He must be thinking of the immense Dry vote in the Democratic Party outside of New York.

Aside from politics, the retention of the Mullan-Gage law since the famous decision of the Supreme Court on Dec. 11, holding that punishment in a State court for violation of a State prohibition statute doesn't bar prosecution for the same act in a Federal court under the Federal law, has distressed many lawyers. Mr. AUSTEN G. FOX speaks for them in another column. The court held that the same act was an offense against the State and the United States; that the defendants "committed two offenses by "the same act, and a conviction by "the court of Washington of the of-"fense against that State is not a "conviction of the different offense "against the United States, and so is "not double jeopardy," forbidden by the Fifth Amendment.

This view of the Fifth Amendment rests on a long line of decisions; yet to the layman it seems a little metaphysical. The fact remains that a defendant may be punished twice for the same act; that, if acquitted or found guilty in a State court, he may be prosecuted in a Federal court; he may have to give bail, if he can, in two courts, or lie in jail a year or two till his case is reached. Three weeks ago eight men released by a Staten Island Magistrate in bail of $500 each for alleged violation of the Mullan-Gage law were at once rearrested by United States Deputy Marshals and taken before a United States Commissioner in Brooklyn, "who held them in bail of $1,000 each for the Grand Jury." The possibilities, the probabilities, of oppression under this dual system are evident. Talk to a member of Congress or the Legislature about them and he may say: "Oh, they only get "what's coming to them. Nothing is "too bad for bootleggers. Let 'em "keep out of the business and they'll "keep out of trouble, single or "double."

That forgets the theory of the law and the fundamental Constitutional guarantees. Bootleggers, like everybody else, are supposed to be innocent till their guilt is proved. Even a suspected bootlegger, acquitted by a jury of the vicinage in his State, ought to be exempt from Federal prosecution for the same act, "different offense" though it be called. "It is not for us to discuss the wisdom of legislation," said Chief Justice TAFT in his opinion. Congress refused to make "special provision" to prevent double punishment. Apparently the statesmen at Albany are afraid to repeal the State prohibition enforcement law. Yet double prosecution or punishment, though it doesn't constitute technical "double jeopardy," is repulsive to believers in justice—justice even to persons accused of violating the prohibition laws.

LICENSING BROKERS.

The bill of the Lockwood committee of which the ostensible purpose is "to regulate transactions in securities "by stock exchanges and licensed "dealers" is scheduled for final consideration in the Legislature this week. It is admitted, even by its advocates, that it has steadily lost ground with the legislators as its real scope and necessary result have been pointed out. This was to be expected. The measure now before the Legislature, far from correcting the evils of fraudulent security issues and dishonest dealing by brokers, would in all reasonable probability make an already bad matter much worse.

It proceeds on the assumption that the State Superintendent of Banking would be not only perfectly competent to judge the merits of an applicant for a "broker's license," and not only able to approve or veto with entire wisdom alterations in a Stock Exchange's constitution, rules, regulations and practices, all of which must be submitted to his judgment, but that he would also be perfectly free from political pressure in either matter, and so prompt in action as to avoid the serious consequences which would sometimes occur because of prolonged delay. It is the old idea of a perfect political bureau official whose individual impressions should supersede the practical judgment of private business organizations, themselves responsible to the investing public.

"Licensing of brokers" sounds well, but in point of fact, as will appear after a little reflection, it would seriously aggravate the problem of irresponsible or dishonest promoters. That "brokers" of this sort can apply the strongest kind of political pressure to get State credentials is the teaching of recent experience. There is no reason to suppose that such pressure would not be effectively exerted to secure a "license" for a dishonest promoter who had not been publicly convicted of dishonesty. But the simplest mind can understand the extent to which such a promoter's opportunities to impress the ignorant investor would be enhanced by a formal license of a Government bureau.

As concerns the provisions for supervision over the issue and sale of new securities, the bill proposes restrictive and supervisory requirements which, while doubtless useful in the case of securities of the "wild-cat character," are so sweepingly applied that they would virtually bring to a stop the machinery of legitimate loans by the great banking houses to well-known corporations. It is legislation such as would be expected from an absolute tyro in finance.

It will be said that the existing situation, as regards the mass of unsound or actually dishonest enterprises into which the unwary investor's money is being drawn should be the first consideration. No one denies its importance. But it is also impossible to deny, first, that there are already adequate and stringent laws on the statute books, if the prosecuting officers will enforce them; second, that the extension of the activities of the "better-business" organizations promise important results, unless the Legislature ties their hands; finally, that the measures now under consideration would block the protective efforts both of public and private agencies.

CO-ORDINATING PORT FACILITIES.

Last December the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered the railways serving the Port of New York to show cause why they should not cooperate with the Port Authority in its plan to co-ordinate the port facilities. The Port Authority's Chairman, Mr. OUTERBRIDGE, now summons the railways to explain to the general public their opposition to the plan. For months the Authority negotiated with the railways with soft words. Finding itself getting nowhere in that manner, the Authority reminds the railways of what they must do if they fail to reach an agreement. Also it puts the railways on their defense by showing how prejudicial to the public is the railways' attitude of obstruction. The cost of maintaining a dozen terminals for a dozen railways makes it impossible for the railways to serve shippers and consumers either cheaply or efficiently. In principle the Authority proposes the unification of all terminals by putting into a terminal pool all the freight which focuses at this port. That would leave with each road its line-haul profits. Further profits would result from such betterment of terminal facilities that there would be a reduction of terminal costs.

Each railway, however, thinks more of its specific interests than of the general interest. From railway sources come plans alternative to the Port Authority's. The Hudson River Bridge plan is disinterred. There is sudden activity in vehicular tunnel plans under the Hudson. Yet no one of them can or should displace the Authority plan, for none of them has the political or legal power to unify the port. It was an immense achievement when New York and New Jersey reconciled their conflicting interests. Federal sanction is as necessary as the agreement of the two States. The Port Authority now has behind it all the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Chairman OUTERBRIDGE informs the public that the railways overlook these conditions, and prefer each to go its own way. It is eminently a case for appeal to public opinion.

No one denies that the railways are entitled to a fair hearing. The Authority's plan is enormous, and experts may differ on details. But the railways already have been heard patiently. There can be no presumption in favor of delay, nor in favor of plans prepared by the eminent engineer named by the railways in February. He does not outrank General GOETHALS, the Port Authority's engineer. The Authority's plans have been maturing for years, and more years cannot be spared for the reconciliation of differing experts.

MR. HAUGHTON ARRIVES.

Mr. PERCY HAUGHTON, who put Harvard on the football map and Yale off it, has been engaged to produce a football team at Columbia. We extend our congratulations to him on the crowning of his career; after a long and diligent apprenticeship in small towns he has won his way to New York, the goal of earnest aspirants. At the same time he must be warned that making good in the great city isn't so easy as it looks. Nearly all of us have come from the sticks; some of us might better have stayed there.

This is said in no disparagement or discouragement of Mr. HAUGHTON. But he ought to know that our Mayor has a strong distaste for experts from out of town; or had, at least, before he started commuting to the City Hall from Palm Beach. Mr. HYLAN probably thinks that Bushwick is full of experts able to give Columbia a winning team, and if Mr. HAUGHTON doesn't succeed promptly he may expect to hear from our shepherd of the people.

Yet Mr. HAUGHTON's system isn't pointed toward prompt production. He takes his time. He knows that a football team has to be evolved with painstaking care, like the spineless cactus. He must know, also, that his new job has been the grave of great reputations. In recent years Columbia has had some good material and some excellent coaches, but few victories of the sort that brings joy to the alumni. It may be that President BUTLER put a spell on Columbia football when he abolished it for a few years; perhaps Columbia has become discouraged by the necessity of reminding the world that there is something besides a graduate school and a Summer school on Morningside Heights. At any rate, Mr. HAUGHTON is going to have his troubles; but he can count on the support of all patriotic townspeople who are tired of having the home team beaten by the boys from Ithaca and White River Junction.

Only an ironist could describe football under the Haughton system as a sport. It is a learned profession, a vocation in the religious sense, a life work compressed into the space of three years. Its practitioners are vowed to poverty, celibacy, obedience and hard work. They sacrifice their personal comfort for a remote and dubious objective, hard to attain, dimly understood, and of more or less speculative value. It is a form of monasticism, a rejection of the world for the edification of the spirit. From this standpoint, the employment of Mr. HAUGHTON at Columbia ought to be regarded as a happy token of the increase of spirituality in our universities. It would be a mistake to think of it as a concession to the spirit of materialism, to which these mighty stadium-cathedrals are being erected all over the country. This reproach can be leveled at other great men of football, perhaps; and if any one of them had come here we might perhaps be justified in saying that for all Columbia's great graduate and professional schools, for all its fifty or a hundred thousand Summer and extension students, its executives and students felt that it wasn't a big league university without a football team.

No such feeble taunt can be flung at PERCY HAUGHTON's kind of football. His advent means that a number of Columbia's young men are going to submit to iron discipline, to a harsh cenobitic rule, for the upbuilding of the corporate oversoul. That is a fine thing in this selfish age.

AIRCRAFT FOR PEACE AND WAR.

"The situation in the Army Air Service is most critical," says the retiring Assistant Secretary of War, J. MAYHEW WAINWRIGHT, in his report on industrial mobilization. The Assistant Secretary of War is charged by the National Defense act with responsibility for plans to keep the General Staff informed about the production of war equipment that may be needed in an emergency. His problem is "to insure, so far as foresight may "provide, that our industrial establishments and factories may be prepared, upon the outbreak of war, "to turn as rapidly as possible from "their peace time tasks" to maximum manufacture of munitions and equipment. The plans are now on file in the department. During the war the Government spent nearly $800,000,000 on aeronautics, the greater part of it on army aviation. Yet Mr. WAINWRIGHT declares that "our most "notable deficiency at the present "time is in the matter of aircraft." He explains that the war supply of machines is now "practically exhausted, and what there is left of "it is rapidly disappearing, due to "deterioration and to inevitable losses "while in actual use." He goes on to say:

> The amounts appropriated for the purchase of new aircraft are insufficient to provide what is necessary for even the normal peace-time equipment of the present small Army Air Service organization. The aeronautical industry in the United States, built up to large proportions during the war, has shrunken rapidly and is now practically facing extinction. Until commercial aerial transportation becomes a fact the only demand for such equipment originates with the military branches of the Government.

The final statement should be qualified. Airplanes are used by the Post Office Department, to some extent by the Agricultural Department and in increasing numbers by transportation companies, one of which, the Aeromarine Airways, carried 9,107 passengers in the year ended Nov. 1, 1922. But the aircraft industry without Government orders would soon be on its last legs. Something else is required to insure its success: the enactment of a national aircraft law. Representative WINSLOW, who has introduced in the House a bill to provide for a Bureau of Civil Aeronautics in the Department of Commerce, says: "The "basis of air power must be a healthy "self-supporting aircraft industry." There can be no such industry without Government co-operation and aid. The aid would be supplied by orders for planes needed in the military services, the Post Office and other departments. Co-operation would take the form of inspecting machines and licensing pilots, establishing air routes and terminals and formulating rules of the air and administration. It is Mr. WINSLOW's belief that "capital "will enter the field as soon as our "law governing the operation of air-"craft is established upon a sound "and broad basis."

Assistant Secretary WAINWRIGHT's estimate of the cost of a program of replacement and equipment for the Army Air Service is not excessive: $15,000,000 a year for five years. "In addition there will be required," he says, "approximately $10,000,000 for operating the service." The needs of the navy would be greater, as it lacks modern airplane carriers. If aircraft preparedness is not provided for, the alternative may be the rapid and wasteful expenditure of a billion of dollars in the next war emergency.

CHILD WELFARE.

Senator COPELAND informed a child-welfare audience last Sunday night that while only $50,000 is spent each year by the Federal Government for the babies of this country, $4,000,000 is spent for hogs. The health of children, as their education, is left almost wholly to the States. The Federal Bureau of Education consists of a Commissioner of Education who, with a very small staff, gives out facts concerning education. But the Department of Agriculture has an enormous organization which gives attention to every phase of farm life and operation from soil physics and fertilizers to "the color and form and size and shape of the nose of a hog" (to quote the Secretary of Agriculture), "the "pitch of its ear and the curl of its "tail which satisfies the sense of the "beautiful, as well as of the useful."

The children, however, will henceforth have a friend at court. The Doctor-Senator, with a passion for public health, will, as he says, "ask a lot of questions down there." He will want to know why the child who comes into the United States in one State has not the health protection and health education which it would have if it came "trailing clouds of glory" into another State. He will ask why the death rate among mothers from causes connected with maternity was higher in the United States in 1920 than in any foreign country, and he will also inquire why all the States have not accepted the terms of the Sheppard-Towner maternity and infant hygiene law, under which Federal appropriations are made to help the States assure proper attention and skilled care. He would do well to have at hand for use in case of a filibuster a full report of the Child Labor Committee. The literature of the National Child Health Association, whose chairman is Secretary HOOVER, would brighten the pages of the Congressional Record. If the Senator reads the report of the Child Welfare Commission of this State (as well as his own reports), he will give encouragement by showing that his own city has not only reduced the death rate by one-half in the last fifty years, but that in his own State more is now being done by the public for the care of children than was ever done before. This city last year took care of 27,195 children in the homes of their own mothers at an expense slightly above the $4,000,000 which the Senator says the Federal Government spent for hogs.

In EMERSON HOUGH's "Covered Wagon," dramatizing the great wagon-trains on their way to Oregon and California in the late '40s, two or three scenes show the extreme care taken of the children along the way, the old doctor saying that it didn't so much matter what happened to the older people once they got to their destination and lived long enough to let the little ones grow up. It was these children who were to become the founders of the new States. If the nation has not the health and education of its boys and girls still uppermost in its thought of the future, the house will fall in on its foundation. We are fortunate to have a Doctor-Senator to keep the Federal Government mindful of its babies as well as of its hogs.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Men Like the Tiptos Are Trusted.

That people as intelligent as are the Italian residents of New York should not have learned, long ago, where to put the money earned by their industry and saved by their economy is strange. They have had lesson after lesson as to the danger of trusting to "bankers" who are not bankers at all, but one class of Italians apparently are incapable of learning that the regular savings banks, doing business under strict regulation and supervision, are thoroughly worthy of trust, while such concerns as that of the four Tiptos brothers have behind them nothing except the personal responsibility and character of their managers.

The explanation of the mystery lies in the fact that the Italians of this class illustrate the fact that Italy is inhabited not by one people but by many, each with a dialect, if not a language, of its own, those in each of the little districts into which the peninsula is divided hardly looking upon those in the others as fellow-countrymen. Their distrust of people in districts not their own is equaled only by the confidence they are disposed to bestow upon the members of their own group.

That is the reason why the Tiptos, coming from Pugliese, were able to get the deposits of others of like origin to an amount enormous in the aggregate and to get it with no acknowledgment except a scrap of paper that in effect was a mere note of hand. It was not necessary for them to promise big interest after the Ponzi fashion, and no element of speculation, so far as the depositors were concerned, seems to have entered into the transaction. The money was handed over for safe keeping practically without security of any kind, and now, if it all is lost, there will be no redress except what little, if any, can be obtained through civil suits against the Tiptos.

Convictions Hard to Understand.

Two brothers, GEORGE and RALPH BAKER, the one 22 and the other 14, are to be hanged on Friday, this week, unless the Governor and Prison Commission of Georgia see fit to reprieve them or commute their sentences. Owing to the youth of RALPH, and the fact that GEORGE is declared to be weak-minded, many residents of the State are shocked by the thought of putting them to death and are making active efforts to secure clemency for them.

The case is peculiar and, from a distance, hard or impossible to understand, for the circumstances of the killing for which the boys were convicted of murder in the first degree are such as might be expected to get for them a lighter penalty or even none at all.

They are typical mountaineers, entirely without education. While the brothers were on a railway train on the way from their home county to Durham, the elder drank enough wildcat whisky to make him drunk and the younger took his pistol away from him to prevent trouble. Arriving at their destination, GEORGE, as the story is told, "teased" one JOE MORTON, a Deputy Sheriff. The latter first pushed him away and then drew his pistol and began shooting at him. Thereupon RALPH, using GEORGE's pistol, shot MORTON dead. The friends of the boys claim that a mine Superintendent used his influence to prevent his employes from giving testimony that might have helped them.

If this version of the case is true, GEORGE was guilty of only a trivial offense, if any, and RALPH's claim that he fired because he thought his brother's life was in danger deserves attention. Seemingly there is more than excuse for executive action.

Yesterday Recalled the Blizzard.

To New Yorkers old enough to remember what probably was the worst storm the city ever experienced, the weather yesterday was enough like that of just thirty-five years ago to excite anxiety. The great blizzard, too, began with a warm or warmish rain following a real spring day, and when the rain turned to snow, carried along on a fierce gale, there was as much surprise as there was discomfort.

Within a few hours all means of transportation ceased except for those strong and hardy enough to fight their way through the drifts on foot, and in many places the drifts were of enormous depth—enormous for this part of the country, that is, and they would have been called big even in Canada.

There were no automobiles in those days, no subways, and the elevated trains were pulled by steam locomotives, while most of the surface cars still were horse drawn. For a whole day there were hardly any efforts to dig the city out of its unprecedented covering of snow, and even on the second only a few of the main avenues were broken open.

Never since then has there been anything like it, and it is to be hoped that the affliction never will be repeated. To deny its possibility is fairly safe prophecy.

Probably He Has Been Misunderstood.

Dr. MARK VAN DOREN, Professor of English at Columbia, is quoted by The World as having told one of his classes that for two years he had not read any newspapers. Questioned about this by a World reporter, he refused to confirm the story, yet he did go so far as to say, "I told the class that I certainly had not got much from newspaper reading lately, but I do not care to state exactly what I said or to express my opinion on the matter."

It really is a pity that Dr. VAN DOREN is not more explicit—that he does not tell why he has found the newspapers nearly or quite useless to him—if he has. A good many rather important things have happened in the past two years—things in which a college professor must take some interest. Is he waiting until the events of those years take their place in the more less permanent records of history? He will miss a good deal if that is his plan, and his students will look at him with wonder.

One occasionally hears a particularly foolish person say, "You never can believe anything you read in the papers," but anybody wise enough to be a Columbia professor must know that as between the papers and the history books the chances of inaccuracy are about equal, except for people without the sense to see that a mere rumor may be real news, even though it is denied the next day, and that news often must be judged with reference to its place of origin and the circumstances of its transmission.

THE REAL IRELAND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an Irish priest visiting the United States I have been struck by the method employed by the American press when reporting Irish news. For the most part the only information given is a summary of the clashes between the Free State troops and irregulars, with the much to be regretted deaths, burnings and lootings inseparable from such a contest. By all means let such happenings be chronicled, but in all fairness let the constructive side of Irish life be given equal prominence. For, whether or not intended, the result is a view of Ireland utterly out of perspective and calculated to impress the unthinking with the idea that Ireland is inhabited by a race of savages. Nothing, of course, could be more remote from the truth.

If the Irish press when publishing American news were to print only the murders, divorces, robberies, bootlegging activities, suicides, lynchings, automobile accidents, modernist preachings, &c.—to name only a few items of the daily bill of fare in the New York press—would not the reading public in Ireland be inclined to take a very pessimistic view of contemporary America?

This would not be fair to America. Since I came to this country I have had an opportunity of seeing the real America—American home life, with its simple and sincere kindness; American business life, with its marvellous extent and efficiency; American intellectual life, with its almost bewildering literary output, and American religious life, certainly—I speak from the Catholic standpoint—deep and enduring. One learns to appraise at their true value the whoopings of politicians, the vaporings of yellow journalists and the jeremiads of the kill-joys, and to view America, as she really is, as a great, free, well-ordered commonwealth, minding her own vast business and minding it exceedingly well.

For these reasons I wish to congratulate you on the publication in today's issue of your journal of the striking interview given by Mr. Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State. That is a picture of the real Ireland—the Ireland we all love.

Place of Honor for Family Albums.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Where are the family photograph albums of yesterday? Have Americans no ancestors, or have they thrown them away?

You remember those fascinating albums with photographs of the girlish bride standing beside her seated husband, one delicate hand upon his manly shoulder. I think they were the flappers' first aid to conversation in the early General Grant period. I even recall one book that opened to music.

Can you or your readers help us find some of these cherished volumes that used to repose plushfully on the parlor table? We are eager to place them in a special gallery at the International Photographic Arts and Crafts Exposition which will be held at Grand Central Palace during the week of April 21 to 28.

If the owners of such albums would lend them to us, we would be very careful of their treasures and exhibit them with the dignity befitting their years.

The Stain of Soft Coal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the present shortage of anthracite coal, while so many people are unavoidably suffering because of it, it seems uncalled for, to say the least, for any one to find fault with the use of soft coal in subway construction work on Forty-second Street because the smoke resulting therefrom will "ruin" the stone work of the Library. This last is absurd, of course, for whatever damage may be done is the way of darkening the stone can easily be remedied later on.

SIGNS.

The brooding fields lie bleak and brown,
Flecked here and there with snow,
But—pussywillows have begun
Soft furry heads to show!

Stark, naked skeletons of trees
Their shivering branches toss,
But—sheltered by protecting roots
Are clumps of green young moss.

Upon the hills, its chilly hand
Grim, lingering Winter lays,
But now the sun gets up betimes,
And longer are the days.

The little voices of the woods
Begin their whispering,
And—oh! today I heard the first
Brave robin redbreast sing!

CONCURRENT ENFORCEMENT.

Neither Conviction Nor Acquittal in the State Courts a Bar to Federal Prosecution.

By AUSTEN G. FOX.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Dec. 11, 1922, the Supreme Court of the United States decided the Lanza case. The only question which the court considered was whether Lanza could be punished again under the Volstead law in a Federal court for the same acts, for which he had already been punished by the courts of the State of Washington. The court closed its opinion as follows:

"Conviction and punishment in a State court, under a State law, for making, transporting and selling intoxicating liquors is not a bar to a prosecution in a court of the United States, under the Federal law, for the same acts."

On Feb. 21, 1923, the press reported the following occurrence:

"The Federal Government set a sensational precedent when four United States deputy marshals arrested eight men in the Magistrate's court at Stapleton, Staten Island, immediately after they had been released in bail of $500 each for alleged violation of the Mullan-Gage law. The defendants, on the same evidence, collected by the State police, are charged by Federal officials with violation of the Volstead law. This is the first instance in New York where the Federal authorities have taken such action. They were taken from the Magistrate's court to Brooklyn and arraigned before United States Commissioner Hennessy, who held them in bail of $1,000 each for the Grand Jury."

The Federal Government has established its right to prosecute these men, criminally, no matter what may be the result of the prosecution in the courts of the State of New York. We were assured that Congress would amend the Volstead law so as to make impossible either double punishment "for the same acts" or the prosecution in the Federal courts of a citizen whom a jury in a State court had acquitted of the same charge. It is true that bills were introduced in Congress to accomplish that result, but Congress has adjourned, and the Volstead law stands unamended. By its failure to act Congress has approved the purpose of the Federal Government to disregard entirely proceedings in the State courts. The double arrests reported have removed all doubt as to the policy of the Federal Administration.

After a year, or more, the cases against these eight men may be brought to trial in the State court. Meanwhile, any one of them who is unable to furnish the bail required either in the State or in the Federal court must stay in jail. They all may be found "not guilty" in the State court. They must then stand a further trial in the Federal court on the same alleged facts, may be found "guilty" and sent to a Federal jail. Do you stand for keeping on the statute books the State enforcement law which permits this?

We know, now, that no matter what may be the result of prosecutions under that law, a Federal court pays no regard to verdicts in the State courts whether the verdict be "guilty" or "not guilty." If "guilty," the defendant remains liable to further prosecution "in a court of the United States, under the Federal law, for the same act."

If "not guilty," the defendant may be prosecuted again in a court of the United States far removed from his home on the same charge from which he has been freed by a jury of his neighbors in his State court.

Do you stand for this? Do you believe that imprisonment of our citizens in Federal jails, after acquittal on the same charges in their own courts, will be popular with voters?

Republicans, Democrats and prohibitionists stand together against this, which is a practical nullification of the Bill of Rights. No citizen who has been acquitted by a jury in a court of his State should be exposed even to the possibility of further prosecution for the same act in a Federal court and to imprisonment in a Federal jail.

In Colonial times, as we were then subjects of the Crown, the British Government claimed the right in certain cases to bring alleged culprits to trial in London at the Old Bailey. A notable case arose out of the burning of the British revenue vessel Gaspee in Narragansett Bay, when, by "a Royal Order in Council, the authorities of Rhode Island were commanded to deliver the culprits into the hands of the Admiral, with a view to their being tried in London at the Old Bailey." ("The American Revolution," Trevelyan, page 1, page 123.)

Not even Lord North's Government, however, went to the length of demanding further trial at the Old Bailey of men who had been tried in Colonial courts "for the same act", and, least of all, after the alleged culprits had been acquitted in Colonial courts.

Since the Lanza case State enforcement laws permit and invite punishment both in the State courts and in the Federal courts, in case of prior conviction in the State courts, and punishment in a Federal court, notwithstanding a prior acquittal in the State court, on the same charge. The refusal of Congress to amend the Volstead act so as to prevent this result compels us to face this question: Shall we repeal our State enforcement laws, or shall we practically nullify the Bill of Rights? We cannot escape the issue and we must make our answer now, and surely our answer must be, "Save the Bill of Rights." If we parade in State enforcement, at the cost of virtual nullification of any part of the Bill of Rights, we invite, and deserve, the condemnation by a great court of the argument that unless the Government were sustained in certain vigorous measures designed to suppress "the traffic in slaves" it would be "extremely difficult to suppress the traffic." The court replied that to press forward to a great principle by breaking through every other great principle that stands in the way of its establishment is as little consonant with private morality as to public justice.

CONSTITUTIONAL TESTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator BORAH is not at all times logical nor at all times consistent. But even when he is wrong his sincerity cannot be doubted. His present proposal which would increase the number of members of the United States Supreme Court necessary to declare a law unconstitutional seems highly commendable.

No law should be set aside as unconstitutional unless it is plainly and palpably so. The justice of this is widely recognized—but not always practiced. Says Dr. von Holst (Constitutional Law of the United States): "The Supreme Court * * * from the beginning has made it a maxim that * * * the presumption should always be for instead of against the constitutionality of the acts of the other factors of the Government." Judge Cooley says (Constitutional Limitations, p. 192): "A reasonable doubt must be solved in favor of the legislative action, and the act must be sustained." This was written in 1890. Judge Cooley mentioned thirty-nine prominent cases in which the courts had expressed this opinion.

Judge Cooley further says (Constitutional Limitations, p. 194): "The rule which is adopted by some courts that they will not declare a legislative act to be unconstitutional by a majority of a bare quorum of the Judges only—less than a bare majority of all—but will instead postpone the argument until the bench is full, seems a very prudent and proper precaution to be observed before entering upon a question so delicate and so important. The benefit of the wisdom and deliberation of every Judge ought to be had under circumstances so grave."

No law is plainly unconstitutional when five out of nine Judges declare it so. Why not go a step further then Judge Cooley? In Ohio five of six of the Supreme Court Judges must concur before a law can be declared invalid. The American Bar Association favors provisions providing that no State Supreme Court can declare a law unconstitutional by a bare majority.

Why not apply this to the Federal Supreme Court? There is no valid reason why we should not say that no law is unconstitutional unless at least two-thirds, and the proportion might be made higher, of the Judges declare it so.

Farmer, Tariff and Transportation

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"The Wheat Farmer and the Tariff," an article in the Outlook of the 14th inst., must persuade the farmer that his welfare has been retarded, not advanced, following the protection which he demanded in return for his support of the balance of the Fordney-McCumber tariff.

Bearing on that part of the transportation question in which the farmer is the central figure, Mr. H. A. Bellows says: "Three years ago the Federal Tariff Commission reported that, in its opinion, the United States would cease to be a regular exporter of wheat, and instead would be importing wheat for its own needs, at least occasionally, by the end of another fifteen years."

Although this prediction, now declared a conservative one, was not reached for the purpose of doing so, it is calculated to shatter what little of sentimental soundness attaches to the so-called "Great Lakes to the Atlantic" scheme.

A doubly useful end would be served, therefore, if the article could be placed within easy access of every farmer.

TUT-ANKH-AMEN'S SYMBOLS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my opinion there is nothing extraordinary in the fact that a throne with Aten symbols has been found in Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb, as we ought to remember that the furniture found in the Pharaohs' tombs is not only the furniture of their palaces at the time of their death, but is the furniture stored during their lifetime and which might have been used by them at any period of their life, or manufactured purposely for the use of their "ka." Proofs of it are the gauntlets and clothes found in Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb, and which only could have been used by him when he was a child.

In the "Memoirs of Sinuhit," in the Berlin Papyrus No. 1, completed by the Amherst Papyrus and the Golenischeff Papyrus, and translated by G. Maspero in his "Popular Stories of Ancient Egypt," Sinuhit, a noble who lived under the twelfth dynasty, about 2000 years B. C., says, speaking of preparing his tomb: "All kinds of furnishings were placed in the storehouses (of the tomb) and all that was needful was placed there. I appointed priests of the dwellers, I made a tomb garden in A. in front of its town. I gave the furniture, making the necessary arrangements in the pyramid itself."

From the above one can see clearly that the funeral furniture was partly manufactured and ready in the tomb before the death of the owner, who might also store in it all furniture for which he had no immediate use in his home during this life.

I remember Mr. Loret, the late Director General of Antiquity in Egypt, who was making some excavations in the winter of 1908-1909 in Kamonsu near the works I was directing at the time, telling me that often the ancient Egyptians stored in their tombs objects which had been their property during some period of their life and that he had found dolls in the tomb of a grown-up man which were used by him during his childhood.

This might be the case of the first throne of Tut-ankh-Amen, which was too valuable an object of art to be destroyed, and which was stored in his tomb during his lifetime, thinking that his "ka" could use it some time in the future.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I ask the favor of a few lines in your columns to inform your readers that a fund is being raised in the Hereford Diocese for the purpose of establishing a memorial to the late John Percival, D. D., the first headmaster of Clifton College; afterwards, successively, President of Trinity College, Oxford; Headmaster of Rugby School, and from 1905 to 1917, Bishop of Hereford? It has been resolved by the committee, to whom the execution of the project has been entrusted, that the memorial shall take the form of, or, at the least, include some representation of Bishop Percival's features, to be placed in the Cathedral Church of Hereford. Dr. Percival's work as an educational reformer and pioneer and his enthusiasm for the spread of educational opportunities among those who lacked them, were well known in America, as in his own country, and it is thought possible that the Hereford committee may appeal to some of the many Americans who appreciated the man and his work.

Subscriptions may be sent to myself or to Canon Bannister, Secretary of the committee, at the Cathedral Close, Hereford, or direct to The Bishop Percival Memorial Fund at the National Provincial and Union Bank of England, Hereford, England.

Dean of Hereford, England.

HIGH BRIDGE RAZING OFFICIALLY VOTED

Board of Estimate Approves Demolition of Structure Called Menace to Navigation.

CELEBRATION FUNDS ASKED

Aldermen Are Requested to Provide $400,000 for Greater City's 25th Anniversary.

The Board of Estimate, sitting as a Committee of the Whole, yesterday sanctioned the demolition of High Bridge, which spans the Harlem River between upper Manhattan and the Bronx, long considered a menace to navigation. It directed Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, to prepare plans and specifications for razing the structure, and at the same time the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity was asked to prepare plans for an aqueduct under the river to replace the pipes now on the bridge. The estimated cost of demolishing the bridge and building the aqueduct is $1,600,000.

The committee requested the Board of Aldermen to issue $400,000 special revenue bonds to be used in celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Greater City. This will bring the total appropriation for this purpose up to $800,000, the board already having provided $100,000 for the celebration.

Controller Craig objected to the leasing of Grand Central Palace for an educational exposition in conjunction with the celebration, on the ground that the city could use any of its large armories without paying a rental of $50,000, which the Mayor's committee in charge of the ceremony plans reported the Palace could be obtained for. Commissioner Whalen declared that the armories would be inadequate, saying:

"Grand Central Palace was designed to handle just such ceremonies," said Commissioner Whalen. "Its ordinary rental is $500,000 for the four weeks that the city will need it. The authorities while show cost $50,000 rental for ten days, and we are getting the building at a bargain."

It was decided not to accept the offer until the Aldermen had provided the money. According to present plans the celebration will extend from May 26 to June 23, and it is hoped that President Harding will come over to start the ceremonies. There will be a parade of 100,000 municipal employes on the first day, and on Monday, May 28, a naval review is contemplated.

The committee also recommended an appropriation of $15,000 to celebrate the opening of the Coney Island Board Walk on May 15. Arrangements are in the hands of Borough President Riegelmann, of Brooklyn.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 12.—More than 2,000 prominent folk from all parts of the southern sections of Westchester County and Manhattan were among the active bidders at the first day's auction of relics, bric-a-brac, furniture and a vast collection of curios collected by the late James A. Bailey, known as the circus king, at his country mansion at Corcoran Manor, Mt. Vernon, tonight. The big estate has been purchased by the Bailey Park Country Club for its club house and golf course.

The club is selling the entire furnishings of the Bailey mansion preparatory to transforming the house into a club. The sale was conducted by Edward J. O'Reilly, and many of the favorite paintings and pieces of furniture of the circus man went for a song. Two paintings of the first elephants ever brought to this country, including a white elephant which cost more than $1,500, were knocked down for $37 to J. T. McAddon, son-in-law of Mr. Bailey. An old chair which Mr. Bailey occupied while watching the erection of his circus tents for many years, went for $2, while a little rocking chair which Tom Thumb had used for many years was sold for $2.50. A bedstead in which Mr. Bailey slept for twenty years was knocked down by the auctioneers to a collector of antiques for $10.

The club house was so crowded by prospective purchasers that at times it was impossible to keep tab on all of the bidders and it was necessary to increase the number of clerks to keep a record. Mayor Edwin W. Fiske, who is interested in the new club, stated tonight that many of the curios collected by the circus manager during his trips in Egypt, Africa, and other foreign lands had been sold for almost one half of their value.

But the Loss of "Lyra" by the Independents Leads Him to Moralize on Theft.

They have had a robbery at the exhibition of the Society of Independent Artists on the Waldorf Roof and no less a person than Sir Basil Thomson, once of Scotland Yard, has been "on the case." Sir Basil happened to be around at the opportune moment, hence he was consulted. The theft was of a little bronze, "Lyra," a dancing girl by Alice Morgan Wright. It had been much liked. Sam A. Lewisohn had bought the one on exhibition and A. H. Bahr had ordered another. But yesterday, when the Secretary of the Independents, A. S. Baylinson, was looking over the show, he discovered that "Lyra" was missing. She had been wrenched from her base and the wire which held her had been broken. Sir Basil Thomson, "called in," reasoned thus:

Would it be a professional art show Raffles who would neatly break a wire and make off with a valuable piece of sculpture, or would it be a poor but otherwise worthy young artist, in love with Ruth St. Denis—Miss Morgan's sculpture was inspired by that dancer—whose honesty was not so strong as his ardent affections?

Sir Basil shook an uncertain head. The puzzle was too much for him. He told a story of a number of valuables of his own which he sent to a distinguished scientific friend for examination, remarking that when the package came back several pieces were missing. It was very difficult to classify a thief, he said.

Assistant District Attorney Aurelee told the court that Mrs. Edith Reynolds of 445 Mount Pleasant Avenue, Newark, had refused to press the complaint. She caused the arrest of the two men in their office at 25 Broad Street on Feb. 27.

2,500 PUPILS FLEE AS BOY FIRES SCHOOL

SCARED MOTHERS FAINT

Fire, school and police officials commenced inquiries yesterday to ascertain the name of the pupil who, it is believed, attempted to burn Public School 23, at Tinton Avenue and 165th Street, the Bronx, shortly after the start of the morning session. It is thought that a boy sought vengeance for a grudge he felt his teacher had against him.

With little commotion the 2,500 pupils marched out into the rain when the fire gong sounded. Hatless and coatless, the boys and girls stood for a few minutes in the downpour. Then anxious mothers began to rush to the school. Mindful of the Ward's Island disaster, many cried and shouted hysterically and several fainted. Frederick N. Westphal, the Principal, called the teachers together and then announced the school was dismissed.

Warning of the blaze reached Mrs. Edna Merrill, Assistant Principal, as she was addressing 400 pupils in the auditorium. It was whispered in her ear that the fire was in the wardrobe in a 3A classroom on the third floor. The room was the only empty one on the third floor. She quickly rang the fire gong. Hurrying to her office on the fourth floor, Mrs. Merrill found flames curling from a bookcase near her desk. On her desk and on the rug she found partly burned matches. She picked them up and ran to the street.

The police and Fire Marshal's office were notified and Deputy Marshal Herman W. De Malignon was soon questioning teachers and pupils and examining carefully the closet in Room 31, where the blaze started and where the hats and coats of forty-four pupils were destroyed. Eating their way through the ceiling, the flames damaged some of the furniture in the room above and an adjoining room. The total damage was placed at several thousand dollars.

District Superintendent John Wheaton said his inquiry showed that one boys had been particularly troublesome at school and was severely punished as a result. Without further information, however, he could not be pointed out as the perpetrator, the Superintendent added.

The Fire Department's inquiry will continue today.

ANGRY AT LABOR M. P.'S FOR DINING WITH KING

British Workers, Made Suspicious, Protest in Letters to Labor Organs.

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press).—The rank and file of the Labor electorate is disgusted with and suspicious of the idea of Laborite members of Parliament hobnobbing with royalty at the recent Astor dinner, judging from the large number of letters addressed to The Herald, the Labor Party's official paper. Extracts from several of these communications are published today.

The writers want to know what it all means and suspect that the incident has "a political significance and will have far-reaching results, putting the Labor Party in a false position." One fear is expressed that the dinner represented an attempt "of the ruling classes to silence discontent either by reconciling the leaders to the State or by dividing them."

One critic says: "Continuous association with our political opponents is likely to reduce our campaign in the House of Commons to the old sham fight between Tweedledum and Tweedledee which we have done so much to expose." The Herald, in its editorial comment, declines to foster the complaints and says that the Labor "M. P.s" are the best judges of their own action, and that the members immediately concerned act entirely without any weakness of character.

Public Institutions Benefit — Personal Property to Husband.

The estate of Mrs. Florence Lydig Sturgis, who died March 16, 1922, was appraised yesterday at $189,451. She was the wife of Frank K. Sturgis, banker, and aunt of Captain Philip M. Lydig. Her will gave $37,131 in specific bequests of personal property to her husband and a cash bequest of $75,000, out of which she suggested that her husband make payments in his discretion to her immediate relatives who might be in need.

The appraisal shows that the estate was insufficient to pay all the bequests in full. The $75,000 bequest to Mr. Sturgis was reduced to $66,200 and other bequests in proportion. The will gave $5,000 each to Thomas Sturgis and Henry R. Hoyt Jr., nephews, who were her godsons, and an equal amount to the Lenox (Mass.) Library and the House of Mercy at Pittsfield, Mass.; $10,000 each to the New York Zoological Society and Grace Church and $25,000 to St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children. Five employes get $2,000 each.

FLOWER SHOW BUILT AROUND 7 GARDENS

Grand Central Palace Transformed Into Bower—Orchids of Unusual Quality.

The tenth International Flower Show opened yesterday at the Grand Central Palace under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club.

There are seven great gardens in the show and the other exhibitions serve as a gorgeous frame to these beautiful spots. They vary much from previous shows and are planned more than ever before to aid garden lovers by giving them practical ideas for their own homes, whether they are big estates, little back yards or country gardens.

Two large and beautiful gardens face the entrance, masses of all kinds of flowers and flowering shrubs in these, many soft drooping things. The one on the right, which takes the first prize this year, is that of William Boyce Thompson—the more formal of the two with paths and a central flower bed, colors running riot, orange, a note of white—somewhat unusual, deeper toned reds at the back, and at the corners.

Has Informal Garden.

It is a beautiful garden, but Mrs. Payne Whitney's, which took the second prize, is as pleasing in a different way. There are no regular paths. There are stepping stones, in the tender grass were a crocuses are growing—yellow, white and blue. The masses of flowers which frame the grass plot have an appearance of intimacy. There is a white gate in the centre of the white fence which is half open.

There is only one rose garden this year. A. N. Pierson of Cromwell has followed precedent and has a large and beautiful garden with an evergreen background, a Summer house, a border of Aaron Ward roses, Mme. Butterflys in the foreground and many deepertoned roses, as well.

F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown has a marvelous wild garden, or wild and natural combined, trees and shrubs, a lily pond, a real one with real lilies in blossoms, rock plants, a hilly place with all sorts of trees in bloom—a hundred different varieties. There are flowering crabapple, dog wood, magnolia trees, native ferns, wild grasses, water hyacinths, skunk cabbage—"one of the very best things to plant in moist places," Mr. Pierson says. There are St. Bridget's anemones, very rare, real birch trees growing and a rock garden.

The Bobbink & Atkins azalia garden has an evergreen background, a little house with a fountain in the centre of the background, gay little bronze figures on either side and two little Summer houses at either end.

Table Displays Unusual.

On the mezzanine floor are the table decorations, the decorative arrangement of flowers, big bush plants in the tubs on one side of the long gallery masses of hyacinths and tulips, a brilliant display on the other of cineraria, the primulas, wall flowers and in the front great rhododendrons and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim's wonderful staghorn ferns and decorative tub plants.

The Resurrection flower, from Egypt, is attracting crowds. The orchid exhibition this year is exceptional. One passes through two rows of them. The beautiful blossoms are pyramided to face each other, and turn their backs to the other parts of the garden. It is a worthy touch for these aristocrats, the visitor thinks. Leaving the orchid lane there are hundreds more of the beautiful things, some of the loveliest, with their faces cheerfully turned to the crowds.

An Italian garden has been designed for the tea room this year by Charles Over Cornelius. This year there is room to accommodate the guests who come to luncheon from 11:30 to 1 and to tea from 3:30 to 6. The proceeds go to the National and Manhattan Chapters of the Girl Scouts, who will give a share to the Virginia Day Nursery.

TISBO SAFES OPENED AS ITALIANS RIOT

MOB CHARGES THE POLICE

Fugitive Brothers Gave Promissory Notes for the Money They Took, Inquiry Indicates.

BRANCH CLOSED IN ITALY

Replies to Cable Messages Say Representative Has Vanished From Town of Bitonto.

Under a heavy police guard made necessary by rioting in the afternoon, the three big safes in the steamship ticket agency of Vincenzo Tisbo & Bros., 121 Mott Street, were opened last night while 1,000 despairing depositors waited outside to learn whether any part of $2,600,000 entrusted with the missing Tisbos should be found. In the safes were found 1,000,000 Russian rubles, a large quantity of German marks, some bonds said to be worthless, and three packages of jewelry, left for safekeeping. The jewelry was estimated to be worth less than $1,000.

The safes were opened in the presence of Miss Bertha Rembaugh, 165 Broadway, appointed receiver for Vincenzo Tisbo & Bros. She was appointed by Judge A. N. Hand on the petition of creditors represented by Samuel Hoffman, 1,476 Broadway, who went with Miss Rembaugh to the steamship ticket agency last night to inspect the contents of the three safes.

The opening of the safes was expected earlier in the afternoon by hundreds of depositors who have been massed around the entrance of the ticket agency since Saturday, when it became generally known in the Italian colonies that the Tisbo brothers had dropped out of sight on Wednesday. The crowd after waiting nearly all day began to show signs of impatience late in the afternoon.

In front of the doors of the ticket agency they were turned by Patrolmen Andrew Conway and Owen Stevens of the Oak Street Station, assigned as temporary custodians of the agency offices pending the settlement of the affairs through court proceedings. The crowd grew more and more restive when none with authority to open the safes arrived.

Depositors Rush the Police

The excited depositors were unable to restrain themselves by 5:30 o'clock. Pressing together in a compact formation they closed in on the two policemen. The mass of depositors struck the two patrolmen like a human tide. Conway and Stevens were lifted off their feet and hurled against the wall at their backs.

"Get the key, get the key!" shouted depositors, who understood that the two patrolmen had the keys to the steamship ticket agency.

Stevens thrust one hand into a pocket to shield the keys of the ticket agency. Conway drew his gun and warned the immigrants back. At sight of the policeman's weapon the mob halted. Conway seized his advantage by pushing back some of those in the front rank of the surging crowd. Inch by inch he forced a way through. But as fast as he pushed the crowd back in one place it surged forward in another.

The situation of the beleaguered policemen seemed serious until other policemen in the neighborhood were informed of the attempt by the mob to storm the ticket agency. They hurried to 121 Mott Street and arrived just in time to prevent the mob from sweeping the policemen through the entrance of the building.

The crowd stood doggedly in slush and mist in front of the ticket agency as night came on. They were still there in increasing numbers in the middle of the evening, when the receiver and counsel for the missing brothers drove up with Joseph Biancolo, 215 Grand Street, an expert safe opener.

Quickly word that the safes were to be opened was spread through the crowd. Although Miss Rembaugh and Mr. Hoffman showed an order by Judge Hand authorizing an inspection of the safes, they were referred to the Oak Street Station by the policemen on duty at the agency. They drove to the station and returned without having gained admittance without further difficulty.

Big Safes Yield Quickly.

The big safe in the front office was the first which Biancolo undertook to open. Hhe placed his ear close to the steel door of the strong box and listened closely to the click of the tumblers as he turned them into position. Within fifteen minutes he opened the door of the safe. Similarly he opened another large safe in the rear of the ticket agency, but he used a drill to open the door of the third and smallest safe.

While the safe expert was manipulating the combinations the crowd in the street watched intently the motions of those beside the safes. The depositors made no further attempt to rush the agency because an extra heavy guard of uniformed police and detectives was established in front of the building under the inspection of Inspector Coughlin, in charge of the Detective Bureau, and Captain Fowler of the Oak Street Station.

Detectives Kemp, O'Leary, O'Hara and Gray were constantly mingling with the crowd while the safes were being opened. They slapped the depositors on the back, made good-natured exchanges, and incidentally felt pockets in quest of firearms, knives and other weapons.

After the last safe was opened, and only jewelry found, Miss Rembaugh, Hoffman and Biancolo left the ticket agency. As they emerged, announcement was made to the depositors that the affairs of the Tisbo brothers could not be determined without further study of the documents found in the safes. It was explained to the crowd that further information for them would originate probably in the courts.

May Dodge Larceny Charge.

Miss Rembaugh was unable to make an inventory or estimate the value of the jewelry last night. By leaving the jewelry intact, the Tisbo brothers, according to the police, left no basis for a charge of grand larceny against themselves, if they gave promissory notes, as reported, for the money they received.

Examination of the contents of the safes was made on behalf of three creditors, Vincenzo Nagliero, Francesco Variello and Taverio Amato, with claims aggregating $2,000. Their petition states that while insolvent the alleged bankrupts secreted and concealed assets of upward of $500,000 in defrauding creditors." The petition estimates that the liabilities are more than $1,000,000 and assets less than $1,000.

A second petition was filed later by three creditors with claims for money deposited with the Tisbo brothers to buy Italian lire. They include Gennaro Del Re, with a claim of $11,348; Giuseppi Vitone, $10,300, and Francesco Sciascia, $600. They were represented by Frank, Weil & Strouse, 185 Madison Avenue. The second petition does not estimate assets and liabilities.

While petitions were being filed for a receiver, an investigation was begun by District Attorney Joab H. Banton. A dozen depositors who appeared at the District Attorney's office were questioned by Assistant District Attorney Frank E. Carstarphen.

"The information I have so far," District Attorney Banton said "is that the Tisbos borrowed money on promissory notes, so that the creditors may have to seek their remedy in the civil courts. Unless we can show that there was an intent from the start to obtain money by trick and device, as happened in the case of '520 per cent.' Miller, or Charles Ponzi, in Boston, we will not be able to prosecute successfully."

Tisbos Kept Her Pass Book.

Patrons who left their money—in many cases their life savings—for safe keeping with the Tisbos were accompanied to the District Attorney's office by Detective Joseph Kemp of the Oak Street Station. The first ones questioned were Mrs. Margarita Brocoli, 147 Railroad Avenue, and her cousin, Joseph Alcise of 151 Railroad Avenue, Mamaroneck, N. Y. Mrs. Brocoli said she borrowed 24,432 lire and her cousin 30,521 from Vincenzo Tisbo last August. She deposited with him as collateral her pass books on a bank in Rome. She said that on March 4 she repaid Tisbo $3,000 with 6 per cent. interest, but did not get back her pass book.

Mr. Carstarphen examined the receipts given by the Tisbos' agency for money deposited by customers. These receipts were on Italian bond paper with a water mark, "Regno d'Italia," and an Italian coat of arms, according to Mr. Carstarphen. After the receipts were submitted to several Italian banks here by Assistant District Attorney Peter de Sabbatino it was concluded that they were a form of promissory note.

One of the patrons of the Tisbo brothers was reported yesterday to be in a serious condition as a result of shock upon learning of conditions at the ticket agency. She is Mrs. Anunia Vitucca, 121 Mulberry Street, who with her husband, Francesco, gave into the keeping of the Tisbos $1,200. She fainted at the ticket agency yesterday and was carried home.

The money the Tisbo brothers took, according to their depositors, includes funds they collected among the Italian colony for the annual festival of St. Maria, patron saint of the town of Bitonto, Italy, whence the Tisbos and most of their patrons emigrated. Former fellow-townsmen said they had contributed $1 each to the festival fund.

Confidence in the Tisbos had been unlimited, according to members of the Italian colonies, who explained that in Bitonto, Vincenzo Tisbo was so highly respected that he became the godfather of more than fifty children. He started life as a worker with pick and shovel, next became a vendor of garlic, and by degrees rose to a dealer in olive oil, a notary public and steamship ticket agent and "private banker"—without license, however, to operate in New York State.

Sold Holdings in Italy.

To ascertain how affairs stood in the native town of the Tisbos, several depositors of the ticket agency clubbed together last Saturday and cabled for information to the authorities of Bitonto. A cablegram in reply was received yesterday by Genero Del Re from Pietro Ventafridido, Mayor of Bitonto, saying that the Tisbos had sold their property in their native city and that Riccardo Tisbo, one of the brothers, who was in charge of the Bitonto branch of the ticket agency, had left the town.

Similarly information concerning the Tisbos' business status was sought by Salvatore Ninivi, a wealthy grocer of Eighth Avenue. The reply to his cable showed that the Tisbos had disposed of their branch agency in Bitonto, but the indications were that the brothers had not disposed of their other property in the Italian town.

The police were informed that Francisco Tisbo and his wife were aboard the steamship Taormina, due today at Gibraltar. The Grand Jury ill be asked for an indictment this morning in time to wireless to officials of the boat at Gibraltar to hold Francisco.

At the office of the Navigazione Generale Italiana, 1 State Street, officials of the steamship line confirmed the fact that the couple had sailed on Thursday. Their tickets showed Genoa as their destination. From the executive offices of the steamship line a denial that Vincenzo Tisbo had dined aboard the steamship Giuseppe Verdi on Wednesday was issued. It was declared that Captain Manganaro knew none of the brothers Tisbo and had not dined with them. One of the Tisbo brothers used to run a laundry in Brooklyn and did work for the steamship line, it was further explained.

G. Gararon, Vice President of the Italian Discount and Trust Company, 836 Broadway, where the Tisbo brothers were reported to have maintained a large account, said their balance for many months had not been more than $200. He said that the largest deposit ever made by them was $20,000, several years ago. When Vincenzo Tisbo opened an account with the bank he "had a good standing among bankers and among the trade," explained an official of the Italian Discount and Trust Company.

The East River Savings Institution denied that the Tisbos ever opened an account at that institution. One of their depositors was with the East River National Bank, where it was explained that they now had a balance of only $1.08; that they had never built up a large account nor made any sudden withdrawals.

Among those who visited the offices of the District Attorney was State Senator Salvatore Cotillo, representing a dozen clients, with claims aggregating $50,000. He said he doubted whether any of them would get their money back. Senator Cotillo then said:

"The only remedy I can see is to amend the law to prevent the existence of these places. No one without a license should be permitted to accept money to be transmitted."

Assemblyman Frank R. Galgano, who was present, said he agreed with what Senator Cotillo had said.

Money was obtained from depositors of the Tisbos "probably in a dozen different ways," was the conclusion reached late last night by Assistant District Attorney Carstarphen, who explained that he would continue today the examination of additional depositors, and would question the purser and wireless operator of the steamer whose owners deny that Tisbo dined with the Captain. Mr. Carstarphen said he would examine a real estate man from whom he expected to obtain important information. His investigation will hinge largely upon the character of the promissory notes, of which he hopes to have authentic translations today.

Following a hasty examination of the safes at the ticket agency and their contents, Miss Rembaugh late last night said:

"Everything is in a state of disorder and confusion. It is impossible at this time to make any intelligent statement as to what the assets will be or of the liabilities transferred or canceled. It is impossible to say whether there will be any assets or not."

The papers in the safes included returned checks showing that the Tisbos had withdrawn substantial amounts of money from banks where they had accounts. The receiver also found the pass books of the Tisbo brothers, a deed to property in Chauncey Street, Brooklyn, a check written to the Lamport & Holt Steamship Line, and a deed to property at 75 Elizabeth Street, said to be valued at $9,000. Mail and packages were included among the contents of the safes.

In a compartment of one big safe the searchers found a quantity of white powder. The receiver will open the ticket agency offices today in an effort to straighten out the affairs of the missing Tisbos.

Robbers Take War Medal And Hit Owner for Protest

Morris A. Adler, a partner in the drug firm of Pekarne & Adler, at 1,391 New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday told of a hold-up which took place on March 2, of which he was the victim. Mr. Adler said that he was closing the store in the evening when three well-dressed men entered and pointed revolvers at him. They forced him to the back of the store and while one of the bandits kept him covered with a revolver the other two bound him with ropes.

The thieves took $151 from the cash register, a check for $40 and a service medal received from the Government for work rendered in France with the Medical Corps during the World War. Adler pleaded with the robbers to leave his war medal, but they replied by striking him. The police of the Fourth Avenue Station gave out no information concerning the robbery.

SUSTAINS LOWER COURT

State Levy of 1 Per Cent. on National Bank Shares Again Held to Be Discriminatory.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The decision rendered by the New York State Court of Appeals that discrimination was shown by the State's tax levy of 1 per cent. on shares of national banks, while no assessment was made on the capital of private bankers, will stand. The United States Supreme Court today refused to review the case of Henry M. Goldfogle, President of the Board of Taxes and Assessment of the City of New York, against the Hanover National Bank, and upheld the decision of the lower court.

In the Hanover National Bank case the sum of $246,153 was involved, but it is said that the court's refusal today to grant a writ of certiorari and to reopen the case will mean that $5,910,573 in taxes assessed in 1921 and 1922 by New York City will never be collected.

The case settled today began when 524 shareholders of the Hanover National Bank, owning 30,000 shares, were each assessed $810.51 per share. New York City contended that the 1 per cent. tax was not levied upon the actual share value, but upon the sum of the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits divided by the total number of shares.

George P. Nichols, Corporation Counsel of New York City, who submitted the petition for a writ of certiorari which the court refused today, said in his argument some time ago that the Court of Appeals decision stating that the taxes levied against national banks were discriminatory and repugnant to the section of the Revised Statutes allowing States to tax national banks at a rate not greater than that applied to other moneyed capital in the hands of individuals was wrong, and that the court had acted "without foundation in fact." While the court had estimated that the competing capital of private banks was nearly twice the total capital of the State and national banks, it had not made any finding as to the actual value of national bank shares, nor the actual value of competing capital taxed on income only, Mr. Nichols argued.

The tax laws were not inequitable, insisted the City of New York, which held that the Court should not have ordered a cancellation of the taxes levied on shares, but that the matter should have been sent back to the trial court to take evidence on the alleged discrimination, and to direct appropriate relief, so that the banks might be "required to pay taxes on an equality with that borne by competing moneyed capital." Congress, in specifying that the rate of taxation on national banks should not exceed the rate applied to moneyed capital in the hands of individuals, did not mean that the national banks should be free from taxation, it was contended.

Attorneys appearing for New York City suggested that the Court should grant the writ because of the large amount of assessments and taxes involved and because of the "very great need to definitely settle the legal status of the right of the States to tax the shares of national banks and the extent to which such right may be exercised."

Since the filing of the petition, Congress has amended Section 5,219 of the Revised Statutes specifically declaring that the States could tax the shares of national banks and defining the standards. The revision takes into account the fact that the States have different systems of taxations and making provision to meet the situation in New York, Massachusetts, Minnesota and elsewhere.

ASKS STATE TO SELL 7TH AVENUE ARSENAL

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—In a special message to the Legislature tonight Governor Smith suggests that a bill be passed empowering the Governor, the State Controller and the Adjutant General to sell to the highest bidder the State arsenal at 463 Seventh Avenue, New York City, and provide an appropriation of $600,000 for the erection of a new arsenal to be located in South Brooklyn, adjoining the Federal army base.

In his message Governor Smith says:

"Aside from its inadequacy, it has been declared unsafe by an architect from the office of the State Architect. The walls are bulging and the stone saddles that support the columns are broken. The floors and stairways are weak and the roof is very much in need of repair. It contains at a conservative time more than $1,500,000 worth of material and constitutes a very great fire hazard.

"If the city was to exercise its jurisdiction over unsafe buildings we would not be permitted to use it. The plumbing is old and insanitary. There being no cellar to the building, the first floor is damp and constitutes a standing menace to the health of the employes.

"A bill carrying out the Governor's suggestions probably will be introduced later this week in both houses.

Award Made by Jury in Case of Man Run Over by Freight Car.

A verdict of $40,000 was awarded yesterday by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Mahoney in the suit of William J. Hodgert, 23, of 532 Ninth Avenue, against the Lackawanna Railroad for $100,000 because he was run over by a runaway freight car in the yards at Scranton Pa., last August 12.

At the time of the accident Hodgert was doing patrol duty in the yards safeguarding the property from possible violence during a strike. Since the accident he has been paralyzed from the waist down. He was taken to court each day on a stretcher.

Refuse Bryson a New Trial.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12. — The State Supreme Court today affirmed the action of the Huntingdon County Court in the appeal of Dr. Herbert Bryson, formerly of Washington, D. C., who was convicted on the charge of killing Mrs. Helen Haines, with whom he lived at Cassville, Pa. The appeal was for a new trial, based on fifteen assignments of error. Bryson, a World War veteran, was sentenced to from fourteen to eighteen years' imprisonment. After the war Dr. Bryson eloped with Mrs. Haines, wife of a Washington chauffeur.

Mrs. Wyburn Quits McAuley Mission to Wed; Romance With Evangelist Started at Revival

Mrs. John H. Wyburn has resigned as Superintendent of the McAuley Mission, 316 Water Street, and Alexander Luther Jones of Washington, D. C., has been elected by the Board of Trustees to take her place.

On March 23, next, Mrs. Wyburn will marry the Rev. Clarence Calder Fitch, a Baptist evangelist, until recently of New London, Conn., but now of Chicago. Mr. Fitch is secretary and business manager of the Bosworth brothers, revivalists. The ceremony will take place at the home of the Rev. F. F. Bosworth, Chicago. After that Mrs. Wyburn will be a member of the Bosworth party.

Mrs. Wyburn will close her work at McAuley Mission next Monday evening and a farewell service will be held then for her. Miss Elizabeth Wyburn, her daughter, will enter a Bible school in the West to train for religious work. The converts have stated they will give Mrs. Wyburn a "rousing send-off."

On the death of Mr. Wyburn, a little over two years ago, his wife was elected to succeed him. She had been missionary at Water Street for several years. Before her marriage Mrs. Wyburn was Miss May Patterson. She was one of the few women in the world to have been head of a great rescue mission. The McAuley Mission was founded by Jerry McAuley, who had served a term in prison, although he claimed he was innocent of the crime. On his death the late Samuel H. Hadley was elected. Next came Mr. Wyburn, who served fifteen years.

Mr. Fitch is 43 years old and this is his first marriage. He is a brother of the Rev. Elmer E. Fitch, assistant pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, Eighth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street.

The romance of Mrs. Wyburn and Mr. Fitch began a year ago when the Bosworth brothers conducted a revival campaign in Brooklyn. It culminated at Bridgeport, Conn., where the evangelists held meetings last January. Mrs. Wyburn paid a visit to that town to attend the services.

After a honeymoon the couple will join the Bosworth brothers in Toronto, Canada, where a campaign opens on April 1.

The new superintendent is spending a few days at the mission familiarizing himself with the work. Like Mr. Hadley and Mr. Wyburn, Mr. Jones was converted in the mission he will now head. Last Sunday afternoon, in a testimony, he said he had gone from a saloon in Bleecker Street to the mission on the advice of a friend. This was eight years ago. He became converted and had been "going straight" ever since.

For the last few years Mr. Jones has been employed by the Shipping Board in Washington. He is a local preacher in the Methodist Church.

HYLAN BUS PILGRIMS LEAVE FOR ALBANY

MAYOR SEES THEM OFF

Four motor buses, carrying a brass band, half-a-dozen bus enthusiasts and placards proclaiming Mayor Hylan's home rule transit policies, left the City Hall Plaza yesterday morning for Albany, and are expected to arrive in that city before the hearing on the Walker-Donohue transit bill tomorrow. Mayor Hylan came out of his office to see the start and braved the rain sufficiently to wish the bus pilgrim's "a pleasant and successful trip."

Members of the Yorkville Chamber of Commerce, city officials and a few reporters made up the party. Among the passengers were Frederick Richter, director of the municipally supervised bus lines, now greatly diminished in number by injunctions, Henry Mielke, President of the Yorkville Chamber of Commerce; H. L. Leverett, A. Masury, J. A. Evers, Frank Miller and August Eymer.

"I hope by the time that you return to the city the bill will have been reported out of committee and that legislation to give the people of this city home rule in transit matters will be well under way."

The sides of each bus were covered with placards, some of which read as follows:

"Oust the higher fare Transit Commission."

"Mayor Hylan's Paul Revere buses, enroute to Albany to arouse every city, village and town in the fight for transit home rule. Yorkville Chamber of Commerce invites your co-operation."

"Home rule means people's rule, not corporation rule."

"The 1923 mode of transportation."

Mayor Hylan and the other members of the Board of Estimate, with a delegation of workmen, left for Albany for the hearing. The buses, which were scheduled to be in Poughkeepsie last night and in Albany tonight, will head a procession up Capitol Hill in Albany upon the arrival of the Mayor and his party.

"The reason for dispatching these buses is to show the legislators the kind of surface transportation the people of New York City want," said Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures.

Arrive at Red Hook.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—The two Yorkville buses, that left New York this morning for a trip over snowbound roads to Albany, and possibly to Buffalo, reached Red Hook tonight.

The drivers stopped in Poughkeepsie only long enough to replenish the gasoline supply and obtain refreshment, and then resumed the trip for Albany, 74 miles distant.

The buses reached Red Hook, seventeen miles south of Hudson, shortly before 11 o'clock tonight. The drivers were unable to go any further tonight and the buses were placed in a garage. Tomorrow morning they will tackle the huge drifts between Red Hook and Hudson.

It had been planned to give the drivers a reception had they reached Hudson tonight, but after fighting snow for six hours, the drivers decided to remain in Red Hook all night.

As the buses near Hudson they will find much more snow than was encountered between Poughkeepsie and New York. Above Hudson the roads are blocked and motorists assert that the buses will not be able to get through without the help of horses.

Two or three automobiles abandoned and stuck in the snow drifts are on the highway between Hudson and Stuyvesant. One big freight van was pulled out of the snow a few days ago, unable to proceed further.

HYLAN PUTS TRANSIT QUERY UP TO CRAIG

HAS TILT WITH THE MAYOR

He Will Ignore Estimate Board's Resolution and Send Data Direct.

Mayor Hylan with the approval of all his colleagues on the Board of Estimates except one attempted yesterday to pass to Controller Charles L. Craig responsibility for furnishing information as to how the city intends to finance the Mayor's $600,000,000 transit plan. The Assembly by the adoption of a resolution presented by Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg has requested such information, and the discussion as to who should furnish it took place at the board's meeting of the Committee of the Whole.

A demand for this information was made upon Mayor Hylan after he left on his recent visit to Palm Beach and has thus far remained unanswered. The information will have to be given and it apparently seemed to the Mayor a good opportunity to pass the job to the Controller by a motion made such a resolution.

"The subway plan is yours," Controller Craig said to the Mayor. "You are taking all the credit for it. Why don't you take the public into your confidence and tell every one just how it is going to be financed?"

"You might give the Board of Estimate some of the information you are getting out for other people," the Mayor retorted. "We would be glad to have it."

Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, said that the Assembly had undoubtedly sent its resolution to the Mayor because it did not realize that the Controller was the chief financial officer. Mr. Craig said that the Assembly had sent an inquiry to him because the Mayor had refused to reply to its original resolution.

"Nobody can say that I refused to give the information," the Mayor declared. "I was out of the city at the time. I understand that the Controller was getting out some stuff on this, even before the resolution. If he has this information, I do not see why he should not give it."

"That's about as accurate as other things you get by underground channels from my office," said the Controller.

Mr. Miller suggested that the original motion asking the Controller for information be amended to request him to furnish the information to the board which would then forward it to the Assembly, through the Mayor. Controller refused to vote on this, but the resolution was passed with all the other members of the board voting in the affirmative.

It was learned afterward that Controller Craig will disregard the resolution and not give the information to the board. He will, however, send it to the Assembly in a direct reply to the inquiry which he received.

Artist Found Dead on Sidewalk.

Otto Joseph Schulz, 36 years old, an artist, of Myrtle Avenue, Richmond Hill, was found lying dead on the sidewalk at Mayfair Road and Pal's Lane, Kew Gardens, Queens, last night. A stroke of apoplexy is believed to have caused the death.

Dr. W. E. Lippold of 121 St. Nicholas Avenue, Brooklyn, identified the body. He said he had been treating Schulz for two years for high blood pressure. Schulz was in the employ of a large lithographing company of Manhattan.

PRENDERGAST CALLS PHONE RULING FAIR

DENIES 3,000% RATE RISE

In Reply to Governor He Says No Protest Has Come From Big Subscriber.

The letter explaining the reasons for the new telephone rates ordered by the Public Service Commission, which Governor Smith asked for from William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the commission, was given out yesterday by the latter because the Governor had failed to make it public within a reasonable time after its receipt. The request for the explanation followed complaints from civic organizations in this city that the new rates were burdensome and not necessary, because the New York Telephone Company was already earning a fair return on its investment.

After the talk between the Governor and Mr. Prendergast, which closed with the request for the letter of explanation, a report from Albany was to the effect that the Governor intended to hasten the passage of bills enabling him to get rid of the commission. Thereupon Mr. Prendergast issued a statement practically defying the Governor. The explanatory letter now made public, it was suggested yesterday, closes for the present the controversy over telephone rates so far as public officials are concerned.

The letter of explanation is dated March 6. It says that when the present Public Service Commission took office on April, 1921, there were pending about 135 complaints made by municipalities in the State against the New York Telephone Company; that the commission, because of the importance of the matter, began an investigation into telephone rates and practices throughout the State, that in the case involving only this city sixty-three hearings were held, 7,876 pages of testimony were taken, and 320 exhibits were submitted.

Mr. Prendergast says that the cases thus decided are the first affecting rates of the New York Telephone Company in the State which have been entirely completed and concluded by any public service commission.

Company's Revenues Cut.

The letter then deals with the finances of the telephone company and states that the company had been receiving less than the established return on its investment, that no complaint of the new rates has been received from the Attorney General, who represented the municipalities at the hearings; that the net effect of the new rates is to reduce the annual revenues of the company in this city more than $4,000,000 under what they would have been under rates permitted in 1921 by a former commission, and that the specific protest against the new rates has been limited entirely confined to the monthly settlement plan.

Mr. Prendergast in his letter says:

"Every fact which had any bearing on the issue, including the relationship of the New York Telephone Company with other corporations, was painstakingly and thoroughly investigated.

(1) For many years the New York Telephone Company has been paying 4½ per cent of its gross revenues to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This payment in 1921 amounted to $3,841,000, of which $2,506,750 was paid from revenues in the City of New York. By the Commission's order this 4½ per cent. payment has been changed to $2 per station. For the year 1923 the New York Telephone Company's payment to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is thus reduced $1,125,000, almost $1,000,000 of which is saved in the City of New York.

(2) It was contended by the New York Telephone Company that the structural value of its plant was $336,000,000, and, including going value, that the property on which it was entitled to a return was worth $400,000,000. Further, the United States Supreme Court, sitting in the city of New York, in an opinion rendered in May, 1922, stated, in reference to the value of the New York Telephone Company's property in this State, 'No computation has been made for the future switchboard, no matter what its value might be, on the number of operators working at it, or the number of messages and the amount of service necessary on the part of the company.' We have fixed the value of the company's property at $246,000,000; $162,000,000 less than the company claimed and $54,000,000 less than the United States Court had indicated. Nothing was allowed by this Commission for going value.

(3) The New York Telephone Company has very large depreciation reserve. It has been including as expense items very large sums annually for depreciation. The commission in its recent decision directed that this large depreciation reserve should continue to be accumulated at such a rate and further that annual expenses of depreciation be reduced by nearly $2,000,000.

Sets Return at 7 Per Cent.

"(4) Under the rates in effect, the New York Telephone Company was receiving a net return of 5.76 per cent. in the City of New York, while in the balance of the State of New York it was receiving a net return of 7.98 per cent. Although 8 per cent. has so often been allowed by courts and commissions as to have come to be regarded as an established rate of return for public utilities, this commission directed rates to pay a net return of only 7 per cent. throughout the State of New York, now in the City of New York and in the balance of the State.

"(5) This commission rejected the estimates of the New York Telephone Company as to future expenses almost in their entirety and made what it considered reasonable allowances for expenses totalling many millions of dollars less than the Company's estimates.

"The commission's decision was made Jan. 23, 1922. The widest possible publicity was given to the order and to the rates proposed therein. It was directed to be effective March 1, 1923. Copies of the opinion and order were served upon the Attorney General, the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, and the legal representatives of every municipality having a telephone rate case pending before the commission. In addition, the commission has issued up to this time 1,000 copies of the opinion and order and to the best of its ability has sought to acquaint the public generally with the nature and precise effect of the decision. Although forty days have now elapsed, the Attorney General of the State, representing the municipalities, has made no complaint. The only objection by the City of New York is a plea for a modification of the so-called monthly settlement as applied to New York City.

"While the decision and order in the State-wide case did not necessarily dispose of the complaints brought by municipalities outside of the City of New York, as their cases were each a special case, in response to a communication from this commission requesting their desire as to the proposed rates and the disposition of their pending cases, 100 municipalities with telephone cases pending before the commission have consented that such cases be closed on the records of the commission. Such a general acceptance of the rates would seem to be some indication, at least, that the commission's decision, and order, as applied to communities outside the City of New York, is regarded as fair and just and has been found acceptable.

"It will be remembered that the former Public Service Commission, Second District, in the New York City case recently decided by this commission, directed by a temporary order on April 1, 1921, an increase in telephone rates in New York City of over 28 per cent. This increase in rates so made amounted to an increase in the annual revenues of the telephone company in the City of New York of over $12,000,000.

"The present commission within two months after its appointment reduced such increase by nearly $8,000,000. The net effect, so far as the City of New York is concerned, of the present situation, is to reduce the annual revenues of the New York Telephone Company in the City of New York over $4,000,000 under what they would have been if the rates permitted by the former commission in 1921 had been continued.

Denies 3,000 Per Cent Rise.

"It is true that in the City of New York rates for most of the small subscribers have been reduced and rates for large subscribers increased. It is also true that settlements in the City of New York of telephone bills have been placed upon a monthly rather than an annual basis.

"The specific protest from New York City against the new rates has been almost entirely confined to objection made to this monthly settlement plan. Much has also appeared in the newspapers regarding the increase to large users.

"At our interview you called my attention to a complaint made to you by telegram on Feb. 28, in which it was charged that there had been "an enormous increase in a certain class (sic) jumping from $36 to $1,200 a year, and even more increases of 3,000 per cent. are imposed." One would infer from the statement made by your correspondent that in some instances annual telephone bills had been increased from $36 to $1,200 and in others increases of 3,000 per cent. in annual telephone bills had been made. This is absurdly, and grotesquely untrue, and for these reasons:

"The commission's decision and orders have affected a readjustment of rates. For many years, particularly in the City of New York, there has been no relation between the value of equipment (switchboards and appurtenances) installed in the premises of large users, and the rates charged for such equipment. This disparity has been so great that it seems inconceivable that so important a question could have been neglected by former Public Service Commissions. The telephone company maintains that it has for the past ten years been endeavoring to have Public Service Commissions fix a proper schedule of rates for such equipment, for instance, a rate was fixed a great many years ago of $2.20 a month for a switchboard. Large users requiring and using switchboard equipment worth from $10,000 to $50,000 were paying for the use of this equipment $2.20 per month.

"The effect of such rates has been to place upon all classes of telephone users the expense of carrying this equipment, for if one user of the service is paying a rate which is not compensatory to the company it naturally follows that the other users must make up the company's loss. This is what is called discrimination, and as such, is distinctly forbidden by the Public Service Commission law.

"Prior to the City of New York there are less than 250 of such, so-called large users, the amount of equipment which has to be maintained by the telephone company to furnish them service aggregates a very large sum. In other States, a rate prescription, or per-operator, according to the number of operators working upon the switchboard, had been followed and was generally approved. This is the method which this commission adopted.

"Instead of the utterly ridiculous rate of $2.20 per month for the use of the entire switchboard, no matter what its value might be, on the number of operators working at it, or the number of messages and the amount of service necessary on the part of the company, we have fixed a rate of $1.50 per month per position. The consequence is that in a case where twenty-two operators are employed (there are two such cases in the City of New York), the new rate would be being $30 per month for the switchboard equipment, is $10 per month per operator, or $220 per month. Instead of being $26.40 per year, it will be $2,640 a year. Upon the reasonable requirement rule, it is evident that the person sending you the telegram referred to, based his charge of 3,000 per cent. increase. But the charge for the equipment item is only one of the many entering into the annual telephone bill of large users. One of the subscribers in New York using a switchboard with twenty-two positions, based on its message use in 1922 will, under the new rate, notwithstanding this increased charge for switchboard equipment, find a total increase in its annual bill of 15 8-10 per cent.

"The commission in its consideration of these cases examined and made such estimates of annual telephone bills of many large users in the City of New York, and the new rates show that the increases to the largest users on an annual basis are in the neighborhood of from 12 to 14 per cent. Newspapers, which are very large users of telephone service, have increases in their annual bills of from 4 to 12 per cent. May I say at this point that not a single protest up to this time has been received from any of the newspapers which are the largest users of telephone service in the City of New York?

Monthly Settlement Plan.

"In addition to these 250 large users there are about 30,000 private branch exchange users whose switchboard equipment is quite limited. Although many of these will have to pay a higher equipment charge than formerly, they will be advantaged materially because heretofore any one maintaining a private branch exchange has had to contract in advance for not less than 2,400 messages whether he used that number per year or not. Under the commission's decision this requirement is eliminated, and there will be a resulting saving running as high as 15 per cent. from the fact that subscribers are only required to pay for such messages as they actually use. This last is one of the principles upon which the new rates are based. The discrimination which has heretofore existed and which resulted in giving wholesale rates to certain large users has been eliminated, and all subscribers start upon the same rate schedule and are charged for such service as is actually used.

"Most complaint in the City of New York has been with regard to the institution of the system of monthly settlement of telephone bills. Certain civic organizations in the City of New York having asked a rehearing of the commission's order in relation to this question and having been joined therein by the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, three public hearings were held, one in Albany and two in New York City. The commission, after full consideration, made a decision on Wednesday last in which it was declined to grant a rehearing on this question. The substance of complaint was this: Heretofore telephone contracts in the City of New York have been written upon an annual basis and many people have had contracts under which they were entitled to use 600 messages per annum. If they closed their homes during the summer time and made no telephone calls they were allowed to spread the full complement of 600 messages during the balance of the year.

"New York City is about the last important community in the United States in which monthly settlements have not been effected. In the balance of the State of New York they have been in effect since 1918."

Hikes From Florida at 75 To Claim a $5,000 Legacy

William H. Chapman, 75, of Millington, Conn., stopped yesterday in Hoboken on the last lap of his hike from Miami, Fla., to Albany, where a $5,000 legacy awaits him. He is white haired, tall, impressive and full of vigor. In less than three years he has walked 9,000 miles. On May 1, 1920, he started to walk from New York to Vancouver, B. C., by the Canadian route. The signature of Mayor Griffin of Hoboken was added to credentials already in his possession.

"Seventy-five years do not mean a thing," he said today. "I smoke a pipe, chew tobacco and take a nip whenever I feel like it. Unless I'm far wrong I am going to live 75 years more, at least."

Chapman predicted he might try matrimony after he gets his legacy. He said he would go on no more long hikes.

FIRPO KNOCKS OUT BRENNAN IN 12TH

Chicagoan Is So Dazed by Blow That He Has to Be Carried to His Corner.

WINNER'S FORM IS AWKWARD

Luis Angel Firpo, mastodonic Argentine boxer who cherished hopes of one day carrying south of the equator the world's heavyweight crown now worn by Jack Dempsey, advanced part way toward his goal last night by knocking out Bill Brennan of Chicago after two minutes thirty-seven seconds in the twelfth round of their scheduled fifteen-round battle at Madison Square Garden.

A heavy right to the jaw, delivered while Firpo had Brennan up against the ropes, started the Chicagoan toward defeat. The huge Argentinian quickly followed with right and lefts which battered Brennan's head up and down and then, with a final wallop, delivered on the back of the head with the force of a piledriver, Firpo sent Brennan down for the count.

The Chicagoan plunged face downward on the canvas and remained there while Referee Jack Appel counted off the fatal seconds. Brennan was assisted to his knees and was so dazed that he had to be carried to his corner. While the South American boxer was evasive as he left the ring owing to the great gameness he showed, after Brennan opened up a deep cut over his left eye in the fifth round. His wound bled profusely throughout the remainder of the battle and a less courageous fighter would have quit.

Receipts Are $42,741.

Officials of the Garden announced that the attendance was 11,034 and that the receipts were $42,741.

Although ponderously slow and unusually deficient in boxing ability, Firpo showed that he possesses a terrific right. As a matter of fact, that right is his only offensive weapon. On only two occasions did he bring his left into play, and then he did so awkwardly. He lacks the knowledge of defensive tactics, but big, strong and husky, he is able to administer punishment. The cut which Brennan opened up over his eye had him in distress throughout the contest, but he continued to thrash around the ring, apparently unmindful of Brennan's blows.

During the early part of the engagement he directed his sole attack at Brennan's body and it was these sledgehammer blows that finally paved the way for the finishing touches in the twelfth round.

The Western heavyweight scored in only four of the twelve rounds, the fifth, seventh, tenth and eleventh. In the tenth Brennan had Firpo groggy when he sent several crashing lefts into Firpo's stomach, and in the following round he continued his assault on the same place. Brennan did not appear to be in the pink of condition, but considering the conditions and despite his disadvantage of seventeen pounds in weight the Westerner put up a good battle.

In the final round of the battle the two boxers rushed into a clinch at the gong. After they wrestled around the ring Firpo sent in a crashing right to Brennan's ribs, and the Chicagoan retaliated with two rights to the head. From that moment on Firpo began an assault which soon had Brennan in a hopeless condition. Firpo landed with a crashing right to the body, followed by another to the jaw, and then pushed the Chicagoan up against the ropes, where he began his battering tactics that brought about the finish.

The opening round was productive of little action, both Firpo and Brennan being cautious, sounding each other out. Toward the close Firpo landed a few chop blows on Brennan's skull and the Chicagoan sent home two rights.

Firpo looked especially awkward in the third round, relying solely on his right hand. As the men were rushing into a clinch, the South American flailed Brennan with thumping rights to the body and jaw. Brennan rushed in close to protect himself. Firpo sent Brennan back across the ring with two rights that went crashing into the ribs. The South American boxer was wildly acclaimed at the gong.

Brennan in Distress.

Firpo continued to batter Brennan's body with fights in the fourth round. Getting his man up against the ropes, the South American showered him with rights, and when the bell rang Brennan showed plainly that he was in distress.

When the bell sounded for the fifth round the South American rushed out of his corner and continued his assault on Brennan's ribs and head. He landed a solid right on Brennan's jaw as the latter was coming in, but in a mix-up near his own corner Firpo received a bad gash over his left eye when Brennan caught him with a short left uppercut.

After Brennan had taunted Firpo with lefts and rights to the body and jaw in the sixth round, the latter countered with two heavy lefts, one of the few occasions when the South American used his port-side fist. He almost floored Bill with a resounding right that caught the Chicago heavyweight flush on the jaw. Brennan dropped down on one knee, but was up in a hurry. A right to the face, followed by another caused the blood to spurt from Firpo's wound and the South American was a sorry sight as he went to his corner.

Brennan had all the better of the seventh round, during the course of which Firpo, swinging wildly, bumped the injury to his right arm received on shipboard. His face was contracted in pain and for the rest of the session he boxed cautiously, seemingly unwilling to use his right.

The ninth and tenth rounds were uneventful, both fighters appearing fagged by their exertions. The blood kept flowing from Firpo's wound, while Brennan was beginning to show the effects of Firpo's body punishment. Brennan sent home a stiff right, which caught Firpo amidships, at the bell, and the South American went to his corner in a groggy condition.

As the eleventh round opened, Brennan again ripped a right to Firpo's stomach, and, as the latter came bounding off the ropes, Brennan caught him with lefts and rights. It was the final flash of the Chicagoan.

In the twelfth round Firpo unleashed a furious attack on Brennan's ribs, slowing the Chicagoan up, and then shifted his assault to Brennan's jaw and head. Battering his man into a helpless state, Firpo finally brought the battle to an end with a ponderous right which landed on the base of Brennan's skull, sending the Westerner lunging to the canvas.

Firpo Weighs 220, Brennan 203.

The men entered the ring shortly before 10 o'clock, Firpo wearing a yellow and black bathrobe with purple trimmings and Brennan an old red sweater. It was announced that Brennan weighed 203 pounds and Firpo 220. There was the usual picture taking, during which Brennan scowled menacingly and Firpo looked somewhat bewildered.

So far as a gate attraction went, the card failed to tax the Garden appreciably, there being plenty of vacant seats scattered around through the amphitheatre. Contrary to general conditions on fight nights, there was no mob storming the Garden ticket booths early in the evening. Tickets were plentiful and the scalpers who managed to get hold of pasteboards hoping for a harvest failed to realize on it.

Attracted in large numbers by the prospect of seeing their fellow-citizen of the city scattered around the arena, many of the South American residents of the city scattered around the Arena. There was also a fair sized delegation of the members of the fair sex present.

The betting odds took a sudden shift at the ringside early in the day, the odds were all in Firpo's favor, ranging from three to three and one half to one. As the hour of battle approached, the odds were in Brennan's favor at 7 to 5.

Fitzsimmons Outpoints McKenna.

The semi-wind-up brought Charley McKenna, former amateur boxer, hailing from Greenwich Village, and Bob Fitzsimmons of Newark, son of the former heavyweight champion, into action. After twelve gruelling rounds, Fitzsimmons was declared the winner. McKenna did well to stand up as he did, for he was nearly out several times. He weighed 176 to Fitzsimmons's 185 pounds.

In the third round Fitzsimmons opened up a bad cut under McKenna's left eye, and the latter went through the rest of the way with the optic entirely out of commission. In the fourth round Fitzsimmons received practically the only punishment that McKenna was able to inflict, when he stopped a right with his cheekbone. After that Fitz had all the way. He continued to batter away on McKenna's jaw but was unable to drop his man.

In the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds, McKenna appeared on the verge of a knockout, but he managed to weather the storm. He staged a little flurry in the two closing rounds, in which he brought his right hand into action, but for the most part he was the receiver of gruelling punishment.

Skinner Wins First Preliminary.

Joe Skinner of Phoenix, Ariz., was awarded the decision over Jack Tilyou of the west side in the opening four-round bout. Both boys showed willingness to trade wallops, but Skinner was an easy winner from start to finish, although Tilyou proved his gameness by standing up under punishment without flinching. Skinner enjoyed an advantage of 6 pounds in weight, scaling 157 pounds against Tilyou's 151.

Phil Kaplan, Harlem boxer, easily earned the decision over Jimmy Ammato of the east side in a six-round contest. Kaplan was far too clever for the Italian boxer, who was on the defensive from the opening bell to the finish. In the first round Kaplan sent Ammato down on one knee with a heavy right to the jaw. The latter was up in a moment, however, and weathered the storm to the end of the way.

In the third round Kaplan ran into a straight left that caused the claret to flow from his nose, but that was the only damage that Ammato inflicted on him. In the sixth round Kaplan again got over a vicious right that sent the Italian to the canvas, but he was up in a minute and stuck to the end, although stowing away plenty of punishment. Kaplan weighed 145¼ and Ammato 150 pounds.

BUENOS AIRES WILD OVER FIRPO'S VICTORY

Throngs March Through Streets and Hail Their Idol as Future Champion.

BUENOS AIRES, March 13 (Associated Press).—Buenos Aires went wild last night when the news was received that Luis Angel Firpo, pugilistic idol of Argentina, had knocked out Bill Brennan in the twelfth round of a battle in Madison Square Garden, New York. The bulletin bearing the glad tidings to the Argentine sporting world arrived in Buenos Aires only a few minutes after Brennan had been felled for the count.

Thousands of persons immediately formed into processions and marched through the streets of the city, shouting deliriously, singing and hailing Firpo as the future world's champion.

The celebration lasted into the early morning hors of today. A huge crowd gathered in front of the offices of The Associated Press, where the details of the fight were received by cables from New York, sang the Argentina national anthem and waved flags.

The throngs had begun to gather in front of the newspaper offices as early as 6 o'clock yesterday evening in order to gain vantage points from which to read the bulletins as they were received from New York.

During the day La Nacion answered more than 2,000 telephone inquiries regarding the latest news concerning the condition of the fighters and the prospects of Firpo's winning.

SCHAEFER LEADS HOPPE, 500 TO 277

HAS AN AVERAGE OF 41 8-12

Makes Many Spectacular Recoveries, While Titleholder Fails to Show His Form.

Jake Schaefer won the opening block of his 1,000 point match with Willie Hoppe for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania last night by a score of 500 to 277.

Both players were off stroke, and it was only the remarkable open playing of both men that rewarded the crowd of 1,200 that attended. As far as the finesse of delicate balkline billiards was concerned, it was shown only in flashes. Both players were nervous, and they refused to take any chances.

Hoppe was away off his best form, a fact that may be attributed in certain measure to a delay of twenty minutes in starting the game, but which probably can be ascribed in greater measure to his utter inability to control the ivories. He failed to play Hoppe billiards. Schaefer, on the other hand, was steady, but not brilliant. That accounts for his lead of 223 points.

Schaefer played the better billiards and deserved to win. After Hoppe won the bank and ran twenty-five, Schaefer took the lead with a cluster of sixty-six on his first turn at the table and thereafter he never was headed. He ran 100 in his second inning and as Hoppe made put thirty in his second chance, Schaefer led by 126 to 35.

The winner had high runs of 138 and 100 and averaged 41 8-12. Hoppe's best innings netted him 94 and 44 and his average was only 23 1-12.

Hoppe Wins the Bank.

Hoppe won the bank and he ran twenty-five before he missed on a draw shot to the short rail for position. On this shot he should have played a three-cushion drive. He left the balls in good position.

At the outset both were shy of control. During Hoppe's run he seldom had the balls together, and the twenty-five he ran there were not fifteen made by nursing.

When Schaefer stepped to the table he found the balls in good position and he ran eleven before he finally missed on a very short draw. Like Hoppe, his play was mostly open table. He seldom had control of the balls, but most of the time he showed great shot-making ability.

In the second inning Hoppe made a min of thirty and then missed on a short draw for position. At no time did he have the balls under control. His shot-making was good, but his judgment of speed was very bad.

Schaefer gained a commanding lead on his second turn at the table. He found the balls in perfect position and proceeded to click off points until he had gathered 100. He finally missed on a difficult two-cushion draw, which a majority of those at the tableside thought he should have played around the table for a gather shot.

For the next two innings neither of the players could do much with the balls. Hoppe made one and followed with a cipher. Schaefer failed to count and came back with a 4.

Schaefer Runs 139.

On Hoppe's fifth turn at the table he ran 44, making his total 100. At that time Schaefer had had but four innings and his total was 170.

Schaefer's runs had been accumulated not so much by control of the balls and nursing but by judgment of speed. His drives, whether they were one, two or three cushion, were almost perfect. The most impressive part of his work was his second ball play. This and his accurate angle work made his playing a fine exhibition.

On his fifth turn Schaefer again passed the century mark, running 139. Hoppe left the balls none too well and Jake was compelled to play a one-cushion gather the length of the table.

It was one of the most accurately played shots of the match. It put the balls in a position and he started some of the prettiest billiards ever seen in a championship match. It was not the delicate close nursing that ordinarily would feature a run of 139, but the open table variety that is far more entertaining to the spectators.

It was not until the fiftieth shot that Jake gathered the balls. Up to that point he had given a demonstration of shotmaking seldom seen in competition for a championship. After his fiftieth count Schaefer seemed to gain confidence. During the rest of his run he made but seven drives the length of the table. During the latter part of the run Schaefer showed the delicacy of stroke that a year ago carried him to the championship.

Resort to Safety Play.

Schaefer was the master of the balls. It was in great contrast to the billiards both men had played before. When Jake finished this run he had accumulated a total of 300 buttons. He left the balls spread and Hoppe played safety. Schaefer repeated the dose but the champion managed to count one before his cue ball was kissed off on a two-cushion gather shot.

Then Hoppe made the biggest run he had contributed for the edification of the crowd in his seven previous turns at the table. He ran ninety-four, missing on a one-cushion draw. It was a simple shot had he been playing only for the immediate point, but he was figuring on landing very lightly on the outside of the second ball so that he would get position.

As Schaefer stepped to the table for his eighth inning he seemed more confident than he had at any time previously. The balls were not in particularly good position, and there followed much applause, inspiring open table and cushion shots. It was not until his thirty-third shot that he succeeded in gathering them. He missed after his sixty-ninth shot on a two-cushion shot out of the corner.

Hoppe ran forty-three in his tenth inning, chiefly by his ability to make cushion shots. When Jake had completed his tenth round the score stood: Schaefer, 401; Hoppe, 238.

Schaefer Runs Out Game.

Hoppe made one and then missed a gather shot. It was one of those treacherous two-cushion hair follows out of the corner. Schaefer made 73 on his eleventh chance. It looked for a time as if he would run out the game, but he finally ran afoul of a simple draw-shot for position. He intended to hit the first object ball quarterfull. Instead he hit in dead centre and it rebounded from the short rail and missed his cue-ball off.

The score then stood: Schaefer 480, Hoppe 238.

In Hoppe's twelfth inning he made 28, missing on a force follow to the short rail. Then Schaefer finished the block with a cluster of 20 and left the balls in perfect position to continue the second block tonight.

The score by innings:

Hoppe—23 30 1 0 44 0 1 94 0 43 1 38. Total, 277; average, 23 1-12; high runs, 94, 44.

Headwork Counts in Billiards, Same as Cycling, Goullet Says

Among those seated close to the table side at the opening of the Hoppe-Schaefer world's championship billiard match at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night was Alfred Goullet who, teamed with Alf Grenda, won the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden. He watched each stroke as intently as he studied each situation during the week-long grind. While he watched he smilingly remarked, "You have to use your head to play billiards just as you have to in bicycle racing."

ARGENTINA CABLES TENNIS CHALLENGE

Enters Play for Davis Cup and Expresses Desire to Play in European Zone.

An official challenge for the Davis Cup competition was received from the Argentine Lawn Tennis Association yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, thus confirming the reports cabled last week that the South Americans would enter the lists for the historic trophy. The cablegram announced that Argentina desires to compete in the European zone and will be drawn in that division next Friday when the sixteen nations already entered are alloted places in the 1923 rounds.

Reports from Buenos Aires, which preceded the actual cable challenge, were that Argentine probably would be represented by a team of at least three players, probably Ronald Boyd, Carlos Caminos and Alfredo Villegas. These players and any others who may be added to the team are expected to sail from Buenos Aires early in May to take part in the preliminary ties in Europe.

Argentina is now one of the leading nations of South America in tennis standing and in the development of the game. Last season her players scored many victories in international matches played among the countries of the South American Continent. Argentina won the Latin-American Olympic Games in lawn tennis championship from Brazil by five matches to three and later retained the Mitre Cup in a series of matches at Buenos Aires.

Four nations challenged for the Mitre Cup which, in its deed of gift and general conditions of play, resembles the Davis Cup. These nations included Chile, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay. The winner of the preliminary round, was Chile and in the challenge round Argentina successfully defended the trophy, winning three matches to two.

Later in the season the Argentine players, who are considered as probable competitors in the Davis Cup tournament, figured prominently in the Buenos Aires championships. Ronald Boyd, who is only 18 years old and plays an aggressive and fine volleying game, won the boys' singles championship of the city, defeating C. Moreas, 4—6, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3. C. Caminos, who is also a youngster of great tennis promise, was defeated in the semi-final round by Moreas.

Moreas and Caminos then paired and won the doubles championship from Boyd and W. Robson, 6—0, 2—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—4. Villegas, who is developing as a singles player, appeared to have devoted much of his time to doubles play, and was one of the winning pair in the doubles match against Chile for the Mitre Cup.

REACH SEMI-FINALS IN SQUASH TENNIS

Mixsell Will Play Guernsey in Upper Half, While Bull Will Oppose Kunhardt in Lower.

Four matches were played yesterday in the continuation of the invitation squash tennis tournament at the Squash Club, bringing the event down to the semi-finals, which will be played this afternoon. In the upper half R. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club will meet O. L. Guernsey of the Yale Club, while in the lower half the contestants will be Charles M. Bull Jr. of the Crescent Athletic Club and Kingsley Kunhardt of the Columbia University Club.

The match between Guernsey and Mixsell should be one of the best of the tournament. Both had hard contests, although the latter engaged in the only extra game match of the round before the semi-finals. The Princeton player defeated P. S. Whitlock of the Harvard Club by the score of 15—9, 9—15, 15—9. Mixsell got into his stroke in the opening game and, while forced to exert himself, his hard hitting carried him through without relinquishing the lead.

In the second game Whitlock made a splendid rally, coming from behind. Mixsell had him 7—2, and there he stayed, while Whitlock ran the score up to 11—7 by brilliant placing and round-the-court shooting. Whitlock, after Mixsell had added two more points, ran up three more points to bring the score to 14—9 and won at 15—9 in his next hand in.

Mixsell came back strongly in the third game. His service was puzzling and his hitting was powerful, while his accuracy in placing had his opponent on the run.

Guernsey entered the semi-finals by defeating A. W. Riley of the Princeton Club, taking the first game at 15—9, but being forced to the limit to take the second at 17—16. Bull had the easiest match of the afternoon, defeating R. H. Monks of the Princeton Club by a score of 15—8, 15—3. Kingsley, his opponent in the semi-finals today, gained his place by winning from Reginald Roome of the Yale Club by 15—8, 15—8.

The summaries:

H. R. Mixsell, Princeton Club, defeated P. S. Whitlock, Harvard Club, 15—9, 9—15, 15—9; Otis L. Guernsey, Yale Club, defeated A. W. Riley, Princeton Club, 15—9, 17—16; Charles M. Bull Jr., Crescent Athletic Club, defeated R. H. Monks, Princeton Club, 15—8, 15—3; Kingsley Kunhardt, Columbia University Club, defeated Reginald Roome, Yale Club, 15—8, 15—8.

A team of Columbia University alumni defeated the Whitehall Club representatives in a handball match at the Whitehall Club, 17 Battery Place, last evening by the score of 4 matches to 3. At the end of the scheduled number of matches the score was a tie at 3 to 3 and on a toss-up it was decided to play one doubles match to decide the issue and this was won by the Columbia alumni team, Dr. C. Henriquez and R. Riccio.

The summaries:

Singles—J. I. Merritt, Whitehall Club, defeated R. Mannes, Columbia, 21—3, 14—21, 21—7; R. Riccio, Columbia, defeated E. Hennington, Whitehall Club, 21—5, 21—6; E. F. Barrett, Whitehall Club, defeated William Holste, Columbia, 21—3, 21—6.

Riccio, Columbia, defeated E. B. Shaw and J. J. Atwater, Whitehall Club, 21—8, 21—3.

MRS. GODFREY WINS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 12.—The first day's play in the annual women's national lawn tennis championship tournament ended without upset on the Longwood Cricket Club's covered courts at Chestnut Hill today.

A surprising development impended when Miss Ceres Baker, the youthful New Jersey player, led Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey of Brookline, three games to two in the third and deciding set of their first round encounter. Mrs. Godfrey, who recently won the Southern Florida singles title and who vanquished Miss Leslie Bancroft at Palm Beach, rallied with defeat close at hand and her sharply angled shot in the closing game was superb.

Miss Baker showed up stronger than in her two past visits to the Club. She dropped the first set 1—6, and her fight after her opponent had 4—2 in games was spectacular. Miss Baker continued her strong game in the second set which the sudden change from the outdoor to the indoor courts was plainly evidenced in Mrs. Godfrey's play with Miss Baker won by 6—2. The greater steadiness of Mrs. Godfrey was apparent in the third set, while Miss Baker's tendency toward erratic play cost her the match as the set went to Mrs. Godfrey by 6—3.

In the other extra set match Miss Elizabeth Bright defeated Miss Eleanor R. Sears of Boston. The latter, a veteran, was unable to cope with her young opponent's strokes, and dropped the match 6—2, 4—6, 6—2.

Miss Scharman Wins Easily.

Miss Lillian Scharman of Brooklyn, N. Y., advanced more easily than the other seeded players, losing only two games in as many sets. She defeated Miss Ruth Terza of Boston by 6—0, 6—2. Miss Leslie Bancroft of West Newton, who is going to Europe next week, had a somewhat difficult time in winning from Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Cambridge, the latter taking seven games. Mrs. Corbiere played well throughout, but the greater experience of the player who ranks No. 1 was able to put across the strokes that gave her the victory.

Mrs. B. E. Cole 2d of North Andover, who was runner-up in the tournament in 1921, in a severe stroking contest against Miss Brenda Hedstrom of Buffalo, came out on top after a good match, 7—5, 6—4.

Of the seventeen matches played today two went by default. Miss Frances Jennings of Worcester and Mrs. Huntington R. Hardwick of Brookline each advancing without opposition. The last named was to have played Miss Jayne Macfionald of Seattle, but the latter, who is now in Bermuda, cabled to the Tournament Committee today that it would be impossible for her to reach Boston before Thursday.

Many Stars Missing.

The field is not so strong as in other years, as Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the champion; Miss Edith Sigourney, Miss Florence Ballin, Miss Martha Bayard and Miss Kathryn Gardner are all in Europe.

Tomorrow the competition will be confined to the doubles and on Wednesday the first round in the mixed doubles will be added to the play.

First Round—Mrs. G. H. Roosevelt, Brookline, defeated Mrs. Lester Paine, Boston, 6—0, 6—3; Mrs. N. W. Niles, Boston, defeated Mrs. Bronson Batchelor, New York, 6—4, 1—6; Miss Elizabeth Bright, Cambridge, defeated Miss Eleanor R. Sears, Boston, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2; Mrs. T. H. Dabot, Boston, defeated Miss Alice Jeckes, Cambridge, 6—4, 6—1; Mrs. J. L. Bremer, Boston, defeated Mrs. J. L. Saltonstall 3d, Boston, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. R. M. Felton 3d, Boston, defeated Miss Dorothy Neyhart, Framingham, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. B. E. Cole 2d, North Andover, defeated Miss Brenda Hedstrom, Buffalo, N. Y., 7—5, 6—4; Mrs. W. M. Godfrey, Brookline, defeated Miss Ceres Baker, East Orange, N. J., 7—5, 2—6, 6—3; Miss Leslie Bancroft, West Newton, defeated Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere, Cambridge, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. P. W. Sprague, Boston, defeated Miss Ottilie Goertner, Brooklyn, 6—4, 6—2; Eleanor Mustard, Boston, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Penelope Parkman, Boston, defeated Mrs. J. B. Pierce, Dedham, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Frances Jennings, Worcester, won from Mrs. Charles Magrane, Swampscott, by default; Mrs. H. R. Hardwick, Brookline, won from Miss Mayme McDonald, Seattle, by default.

WEAK ANKLES KEEP RUTH FROM DRILL

MEUSEL ACCEPTS TERMS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—Babe Ruth was a spectator today at Heinemann Park when the Yankees resumed training after their overwhelming defeat by the Pelicans yesterday. The Babe was forced into temporary idleness because of a pronounced weakness in his ankles. He jumped into the local training routine with too much vigor following his illness at Hot Springs and now is forced to obey the doctor's advice. Although the very idea of being idle is distasteful to the Yankee's slugger, he was counselled to take things easily upon his arrival here, but with typical disregard for danger, he leaped into the thick of the practice sessions. He complained after yesterday's game that his ankles were going back on him and Manager Miller Huggins then insisted that the Babe take a vacation of at least one day.

Huggins said he expects the slugger to be in uniform tomorrow, but added that he intends to see to it that Ruth does not again overdo his training activities.

The absence of Ruth from the practice session and the formal announcement that Bob Meusel finally had come into the fold, were the high lights in what otherwise was a dull day in the lives of the American League champions.

No Word From Pennock.

The announcement that Meusel had accepted terms has been expected for the past several days. With the signing of Meusel, Huggins now has no one to worry about but Herb Pennock, former Red Sox southpaw, who still is a holdout. Huggins today reiterated that he had heard nothing from Pennock or from the Yankee's headquarters in New York regarding the status of the left hander.

Today's practice session lacked the spirit and dash of previous workouts. The players went through their accustomed paces and seemed to enjoy the exercise as much as ever, but still there was something missing. Perhaps it was the thought of yesterday's rout which robbed the workout of the accustomed color.

Bob Shawkey and Joe Bush had their first workouts at the ball park today, but contended themselves with light drills. The Yankee pitchers are in fine condition and have no intention of going stale. The other regulars, likewise, let down a little in their practice, many of them because of the usual stiffness and soreness from the exertions of last week.

Huggins Works With Rookies.

Huggins resumed the task of correcting the weaknesses shown in the work of Harvey Hendricks and Hinkey Haines, recruit outfielders. Bob Connery was instructed to keep Hendricks busy chasing flies in the outfield in an effort to overcome the rookie's weakness in this regard. In the case of Haines, Huggins is seeking to improve the player's batting style.

Huggins plans to start a series of seven-inning games on Wednesday when the squad will be divided into two teams.

"This is about the best method of training I knew of," said Huggins in announcing his plan. "The trouble with this daily practice is that so many of the youngsters and regulars are inclined to overdo it. That is as bad as no training. I find it a difficult task to keep the players under proper restraint and still give them a thorough workout. With these scrub games the players get just enough of the right kind of exercise."

GRIFFITH SEEKS FRANCHISE.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Clark Griffith, President and chief owner of the Washington American League Club, is in the market for the franchise of some Class A or B League club to use as a development farm for the cast-off players of his major league aggregation. Discussing his purpose at the Tampa, Fla., training camp, Griffith said he was willing to pay a good price for a fast club within convenient distance of his Washington headquarters.

He will go to Haverhill the last of this week to complete negotiations and sign the contract, which calls for his coaching of the football eleven only.

'I'm Running Game; Benton Will Play,' Declares Landis

CINCINNATI, March 12.—Cincinnati National League recruits, who arrived at the Reds' training camp last night, said that Judge K. M. Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, told them on a train yesterday that Pitcher Rube Benton would play ball this season, a dispatch from Orlando, Fla., to The Times-Star says today. Judge Landis is quoted as saying: "I'm running the game and Benton is going to play ball."

BROOKLYN REGULARS DEFEAT YANNIGANS

Special to The New York Times.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 12.—The Brooklyn Robins went through two more strenuous workouts here today. The morning session was devoted to batting and fielding practice. Manager Robbie lined up his infield with Schleibner at first base, Stewart at second, Johnston at short and Mullen at third.

In the afternoon an eight-inning game between the Regulars and Yannigans was played and it resulted in a 5 to 2 victory for the Regulars. George Smith and Al Mamaux were the opposing hurlers in the first four innings, and the last half of the battle was pitched by Art Decatur and Paul Schreiber. Smith and Decatur worked for the Regulars and nine hits were made off them. The Regulars made eleven safe hits, and although they outbatted their rivals, they needed some mishaps by the Yannigans to help them score their winning tallies. The losers made four errors and three of them came in the last two innings.

The regulars scored their first run in the opening inning when Stewart led off with a triple and scored while Johnston was being tossed out by Olson. In the second frame the Yannigans evened the count when Grimes singled and rode home on a three-bagger by Blankenburg, a young outfielder. The rookie tried to stretch the hit but was nailed at the plate.

In the fourth inning the Yannigans took the lead. DeBerry laced a single to centre and Keeley walked. DeBerry moved to third while Grimes was forcing Keeley. Smith then uncorked a wild pitch and DeBerry crossed the plate.

The Regulars did not score off Schreiber in the first two innings he pitched, but in the seventh chapter they sent two tallies over the plate on singles by Hargreaves, Decatur and Barber and errors by Vance and Taylor. In the last round the Regulars scored two more runs on a double by Nels and errors by DeBerry and Keeley.

Judge Landis, who arrived here last night, spent the greater part of the afternoon playing golf.

The score by innings:

Regulars	1 0 0 0 0 0 2 2—5	11	1

TO HOLD MARATHON ON PATRIOTS' DAY

Boston A. A. Will Stage Its Twenty-Seventh Open Race Over 25-Mile Course on April 19.

On Thursday, April 19, Patriots' Day, the Boston Athletic Association will hold the annual open marathon race over the historic course of twenty-five miles from Ashland to Boston. Entries will close on April 12 for the race, which will be the twenty-seventh under the auspices of the Boston organization.

An early warning has been issued by the B. A. A. that intending competitors must realize that a course of training is necessary for such a long distance and that it would be unwise to attempt to run in the event without preparation. All competitors must be registered athletes and no athlete under 18 years of age will be allowed to compete. In recent years the B. A. A. has endeavored to confine the field, as far as possible, to runners who appear to have a real chance to win a prize, or at least finish the route. To this end the entries of boys and elderly men have not been accepted, the association reserving the right to reject any entry. In some years nearly two hundred runners have started.

Prizes will be given to the first eight men and souvenirs to the following twenty-five men who finish after the prize winners. Souvenirs also will be presented to each caretaker of the contestants who are placed.

Each runner will be accompanied by a bicycle rider, who will give his contestant all the necessary assistance. As railroad and trolley lines run parallel with the course for the greater part of the distance, every runner may feel that he will be assured of transportation if it becomes necessary for him to stop. Each contestant's attendant will give him every attention necessary through the race and if he stops through any cause will attend to him until he is safely aboard a train or car.

The start will be made exactly at noon on April 19 at a mark on the Hopkinton road near Stevens Corner, one mile beyond the railroad station at Ashland. After leaving Ashland the road runs in an almost straight line through South Framingham, Natick, Wellesley, Newton Lower Falls, through the Newtons and Chestnut Hill, to Beacon Street, Commonwealth Avenue and Exeter Street, with the finish in front of the Boston Athletic Association clubhouse.

FACES A SEVERE TASK.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Mar. 12.—Activity in Lehigh University baseball was more pronounced last week and will be speeded along when Coach Baldwin takes personal charge. The coach will face a rather severe task in developing a representative team. With the loss by graduation of Harry Rote and Tim Donovan, and quite recently Rog Johnson, the infield has been almost entirely wrecked. Dutch Reinchen alone survives. He played shortstop, but when Read was injured worked behind the bat for a time. Rowley, Riley and O'Keefe, utility infielders, will be among the men to try out for the vacancies.

For pitchers the coach will have J. L. Lees, C. A. DuBois and Bob Adams, three members of last season's staff, to rely upon, with J. T. (Turk) Read and Wilbur Harwi for backstops.

The veteran outfield is composed of Paul Larkin, Freddy Rodgers and Hess, all three seasoned players. Bob Adams, who, when not assigned to mound duty, was sent to the outfield, will no doubt again be used for double duty, as he is a heavy hitter.

To Hold Gold Medal Shoot.

The Sports Committee of the Westchester Biltmore Club at Rye has completed arrangements for the first annual Gold Medal Shoot, which is scheduled to commence at 1 P. M. on Wednesday, March 21, at the Gun Club, under the direction of Buffalo Smith, who organized the tournaments of the American Expeditionary Forces in France following the war.

O'CONNELL GETS FIELDING LESSON

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 12.—Jimmy O'Connell may have made four hits in yesterday's game with the San Antonio Bears, but his fielding was not done to the king's taste, the "king" being John J. McGraw. At least, that is the inference to be drawn from the fact that at today's practice session O'Connell was the star pupil in a little class of his own on the fine points of playing against the sun. For quite a number of minutes McGraw and Jennings took Jimmy in hand and had him chasing high flies in the glare of Old Sol, and after it was all over the professors united in declaring that the Frisco star had shown notable improvement.

It developed today that O'Connell has rarely, if ever, played in the sun's glare. At San Francisco the first baseman faces the sun, and the outfielders—particularly in left and centre—are not bothered. So O'Connell today had to begin learning what most major leaguers know by second nature. It was merely one of the steps in his big league education.

In the future there will be other steps undoubtedly, for O'Connell is not a finished player and was not expected to be. His outfield experience has been acquired in one year—too short a time for even a Speaker to gain any polish. He catches a fly ball with a noticeable lack of grace. In the act of catching, his hands are stiff, lacking the easy resiliency that marks the experienced outfielder. He throws with a peculiar motion, using the forearm more than the shoulder, but this may be excused for the present because of a sore arm. Once in yesterday's game he threw to the wrong base, and a more alert runner than Ike Boone would have taken an extra base.

In short, O'Connell is still in need of lessons in the school of experience. It would be surprising if he were not, considering the fact that he has kicked around between first base and the outfield. There is no disputing the fact that he can hit—and that is half the battle. He is fast and naturally talented and is sensible enough to realize his own shortcomings. That in itself offers hope for the further development of this boy who cost John McGraw $75,000.

Bancroft Plays Shortstop.

The day's workouts were quiet after the game of yesterday. The chief feature was the assembling of that million-dollar infield for the first time since the fateful day in October when Joe Bush, Miller Huggins and the other Yankees went down for the fourth and last time. Dave Bancroft was at shortstop again and the quartet was complete. Travis Jackson receded back into the hindermost part of the spotlight, but not without his share of the laurels. His hitting on Sunday was solid and satisfying, and he has convinced such a keen critic as Hugh Jennings that some day not even a Bancroft will make him step out of the picture.

Bancroft was not in there long—just enough to get the kinks out of his back and shoulders. Then Jackson stepped in to replace him. Preceding the infield workout there was the usual intensive drill in batting.

Hisbee's Ankle Injured.

There was a grapple to the death at League Park this afternoon, the same being an alleged baseball game between New York sporting writers and the journalists, editors, copy readers, linotype operators and compositors of the local papers. Although outnumbered in potential strength to draw form, the correspondents won by 10 to 5 and tonight are resting triumphantly in their tents. The result was rarely in doubt, attesting once more to the superiority of New York baseball.

Officials to Start British-American Cup Contests Aug. 1.

Announcement of the dates for the contest for the British-American Cup next Summer has been made by the British committee of management. The dates, on which the team of four American six-metre yachts will meet the four British defenders, have been selected as follows:

Wednesday, Aug. 1—At Ryde (Royal Thames Yacht Club).

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 6, 7 and 8—At Cowes (Royal Yacht Club) Royal Yacht Squadron.

The races will be under the management of the clubs named, and the courses will be about sixteen miles in length. It is expected in England that the American team of yachts will arrive in the Solent during the first week in July.

The Thistle is the name that has been given the new Scottish 8-metre yacht being built at Fife's which Lady Baird hopes will be fortunate enough to be selected as one of the boats to defend the British-American Cup. The Thistle will be manned by an English crew, with George Parker of Southampton as Captain.

Sir William Burton has ordered a new 8-metre boat from the design of George Nicholson and this yacht is being built by Camper & Nicholson at Gosport.

RIXEY TUTORS COLLEGIANS.

Assists Earle Neale in Coaching University of Virginia Nine.

About one hundred candidates reported to Neale for the first practice last week. The squad was so large that the coach divided them into two sections. The veterans from last year are drilled from 2:30 until 4 o'clock each afternoon, while the remainder of the hopefuls work from 4 until 5:30.

DULUTH, Minn., March 12.—Walter Hoover, world's champion sculler, will defend the Diamond Sculls at the 1923 English regatta, it seemed certain today, as Hoover told an Associated Press correspondent that he would visit England again this year.

Oxford Abandons New Shell Built for Cambridge Race

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press).—Oxford University has sprung a big surprise, according to a published report today, by abandoning the new shell built especially for the annual race with Cambridge and ordering another to be constructed as rapidly as possible. The abandoned shell had many new features which were expected to be of great advantage, and was successfully tested on the smooth waters of the Henley course, but it was found to be too shallow for use in the tidal waters between Putney and Mortlake, where the Oxford-Cambridge race will be rowed, as it shipped water constantly. The new shell is expected to be ready by Wednesday, but, as the race is set for March 24, the crew will not have much time in which to get accustomed to it.

BIKE RIDERS GET $50,000 IN CASH

Yesterday was pay-off day for the members of the fifteen teams that participated in the six-day bike race which came to a close on Saturday night when the American-Australian team, Alfred Goullet of Newark and Alfred Grenda of Tasmania, stole a lap in the final minutes and earned a splendid victory. The first rider to greet Manager John Chapman was the veteran Boston rider, Peter Drobach, who was mated with Anthony Olivieri of Italy. Thoroughout the day all of the other riders with the exception of Willie Coburn, Willie Hanley, and the two German riders, Willie Lorenz and Karl Saldow, dropped in to receive their stipends which, it was stated unofficially, amounted to some $50,000 all told.

Coburn, injured in the final hour when his teammate, Brocco, pushed him off his wheel in making a pick-up during the Goullet-Grenda jam, was still in bed. It was reported that he had suffered no broken bones but that he was badly shaken up and that it would take a few days before he would be completely in shape.

Although busily engaged in making out checks and figuring up the amount that the income tax collector would take out of the profits, Manager Chapman was all smiles. "The greatest race I ever saw," he said, scrawling his signature to a four-figure check for Goullet. "I've been following bike racing for years, but never witnessed anything like that half-hour. Goullet is a wonder. But so is Grenda and so are Sammy Gastmen and Dave Lands, the youngsters. Did you ever see anyone ride any better than Lands when he and Gastman got their lap, only to lose it later to Goullet and Grenda? It was too bad to have their efforts go for naught. They showed, however, that they were comers with whom the veterans will soon have to reckon."

"How much did Goullet receive?" Manager Chapman was asked.

"Can't say," was the reply, "but you can state that it was far in excess of $5,000 and take all bets to the contrary."

Of the foreign contingent, three will remain in this country, Lorenz, Saldow and the Belgian, Henry Wynsdau. Saldow and Wynsdau will ride behind motors this Summer, while Lorenz will compete in the sprint events.

The following will sail today for Europe to get in shape for the Paris six-day race in April: Marcel Buysse and his brother, Lucien, who reside in Belgium; Oscar Egg, a Swiss star, and his teammate, Peter Van Kempen of Holland, who gathered in third money; Maurice Brocco, Italian-French rider; Theodore Wynsdau of Belgium; Reggie McNamara of Newark; and Grenda and Coburn.

MOORE LENGTHENS LEAD IN TITLE RACE

Joe Moore of the 181st Street Ice Palace increased his lead to 60 points in the race for the Metropolitan speed skating championship last evening by winning the half-mile championship race at the 181st Street Ice Palace in a field of nine starters in the closest and most hotly contested event of the series to date. Miss Marjorie Dose of the Tremont Skating Club won the quarter-mile championship for women and boosted her total of points to 50 by her victory over five other girls in the title event. Eight men also qualified for the final of the mile championship, which will be decided next Monday night.

Paul Forsman of Iceland took the lead at the start of the men's half-mile championship contest and held it for five laps, with Joe Moore pressing him all the way. On the fifth lap Moore went into the lead and won over Forsman by a margin of four yards in a spirited fashion. Bobby Hearn of the Millrose A. A. was third, about 12 yards back of Forsman. Horace Potter was fourth, four yards back of Hearn.

Forsman is now second in the point standing with a total of 30. Third, with 20 points, is Sam Goldberg of the Tremont Skating Club, who did not start last night; he is just recovering from an attack of influenza. Bobby Hearn is fourth, with 10 points.

Miss Marjorie Dose made a runaway race of the ladies' quarter-mile race, defeating Miss Mildred Truslow of Iceland by a quarter of a lap. Miss Elsie Muller of the 181st Street Ice Palace, who was the favorite to win the event, had a series of misfortunes. She fell in the first lap. She had lost so much ground by this time that it was a hopeless task to try to overtake the field, and she gave it up. Miss Isabelle Yorke of the Women Skaters' Association of New York was third. The other contestants were Miss Peggy Conaty of the 181st Street Ice Palace and Miss Peggy Farrington of the Tremont Skating Club.

In the point standing Miss Muller is tied for second with Miss Truslow with 30 points, Miss Yorke having 10 points.

The summaries:

Quarter Mile Ladies' Indoor Metropolitan Championship—Won by Miss Marjorie Dose, Tremont Skating Club; Miss Mildred Truslow, Iceland, second; Miss Isabelle York, Women's Skating Association of New York, third. Time—0:57 -5.

FIRST OUTDOOR SPIN FOR HARVARD CREWS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 12.—Harvard oarsmen had their first practice of the season on the water when the first and second eights rowed two miles in half-mile stretches over the Fort Point Channel in South Boston today. A year ago today crews from the university dipped oars in the water of the Charles River for the first outdoor work of 1922.

Ice conditions on the Charles River this year precluded the possibility of launching craft in that waterway. The channel was free of ice, however, and the swing of the oars was uninterrupted.

Iowa Outshoots B. U.

BOSTON, March 12.—Iowa State defeated Boston University in a telegraphic pistol shoot, the result of which was made known here tonight. Iowa scored 1,897 points to 1,855 by Boston University.

MARITIME HANDICAP TAKEN BY PARADER

T. J. Pendergast's Popular Choice Outruns Field in New Orleans Feature.

SIR THOMAS KEAN SECOND

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—The final week of the long Winter racing season here began at Jefferson Park this afternoon. There was no appreciable falling off in the attendance which has characterized the three meetings here, but the most of those who reported at the Shrewsbury course this afternoon were regulars. The track was lightning fast, but threatening clouds hovered overhead throughout the afternoon.

The Maritime Handicap, a test for three-year-olds and over at a mile and sixteenth, featured. T. J. Pendergast's Parader was the popular choice among the half dozen which went to the post, and he repaid this confidence with a splendid race. Jockey E. Pool had the leg up on the son of Whisk Broom II., and he rated him off the pace until the stretch turn was reached. There he set him down and Parader responded with a dazzling rush which carried him to victory by two lengths.

Sir Thomas Kean had the heaviest handicap in the weight allotment and showed the most early speed, but was not good enough to withstand Parader's determined rush through the stretch. Sir Thomas, however, had built up a commanding lead over the other four and romped away with the place.

Calcutta got the short end of the $1,000 purse, as Blarney Stone, Blue Nose and Contour failed to offer any opposition worthy of the name.

Another favorite scored in the five-and-one-half furlong dash, which was third on the card. This was Barracuda, a four-year-old chestnut colt by Tracy Rock out of Balancoire, which is owned by S. N. Holman. Kirk Lady set the pace most of the way, but Barracuda followed the leader closely passed him in the stretch and was going away at the end. Kirk Lady was second and Belphrizonia third.

Two 8 to 1 shots won the two final events. Black Hackle outraced Bonfire to take the fifth and Wylie withstood a hard drive from Belgian Queen to account for the closing contest.

Joie Ray Says He Will Set New Mile Record Outdoors

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 12.—A prediction that he will break the world's record for outdoor tracks in the mile run was made by Joie Ray, Chicago's crack distance runner, here this afternoon. Ray stopped over here long enough to break the city record for the mile by making the distance in 4:29 on a twenty-four lap track. He finished fresh, taking things easy all the way. The former record was 4:32.2.

"I would have broken the record last Summer," "Chesty Joie" said, "only when I was right the track wasn't. I expect to beat it some time this Summer, possibly at the A. A. U. outdoor championships in Chicago, provided condition are all right."

BUCKNELL STADIUM DRIVE HERE BEGINS

Fifty men and women graduates and friends of Bucknell University at Lewisburg, Pa., gathered at Keen's Chop House, 72 West Thirty-sixth Street, for dinner last evening to inaugurate the New York City campaign to raise a fund of $500,000 for a new stadium for the university at Lewisburg. It is planned to erect a structure capable of seating 15,000, with provisions for enlarging it in the future to double that capacity, together with an athletic field and a moderately equipped gymnasium.

Christy Mathewson, Bucknell, '02, pitcher on the varsity nine and fullback on its eleven when he was in college, was to have been the principal speaker, but was unable to be present because of pressure of business incident to his new position as President of the Boston Braves. He sent a telegram of regret in which he announced that he was with the proposition heart and soul. The cornerstone of the new stadium was laid in June, 1922.

"The students have been sitting on the hill for seventy-six years at Bucknell's athletic events, and it's time they had a few seats. Every student entering Bucknell ought to have a chance to develop physically as well as mentally, and that will be possible when the funds for the stadium are raised. Why talk about it? Bucknell needs a stadium. Let's build it."

New York's quota in the big drive for funds is $100,000 and it is proposed to raise that amount in an intensive campaign of five days, beginning today and ending Saturday night. Eight teams will engage in the work in allotted territory under the direction of A. C. Marts.

At the dinner C. M. Konkle presided and the speakers included Dr. Emory W. Hunt, President of Bucknell University; J. S. Schwartz, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; John F. Shirley, Stadium Commissioner; Rush H. Kress of the Board of Trustees; Dr. J. R. Wood, assistant to the President and Acting Dean, and Earl A. Morton, who was Chairman of the Pittsburgh campaign.

WALL MAKES FREAK SHOT.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 12.—A freak golf shot happened on the eighteenth hole of No. 2 course here today. J. H. Wall of Oshkosh drove a ball from the eighteenth tee into Alex Smith's shop. George Gordon, a pro, was just going into the shop when the ball passed in just ahead of him. It was easy to play the ball out through the window, but the window first had to be raised. The question then came up as to whether Wall would have a right to raise the window under the rule of touching anything more than a club's length away from the ball. The shot through the window was a success and the ball landed two feet from the hole and an easy three was secured. If a penalty of two strokes be added for opening the window the hole was made in five.

H. K. KNAPP SELLS FRIZZLE.

Federal Remount Association Buys French-bred Horse.

The Federal Remount Association, which now has more than 300 thoroughbred stallions distributed throughout the United States, has bought from H. K. Knapp, a steward of the Jockey Club, the French-bred horse Frizzle, and he will be moved from Kentucky to the Front Royal Station in Virginia within the next few days.

Frizzle was a good stake winner in France, taking five important races as a three-year-old for his breeder, the late Hermanus B. Duryea. On Mr. Duryea's death a number of horses were sold by Mrs. Duryea at Saratoga. Mr. Knapp paid $15,000 for Frizzle at that sale, and the horse won subsequently in his new owner's colors.

On-Side Kick of Little Value, Change Not Vital, Says Dobie

ITHACA, N. Y., March 12.—In commenting on the elimination of the on-side kick by the Football Rules Committee, Coach Gilmour Dobie today said the change was not vital, as the play seldom was used.

"I never considered the play of enough value," said Dobie, "to warrant using it to any great extent. The on-side kick requires too much time and attention to really perfect it, and at best, its success is but a lottery. The play added a little to the offensive strength of an eleven, being useful only when it came as a complete surprise to the opposing team. I do not believe its elimination will make much difference."

PASSAIC H. S. COACH CALLED TO ACCOUNT

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 12.—Coach E. A. Blood of the Passaic High School Basketball team, which last Saturday night won its 116th consecutive game, was called to account by the Passaic Board of Education in executive session tonight. It was charged that Passaic's schedule of twenty-six games so far this season was too long and had overtaxed the team.

The coach pointed out that most of the games were won by margins between thirty and forty points and that second and third-string men had played in most of the twenty-six contests. Citizens who were unable to get into the meeting said they would demand a public hearing and fair deal for the coach.

Local papers today deplored the fact that members of the Board of Education were conspicuous by their absence at the basketball games, particularly the one at Jersey City on Saturday night, which was witnessed by 3,500 Passaic fans.

The Board of Education later announced that it had passed a resolution that basketball for commercial or business purposes is forbidden. Robert D. Benson, President of the Tidewater Oil Company, is President of the Board of Education.

UNTERMYER INSISTS ON EXCHANGE BILL

Replies to Cromwell, Declaring There Are No Sinister Purposes Involved.

SEES NEW ERA FOR STOCKS

Declares That Lockwood Regulatory Measure Will Drive Crooks From Business.

Replying to the recent criticism by Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, of the Lockwood bill to regulate the Stock Exchange, Samuel Untermyer, who is due in New York today from the South, wrote to friends here that he resented Mr. Cromwell's implications that there were sinister or hidden purposes behind the measure.

Mr. Untermyer said the criticism of the pending measure is similar to the attacks made on the Federal Reserve act ten years ago. Referring to the proposed bill he said:

"It will do for the brokers and the exchanges and for the safety of the public what is now done for the officials of banks by the supervisory laws to which they are subject, but which they, too, for years unwisely resisted quite as violently as the brokers and exchanges are now resisting this legislation.

"It will be the biggest constructive thing that ever happened to the stock exchanges. It will add to their stability, eliminate much of the gambling element and make of them the great financial agency that they deserve to be and would be but for their despotic power and the unwise use they are making of it.

"It will be a boon to the honest broker—by exterminating and punishing thieves, and will give to the investors a sense of security heretofore unknown. They will feel just as safe in leaving stocks with their brokers as they feel in putting their money into the banks. Insolvent banks, that were frequent before State supervision, are now almost unknown.

"If Mr. Cromwell would like to inquire still further as to the 'motives' behind the bill he will find that they are the same 'motives' that are responsible for the support by the District Attorney Banton, backed by every District Attorney in the State, of the Lockwood Committee bill which is the bill that Mr. Banton has announced before the Legislature that he is primarily supporting and not the Sherman bill—which stripped, literally stripped, our bill, except that for some unaccountable reason it exempts bankers and stock exchanges and thus regulates the little fellows and lets out the big ones who are most in need of regulation.

"Mr. Banton has found from bitter experience that without this licensing system, which will bring the books of the brokers and exchanges within the control of the Superintendent of Banks and prosecuting officers, there is no way of securing the proofs necessary to convict the big crooks who are said to have together got away with about $800,000,000 of honest people's money through stock frauds last year.

Mr. Untermyer added that the power given the State Banking Commissioner by the bill was not "too inquisitorial."

Enlarging on the "motive" behind the bill, Mr. Untermyer said he did not believe "that it should rest with the New York Stock Exchange to continue the sole arbiter over the destinies of every man in the United States who wants to engage in the legitimate business of a stock broker, or to drive out of it any one who is now engaged in the business."

"This legislation involves no imputation against the members of any Stock Exchange, or against any banker, broker or dealer in securities," said Mr. Untermyer. "Taken all in all, the members of the New York Stock Exchange are as honorable a body of men, with as high a standard of business ethics as are to be found in any business or profession. But the temptations in their business are greater than in others, especially the practice of speculating for their own profit with the money and securities of their clients, which is well-nigh universal today and which is not regarded as unethical."

STEUER HITS TREATY FOES.

"Any sane statesman could not fail in seventy-two hours to write a constitution which would end the world's troubles as soon as all nations pledged their allegiance to it," Max D. Steuer, the lawyer, said last night, speaking on the causes and cure of present-day world troubles, at the West End Synagogue, 160 West Eighty-second Street. He added that the United States is the one Government to propose such a constitution, which should provide for a world court backed by the authority of all nations.

A court alone would not cure all evils, most of which Mr. Steuer attributed to the treaties beginning in 1919, but it would be a great step forward, he said, and declared that none but imbeciles could announce their opposition to the idea. "Borah and Johnson protested, "they aren't against a world court. Oh, no; they are just against any court you propose. They don't suggest anything themselves, except that the court you proposed before, and which they opposed then, is better than the one you put forward now."

He asserted that all wars are due to treaties; that the last one grew out of the settlement in 1871, and added that the next world war, which he said was coming soon unless something was done promptly, would grow out of the so-called settlement in recent treaties. With the creation of a world court, he said, the necessity for treaties would no longer exist.

Calder Opposes Six New Justices.

Former United States Senator William M. Calder of Brooklyn sent a letter yesterday to Assemblymen Ricca and Clayton, Republicans, of Brooklyn, declaring his opposition to the bill which would create six additional Municipal Justices in his borough. He said two new Justices for Brooklyn would be sufficient. He is also opposed to the Mayor having the power to appoint.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Owing to the continued advance in cost of crude rubber, cotton goods and other materials entering into the manufacture of mechanical rubber goods, the United States Rubber Company will withdraw all quotations as of March 15. The new price will be announced shortly.

Reservations numbering 656 have been made by members of the New York Credit Men's Association for the monthly dinner to be held under its auspices at the Hotel Astor tonight. M. J. Murphy, President of the New York and Pennsylvania Joint Stock Land Bank, will be the speaker, his topic being "Financial Agriculture—A Necessity in the Credit Structure."

As a means of compensating the employes who have been engaged with him during the last seven years, Gregory L. Gordon, the proprietor of the Interstate Manufacturing Company, has incorporated the business so that they may share in future earnings. Then the new concern will be called the Interstate Manufacturing Company, as the original name cannot be used in this State. The firm makes boy's blouses and shirts and is capitalized for $100,000. Albert H. Gordon, Gregory P. Gordon, Morris Goldberg and Harold H. Kline are the shareholders.

Buyers of linens for immediate delivery and report will meet at the Dry Goods Alliance, 225 Fourth Avenue tomorrow.

Burlap Shipments Show Decline.

Burlap shipments from Calcutta to this country last month showed a sharp decline from the January total, according to cables received here yesterday by C. H. Rocksroh & Co., Inc. Total shipments for the month were 38,000,000 yards, of which 11,000,000 were consigned to Pacific Coast ports. January exports of burlaps from Calcutta to the United States reached 91,000,000 yards. This brought the total for the first two months of 1924 up to 129,000,000 yards, against 131,000,000 yards in the same period a year ago. The cables reported Calcutta quiet, with goods for prompt shipment quoted there on the basis of 6.90 cents for "lights" and 8.30 cents for "heavies." In this market, which was also quiet, spot burlaps were quoted at 7.40 cents for 8-ounces, 40-inch goods and 8.80 cents for 10½-ounces cloths. Afloat goods were held here, respectively, at 7.30 and 8.85 cents.

To Increase Penney Stores.

The chain of retail dry goods stores conducted by the J. C. Penney Company, Inc., throughout the country will be greatly enlarged during the current year. On Dec. 31 the company operated 371 stores in 29 States, and this number will be increased by 100 during 1924. Some of the new stores will be opened this Spring, but most of them will not begin business until Fall. They will be located in the States in which the company is now represented, with the exception of those that are to be started in Kansas and Tennessee. One of the new stores will be opened in Oneonta, N. Y., which will mark the company's closest approach to this city to date. The "mother store" of the group was started by J. C. Penney in Kemmerer, Wyoming, about 21 years ago. Executive and buying offices of the company are maintained at 370 Seventh Avenue.

Waist Makers Need Skilled Help.

Increasing difficulty in obtaining trained help presages a shortage of merchandise in the waist trade before the end of the current season, according to a statement issued yesterday by the United Waist League of America. This is due to the fact that the improvement in the demand for waists has been greater than the influx of skilled workers to the shops. Further signs of improved business are the increasing calls of the manufacturers for trained office help. The shortage of waist operatives is attributed to the probability that many of them drifted into other lines of work during the year and a half that the trade was in the doldrums. In any event, hardly any of the shops represented in the association have more than 75 per cent. of their full quota of workers. Reports from out-of-town centers where waists are made reflect the situation in this city.

Gray Goods Fairly Active.

Trading was fairly active in the local gray goods market yesterday, with most of the sales confined to 7 printcloths. Good-sized sales were reported in Southern 38½-inch 60-48s, which went from second hands for April delivery at 9⅝ cents. Eastern makes of the same construction were not available under 10⅛ cents. First hands continued firm in their demands for 12⅝ cents for 39-inch 68-72s, but it was said that second hands would probably shade that figure an eighth for a good buyer. March lots of 38½-inch 64-60s again brought 11⅝ cents. Nearby deliveries of 5 and 5.50 yard sheetings brought 10⅛ and 9⅛ cents, respectively. Low bids for contracts of 6.15-yard sheetings were rejected by sellers. For 37-inch 3.95-yard drills 13⅝ cents was asked. Only spots of sateens were sought, from all accounts, with prices based on 19 cents for 36-inch 4.20s.

Strike Holding Back Business.

Thousands of dollars worth of business is being kept from novelty knit goods manufacturers in the metropolitan district by the strike of the operatives that has been going on for some time. Buyers are clamoring every day for merchandise on order, as well as endeavoring to place new business, but the manufacturers are not able to do very much for them. Buyers are especially anxious to get three types of merchandise—the golf coat with the fancy front and the plain back, the knitted suit, and the plain knitted jacquette. All of these goods are wanted in worsted and fibre silk mixtures and also in mixtures of mohair and fibre. The suits are made up of skirts with jacquettes, coats or slipovers, as desired.

Open Fall Lines Tomorrow.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Botany Worsted Mills that the Fall lines of fabrics for the women's wear trades will be opened tomorrow. Complete lines of dress fabrics, suitings and coatings will be offered. A large number of novelties are to be introduced, said an official of the concern yesterday, and there will also be new versions of the cloths that are recognized as more or less of a staple character. No information regarding the probable price advance that will be made was given out yesterday.

Fall Women's Wear Worsteds.

The recent slowing down of the demand for worsteds for the women's wear trade has created a question in some quarters as to whether there may not be a substantial amount of these goods carried over for the Fall. It is still too early to judge the matter accurately, as the volume of these fabrics used by manufacturers during the next few weeks can be the only determining factor. The opinion, however, is held by some well-posted factors that the demand will not absorb all of the worsted goods expected by certain sections of the trade, resulting in placing the Fall buying of the fabrics under some handicaps. This is also said to apply to cloths of the bolivia order. If prices are advanced further, however, this may cause somewhat of a change, even if there is some carryover.

Worsted Color Card Issued.

Greens feature the annual color card for worsteds of J. Claudel Frères & Co., Paris, which was received in this country yesterday. These colors are placed first in the arrangement of the card, nine of them being represented in varying shades from light to dark green. With slight stress being placed on this color, as well as its increasing vogue here for millinery trimmings and linings, it was said yesterday that it might well be the leading shade for Fall. Browns rank second on the card, followed by grays and blues. Reds do not seem to come in for special prominence, despite the Egyptian tendency. In all, 65 shades are depicted.

Choose Garment Fair Site.

Selection of the 165th Regiment Armory for the holding of the second annual Garment Fair under the auspices of the National Garment Retailer's Association was announced yesterday by Secretary John W. Hahn. The fair will begin on July 23 and will continue for two weeks, the dates thus corresponding with those set for the National Merchandise Fair. One of the features of the fair this year, according to Mr. Hahn's statement, is the attention which will be given to meeting the individual requirements of the exhibitors with regard to the display booths. Consideration will be shown for the necessity of providing combined with the best utilization of the space from a sales standpoint. The armory will be attractively decorated, and the attendance of buyers is expected to be good. In the merchandise to be shown are coats, suits, dresses, skirts, blouses, knit goods, sweaters, bathing suits, children's and juniors' garments and furs.

New Wrist Watch Ribbon.

An entirely new idea in wrist-watch ribbons was placed on the market yesterday by one of the leading ribbon firms. The design is of Egyptian inspiration and on the ribbon are embroidered the hieroglyphs which make up the name of the Egyptian pharaoh "Tutankh-Amen." The embroidery is in colors and makes a very effective contrast against the ground, which is available in either black or gray. The price for the ribbon in whole sale is $6.50 for ten yards, or about 23 cents per wrist-watch length. The ribbon will be sold only in ten-yard quantities, this containing about 39 wrist-watch lengths. The sellers anticipate a large demand for the novelty, with delivery to be at once unless an overwold condition prevails.

FURS DRESSED AND DYED.

Over 3,600,000 more skins were dressed and dyed by members of the Fur Dressers' and Fur Dyers' Association, Inc., during 1923 than in the preceding year, according to figures presented by Actuary John F. Mallon at the annual meeting of that organization at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. A total of 30,240,189 skins was dressed by the association's members last year, and 18,915,265 pelts were dyed in the same period. These totals, compared with the 1921 figures, showed respective gains of 3,157,442 and 2,936,296.

Inasmuch as 90 per cent. of the skins dressed and dyed in this country are handled by members of the association, Mr. Mallon's figures give a comprehensive idea of the dressing and dyeing done in this country. Caracul, marmot, muskrat and squirrels showed the largest individual gains for the year, due to the demands of fashion, while moles registered the largest falling off. Kolinsky, mink and opossum also showed substantial declines.

Mr. Mallon also cited figures of the Department of Commerce which showed that, contrary to the general impression, skunk was not the chief article shipped from here to foreign countries during 1922. In the raw state 3,421,159 skunk pelts were exported last year, against 3,323,943 opossum skins, but the excess of dressed opossum shipped to other countries brought the grand total for the latter fur nearly 100,000 higher than the former. The actual totals, including both dressed and raw skins, were 6,612,335 for opossum and 5,614,021 for skunk. The grand totals of pelts exported in 1922 were 13,270,380 for raw and 3,566,732 for dressed.

Among the business that came before the association was the election of officers, and the following were designated by the vote of the membership to serve for the coming year: President, Abraham Schiff; Vice President, R. H. Gruenewald; Treasurer, J. R. Rubins, and Secretary, H. A. W. Bindseil. Eight Directors, a Board of Arbitration, five delegates to the Fur Board of Trade and a councilor to the United States Chamber of Commerce were also elected.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS GAIN.

Deputy Collector Predicts $300,000,000 for Year Ending June 30.

The United States Customs receipts for the Port of New York for the fiscal year are averaging $1,019,317.81 a day, as compared with $714,663.17 during the year 1921-1922, Special Deputy Collector Henry C. Stuart announced yesterday.

"I expect we will have total customs receipts of $300,000,000 by July 1 when the fiscal year ends," he said. "The total receipts for the year 1921-1922 were approximately $226,000,000. The total today for the present year is $310,986,683."

The last week, according to Mr. Stuart, broke the record for receipts, which were: March 5, $1,423,994.62; March 6, $1,316,824.70; March 7, $1,418,106.46; March 8, $1,470,065.03; March 9, $1,843,575; March 10, a half day, $707,807.62. The enormous receipts are the best indication of the prosperity of the United States, said Mr. Stuart. The items covered by the duties include wool, silk, sugar and other staples. Many more millions than in any other year have been invested in European luxuries. These figures do not include millions in arts and antiques.

Killed Pet Rabbits to Eat, He Says.

Anthony Manuel, 18, of Nepperhan Street, Yonkers, was arraigned in court in Yonkers yesterday charged with trespassing on the grounds of homes on Park Hill and shooting pet rabbits. He said he was hungry and felt he needed the rabbits more than the owners needed them for pets. Judge Morris L. Rosenwasser ordered Manuel remanded for investigation to determine if, as he testified, a job was awaiting him.

At a Stated Term of the United States District Court of the Third Circuit, in and for the District of Connecticut, at the Court House thereof, in the City of New Haven, State of Connecticut, on the 3rd day of February, 1924.

Present: HONORABLE EDWIN S. THOMAS, United States Judge. AMERICAN & BRITISH SECURITIES CO., Plaintiff, against AMERICAN & BRITISH MFG. CORPORATION, Defendant.

GEORGE C. VAN TUYL Jr., JOHN C. STANLEY and DAVID STROUSE, Ancillary Receivers herein, having moved this court for an order authorizing and directing the sale of the assets of the defendant corporation at public auction, and under the rules and practice of this court, in bulk, and

Now, upon all the pleadings and proceedings heretofore had herein, and upon the petition of the said Receivers in Equity, verified the 11th day of January, 1924, and upon motion of CARL FOSTER and LOUIS H. STROUSE, Counsel for said Receiver, it is ORDERED that all of the property, assets and effects except cash and accounts and choses receivable of AMERICAN & BRITISH MANUFACTURING CORPORATION, the defendant above named, now in possession or under control of the aforesaid Ancillary Receivers, be sold to the highest bidder at public auction sale, subject, however, to the limitations hereinafter contained.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

With the smallest business done of any full day in not quite six weeks, prices on the Stock Exchange during most of yesterday's trading moved with the uncertainty which last week's market made familiar; but the advancing of some scattered industrial stocks in the later hours caused a final show of firmness. Most of the day's net changes were advances, but in the main they were fractional. Nothing in the news of the day set any figure. Wall Street seemed to be more interested in the bad wire communication with out-of-town clients, resulting from the storm, than in any other influence.

Under ordinary circumstances it might have been supposed that the morning's news of violence in the Ruhr would have had some influence for the possibility of guerrilla warfare against the occupying French, and of reprisals for such action, has from the first been the really disturbing possibility. These occurrences did appear to find some reflection in the foreign bonds, of which the French Republic 8s and 7½s were distinctly weak.

They may have affected the foreign exchange market, which was lower. The franc went to the lowest price in three weeks; even sterling, after touching last week's highest price again, declined ¾ cent. On the other hand, the franc advanced in terms of sterling on the London and Paris market, and there was no commotion on the European Stock Exchanges. The cotton market closed unchanged for spot delivery; contracts for future delivery in near-by months were higher, but contracts for the Autumn months declined again. This variance fairly reflects the present view of supply and demand as the question of the next crop bears upon them.

The Department of Commerce reported yesterday on the country's December imports; the figures being two months late, as all the monthly import returns have been since the Fordney act became law. As they are stated, the month's importations were larger than in any month since 1920, except for last September. Taking together the department's statements of imports during the three months since the enactment of the new tariff, the total runs $231,000,000 beyond the same period in 1921, an increase of 36 per cent.

This may or may not be an accurate measure of the import movement. There was an average advance of 12 or 13 per cent. in prices during the intervening twelvemonth; but even after allowing for this, for the decrease in 1921 from preceding years and for the natural increase in a time of reviving trade, it must be said that such a showing, in immediate sequence to a great advance of duties and heavy anticipatory importations, is wholly out of line with all experience. The slovenly manner in which (no doubt inevitably) the figures are given out—the repeated corrections, the overlapping periods and the absence of any intelligible comparisons—make prudent people cautious about drawing inferences.

Figures for the calendar year as a whole may be taken with somewhat less reserve, because we are sure of the facts in eight months at any rate. The totals now available show for the year the smallest exports since 1915 and, except for 1919, 1920 and 1921, the largest imports on record. The surplus of exports over imports is smaller by a thousand million dollars than in any calendar year since the war began. It is still greater than in any pre-war year, but it exceeds the pre-war maximum, 1913, by only $24,000,000. This sweeping reduction of our yearly export surplus, as compared with the war years and 1919, is largely a matter of prices, but it may also be construed as the natural working of economic forces in the case of a creditor country. All this important picture of international readjustment makes one regret the more that returns under the Fordney tariff should have to be accepted with hesitation.

Stockholders of the American Chain Company having subscribed for the new Class A 8 per cent. cumulative participating stock to the extent of approximately 70 per cent. of their holdings, the unsubscribed balance of approximately 130,000 shares is offered for subscription today by Dillon, Read & Co. at $25.50 per share. STOCKHOLDERS FOR STEEL MERGER PLAN

Approve Proposal for Acquisition of Midvale Property by the Bethlehem Corporation.

The proposed merger of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Corporation with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, was approved yesterday at meetings of stockholders of both companies. The meeting of Bethlehem Steel stockholders was held in Newark, and the Midvale meeting in this city. The Midvale stockholders, after approving the merger, adjourned until March 20 for final ratification, owing to the fact that not enough bonds have yet been deposited by bondholders to make the plan effective. The stockholders also authorized a reduction in the company's capital stock from $150,000,000 to $5,000. All resolutions presented were approved by a vote of 1,667,013 shares of 2,000,000 shares outstanding.

The stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, besides approving the acquisition of the Midvale property, voted to increase the company's common stock by $119,500,000. Of this total, $97,681,400 will be used in exchange for Midvale stock, and $21,828,600 will be held to cover the conversion privileges of the Midvale bonds at the rate of $500 par value of Bethlehem stock for each $1,000 of bonds. There was represented either by proxy or in person, 221,180 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, 56,968 shares of non-cumulative preferred stock and 117,516 shares of common stock, of respective totals of 291,546, 61,535 and 148,520 shares.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Federal Trade Commission today extended until March 23 the time within which the Bethlehem, Lackawanna and Midvale Steel Companies can file their answer to the commission's complaint that their proposed merger would be in violation of law. The answer was to have been filed today.

AUTO TIRES ADVANCE.

United States Rubber Company Announces 10 Per Cent. Increase.

The United States Rubber Company yesterday announced an advance in automobile tires and tubes of approximately 10 per cent. to take effect March 15. This advance is expected to be followed by similar announcements on behalf of the other large manufacturers of tires.

The increase, it is understood, was due to the recent sharp advances in the price of cotton fabric and crude rubber.

Coal Company Liquidating Dividend.

Directors of the Pond Creek Coal Company are expected to meet in Boston on Friday to declare a final liquidating dividend of $10 a share, according to reports in the financial district yesterday. Shortly after the property was sold to Henry Ford an initial liquidating dividend of $35 a share was declared.

Cotton Exchange Seat for $32,000.

The New York Cotton Exchange membership of W. N. Cohen was sold to L. Brooks yesterday for $32,000, an increase of $2,000 over the last previous sale. The price if $32,000 established a new high record in the history of the Exchange.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

The purchase of dollars in London and the consequent sale of sterling bills in all markets, to meet payments for heavy shipments of raw sugar, now being made to England, was ascribed yesterday as the reason for the unsettlement in sterling, which brought it down from $4.76¾ to $4.70¼. The irregularity and moderately lower prices in sterling had sympathetic effect throughout most of the list and about the best that could have been said for the foreign exchanges was that they were irregular. They did quite a bit of flopping about during the day, francs, for instance, closing at 6.04 cents last Saturday, sold up to 6.07 cents and back to 6.03 cents. There was a continuation of the strong upward movement in the Far Eastern exchanges, guided to a considerable extent by the strength of silver in New York and in London. One of the exceptions to the general irregularity of the market was to be found in guilder exchange, which advanced from a low of 39.51 cents to 39.58 cents.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent:

Indispensable to Investors

THE task of preparing Federal and State Income Tax returns is not difficult to the investor who keeps a compact and accurate record of the details of his investments.

We have prepared a convenient loose-leaf INVESTMENT RECORD BOOK wherein the investor may record his purchases and sales of securities, commissions, taxes and accrued interest paid, tax-free covenants, sinking fund provisions, redemption terms, etc. This book also contains provision for a monthly record of income derived from investments together with the per cent of the tax thereon paid at the source.

This record book will be sent free upon request

COLUMBIA GAS CO. MAKES $5,777,076

TROLLEY SERVICE GAINS

The Columbia Gas and Electric Company, which controls properties operating in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky, yesterday issued its report of earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, last, showing gains in income from its gas, electric and street railway services as compared with all previous years, the company earning $11.55 per share before depreciation. During the year the company spent for the extension and improvement of its properties $3,426,611. The consolidated income account for the past three years follows:

Net earnings	8,672,316	7,121,481	7,334,132
Other income	1,819,297	2,051,240	2,075,677
Gross income	10,491,613	9,172,181	9,409,110
Net income..	5,777,076	5,004,011	5,533,794
Dividends...	3,000,000	3,000,000	3,000,000
Bal. avail. for dep., &c.	2,777,076	2,004,011	2,533,794

The consolidated balance sheet disclosed reserves of $5,309,724 and surplus of $78,670,358, while current assets more than doubled current liabilities at $5,607,902 against $2,389,081. Among the current or working assets were carried cash at $1,081,993; accounts receivable, $2,518,947; material and supplies, $856,544, and interest and dividends accrued on securities owned, $452,417. Current and accrued liabilities consisted of accounts payable, $456,348; accrued taxes, $1,232,164, and accrued rentals, $320,174.

The sharpest gain reported in any of the company's services was in the electric department, the total number of electric customers, as of Dec. 31, 1922, having been 94,422 against 77,102 the year before. The total number of gas customers was 156,926 against 154,427 and total revenue passengers carried during the year equaled 37,114,026 against 36,937,934. The gain in passengers carried was particularly interesting in view of the decrease of approximately 90,000 car miles during the year, the 1922 figure having been 3,909,062 against 3,977,305 the year before. There was a nominal increase shown in the report of the water department, the total number of 1922 water consumers having been 4,378 against 4,241 the year before.

Light was thrown on the gasoline and oil operations in the report to stockholders made by President P. G. Gossler, who said:

"The quantity of gasoline produced has increased substantially. During the year careful examination and experimentation have been pursued with a new patented process for the extraction of gasoline from natural gas. Oil production was practically the same as in 1921. The policy of the company has been to restrict its oil operations largely to such production as has resulted from drilling for gas, and to defer active work in its extensive oil fields until the price of oil makes such development more attractive.

"The Directors look forward to 1923 with great confidence that the present growth of the company's business and earnings will continue satisfactory."

Central Illinois Light Earnings.

The Central Illinois Light Company earned in 1922 a greater sum than in any previous year, according to that company's annual report issued yesterday, which showed total gross earnings of $3,037,953 against $2,712,916 the year before; gross income of $1,172,320 against $1,049,903; net income of $692,166 against $635,949, and a balance after dividends and depreciation charges of $373,612 against $255,090.

BIG TOBACCO MERGER IS APPROVED HERE

PLAN NO NEW FINANCING

Stockholders Asked to Authorize Change in Capitalization to Permit Absorption of Stock.

Directors of the Tobacco Products Corporation at a meeting held yesterday approved a plan under which the company will take over control of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company. Rumors that such a consolidation was under way had been circulated in the financial district late last week. The deal has also been approved by the directors of the smaller organization. It is understood that no new financing will be necessary to complete the transaction.

The Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company at the present time has an authorized issue of 100,000 shares of capital stock of $100 a share par value. Of this amount there are 62,778 shares outstanding. Under the plan the stockholders are asked to authorize a change in the capitalization which will call for for the new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and no par value common stock. Present stockholders will be asked to exchange their capital stock for the new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock while the no par value common stock will be sold to the Tobacco Products Corporation at $25 a share, thus giving that company control. It is understood that after the common stock has received $7 a share dividend in one year, both stocks will share alike in dividends.

"Tobacco Products Corporation and the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company have agreed for the latter to convert its stock, which is now all of one class, into 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and it will issue common stock equal in amount to the preferred stock, which common stock is to be without nominal or par value and to confer no voting rights. Common will be sold to the Tobacco Products Corporation or its nominees for $25 per share. It is provided no dividend shall be paid upon the common stock until dividend on the preferred stock is paid, and when as much as $7 per share has been paid on the common stock any further amount available for dividends shall be divided equally between holders of the preferred and common shares."

DECEMBER IMPORTS 60 MILLIONS ABOVE 1921

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Imports into the United States during December were valued at $367,000,000, according to preliminary estimates by the Commerce Department, compared to $237,496,509 during December, 1921. For the calendar year 1922 total imports were valued at $3,116,054,000, or an increase of $605,996,000 over 1921.

Calculations as to the value of imports have been delayed since enactment of the new tariff law, but the December total was greater than that of any other month in 1922, except September, when importers, rushing goods to the United States before the higher tariff went into effect, brought in a total of $389,469,000.

The value of imports during 1922 was smaller than for 1920 and 1919, which amounted to $5,278,000,000 and $5,004,000,000, respectively, but was nearly twice as great as for 1913, a normal pre-war year, which amounted to $1,792,000,000.

Merchandise imports of the United States for December and for preceding months this year, also for December in a series of preceding years, are as follows:

Dec. ...	$367,000,000	Dec., 1921...	$237,496,509
Nov. ...	294,000,000	Dec., 1920...	366,057,445
Oct. ...	276,002,000	Dec., 1919...	320,710,256
Sept. ...	389,469,000	Dec., 1918...	230,000,517
Aug. ...	281,418,910	Dec., 1917...	227,911,401
July ...	263,135,481	Dec., 1916...	204,854,129
June ...	260,680,980	Dec., 1914...	171,885,503
May ...	253,817,304	Dec., 1913...	114,044,949
March ...	236,177,796	Dec., 1912...	154,051,444
Feb. ...	215,743,283	Dec., 1911...	140,874,503
Jan. ...	217,188,500	Dec., 1910...	136,415,000

	Exports.	Imports.	Excess Exports.
1920.....	8,228,016	5,278,481	2,949,535
1919.....	7,920,426	5,004,365	2,916,061
1918.....	6,149,082	3,031,213	3,117,878
1917.....	6,232,315	2,355,449	3,876,866
1916.....	5,483,541	2,301,938	3,001,003

Last year's surplus of exports was the smallest since 1914, when it amounted to $325,235,000.

Testimonials

"After draining my tank thoroughly I put in gas made by the Interstate Gasoline Co., and after running over the same road and the same distance I found that I had secured 25% miles per gallon. I found on going up hill I had very much more power behind my motor; I also found that after using your gas my motor was giving better results and that all carbon was loose or had disappeared.

I fully believe that with constant use of your gas that any engine in any car will give results much more efficient than by the use of any other gas. At least this is my experience as far as I have tested it."

A. E. Walker,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

"The following points might also interest you: Perfect flame in fuelizer, no odor, no smoke out of exhaust, immediate pickup and no extra adjustment to carburetor. In a few days I am going to make a test with the Willys St. Claire and also Lafayette car. Allow me in closing to congratulate The Interstate Gasoline Co. on the production of this wonderful gas."

Jas. E. Dudley,
Denver, Colorado.

"I have tested your 'Speedex' most thoroughly as I have drawn off all my old gas and placed in the tank the ten gallons which you so kindly sent me. I have found my car to get away much quicker than with the ordinary gas and have obtained a mileage of fully fifty per cent. more. The car runs more smoothly and with apparently more power, particularly on the climb."

Cornelius Keane,
Danbury, Conn.

"No doubt you will remember that about a year ago the writer had occasion to thoroly test the gasoline manufactured by your Company, which test proved at that time very satisfactory. However, there was some doubt in our minds as to whether or not this fluid would disintegrate with age.

It so happened that two ten-gallon cans were shipped here by mistake, remained in our stockroom about a year, and were only discovered this year when we were taking inventory.

I was naturally very much interested in knowing whether the above condition would take place and had the gas put in my car, and thought you might be interested in knowing the results. Everything you have claimed for it came true.

I got better mileage, and as this test was conducted in the coldest spell we have had during the winter, I must say that even under these very severe conditions I had absolutely no difficulty in starting."

Hugh Chalmers,
By R. L. Sweeney.

"The result of the recent test of the gasoline received from the Interstate Gasoline Company, which was made under my supervision, was so gratifying that I feel a report of the results is due you.

I may say that your statements concerning this gasoline were borne out in fact, as the test proved conclusively that it is far superior to any motor fuel I have ever used."

William Hackenberger, M. E.,
New York.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Stockholders:
Interstate Gasoline Company

At this the second anniversary of your Company, I am pleased to report satisfactory results for the 1922 operations of your Company.

Your management has devoted the greater part of its efforts to increasing the manufacturing capacity of your factories. Approximately 50% of your capital was represented by plants in operation in 1921 and 50% was used in plants in course of construction. All of your plants are now in operation.

The Burkburnett plant, representing the 50% of your capital, earned a sufficient amount to pay our regular 12% cash dividend on the entire capital stock outstanding, which is a splendid showing.

The enormous increase in gasoline engines has created a demand that tests the refinery capacity of the country. We believe the earnings for the current year, 1923, will be very satisfactory to you.

The management continues the safe policy of not having any bonds, notes, preferred stock or any indebtedness except current bills.

Operating on this policy there is no need to accumulate large surplus or sinking funds. We believe every corporation should be operated for the benefit of its owners (the stockholders) and they should receive a substantial part of the earnings each year.

The stockholders of your Company in profitable years will receive large dividends, in less profitable years less dividends, but at all times the assets of the Company are under their control and free from creditors or bankruptcy.

The average amount of capital stock outstanding during 1922 was $974,875.00 and the net income, after deducting for Federal taxes, was $196,278.42. Dividends for the year were $146,510.24 and the earned surplus account on February 1st, 1923, after payment of all dividends, was $50,000.00.

The report of your Company made by Miller & Olson, Public Accountants, as of December 31st, 1922, shows cash $94,871.28, inventories and bills receivable $1,097,918.16, making a total of $1,192,789.44. The current liabilities were $47,128.07, leaving net current assets of $1,145,170.37.

The real estate and plants are valued at $1,488,167.06 and there are no obligations of any kind against these assets.

The Gasoline and Blending processes controlled by your Company are very valuable, and following the conservative policy of your management, are carried on the books at one dollar.

I shall not attempt to review the many problems that develop in the upbuilding of a business of this kind, only to say that as they appeared the proper solution was determined and we are now going ahead full capacity to produce the largest number of gallons of gasoline possible in 1923.

In conclusion I desire to thank the large number of stockholders who have honored us with their presence and their words of commendation, and I also want to register my appreciation of the valuable assistance given by Mr. F. W. Colwell, Vice President and General Manager in charge of operation, also to the other officers, directors and employees, all of whom have cooperated in making the success so far attained.

Respectfully submitted,
Matthew G. Collins, President.

BUSINESS: The Georgia Railway and Power Company owns and operates extensive hydro-electric generating plants, transmission and distribution lines, which supply electric light and power to the northern portion of the State of Georgia, including the City of Atlanta, and 51 other municipalities and their vicinities. The territory served, which contains a population of over 730,000, is noted for its prosperity and growth. Atlanta is generally conceded to be the financial, commercial and railway center of the South. Expenditures for additions since that date together with the proceeds of these Bonds aggregate $6,196,000, making a total as of December 31, 1922, of $46,767,000. RAILROAD LAWYERS TO FIGHT MILEAGE

Counsel Will Meet Here Thursday in First Phase of Attack on New Scrip Order.

PLAN U. S. COURT SUIT

Lawyers for eastern railroads have been called to a meeting next Thursday in the offices of the legal department of the New York Central Railroad Company, where they will hold their first formal conference preparatory to carrying into the United States courts their fight against the recent rate reduction ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission on 2,500-mile scrip tickets. It is expected that representatives of all the larger railroads operating in the eastern territory will attend as a result of the attitude recently expressed by the American Railway Association which went on record against the ordered rate reduction on the ground that it was "grossly discriminatory," and that the railroads were not in a position to sacrifice revenues.

The scheduled meeting of the Eastern Railroads Presidents' Conference for Thursday is not expected to be held owing to the absence of L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson, who is in the West. Statements by railroad presidents have, however, been almost unanimously against the proposed rate reduction and it is known that many conferences between the executives and their attorneys have been held in the past fortnight. The Interstate Commerce Commission's order is effective May 1 and it is understood that counsel for the railroads will seek by injunction proceedings to cause a delay until the case has been threshed out in the courts.

In forming their attack on the order, attorneys have several rate decisions as precedents which, they state, give them a particularly strong case. For one thing, they contend that the principle of the order on the ground that 2,500-mile tickets should be considered as "wholesale" transportation and therefore entitled to a lower rate cannot be reconciled with the commission's own belief that trans-continental freight shipments, regardless of whether one trunk or several carloads of freight are shipped, cannot be so classed.

On the point of discrimination, counsel for the railroads contend that the ordered reduction would benefit only a small class of the traveling public, principally commercial travelers and trans-continental tourists. This class, the railroad lawyers contend, can better afford to pay the price asked than many of the thousands of tourists who in the course of a year travel as great or a greater distance than the 2,500 miles for which the new scrip tickets are to be provided. The new tickets are to be good for one year from date of purchase.

TAX 'JOKER' LOSS PUT AT $15,000,000

VOLK DENIES THE CHARGE

A joker slipped into the National Bank Tax bill in the closing hours of Congress may cost New York City in the neighborhood of $15,000,000 instead of only $5,000,000 as originally figured, Controller Charles L. Craig told the members of the Board of Estimate in committee of the whole yesterday.

The Controller declared he had heard that the measure, with the added clause, instead of aiding cities like New York, favored banking interests through the country and that bankers believed that the city never would collect from the banks the money it had been deprived of by the decision of the Court of Appeals. The bill as passed provides that the city may collect the money if it is "legal" to do so.

"I have been informed," said the Controller "that there is something in the Federal bill passed at Washington which makes it a measure favorable to bankers. It purports to validate the city's tax on national banks, but there is grave doubt in my mind whether it does anything of the kind, particularly so far as the retroactive features are concerned. It is a bankers' bill, pure and simple."

At the urging of the Mayor, the committee passed a motion calling on the Corporation Counsel to draft immediately legislative bills to bring relief sought by the city.

Representative Lester D. Volk of the Tenth Congressional District, Brooklyn, who was a member of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House which presented the National Tax bill, declared last night that his recollection was that the bill was very carefully drawn and discussed, and he ridiculed the charge that a joker had been slipped in at the last minute, or at any time.

The Senate amendment to the bill was finally concurred in, he said, in order to get the bill passed in time to afford any measure of relief to the city. He said his recollection was that the amendment was retroactive only to the extent of providing that national banks could not be taxed retroactively to any greater amount than State banks or money in the hands of private individuals competing with the banks. He said Controller Craig's charge was a loose one, and he would have to know more particulars before he answered it fully.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Representative Wingo of Arkansas, who, as a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, helped write the Bank Tax bill, said that Controller Craig either did not understand the facts or was willfully misrepresenting them.

"The trouble is that the New York State law grants favors to private bankers," he said. "The New York State courts have held that it is discrimination to tax national bank shares if private bankers are not taxed on the same basis. Instead of trying to bring pressure on Congress, New York City should ask the Legislature to remove the discrimination.

"The State is the sole judge. Shares can be taxed, the net income that the individual receives can be taxed, or the net income of the national bank can be taxed under the law, but the rate must not be higher than that applied to private bankers.

"If Hylan wants money, let him bring pressure on Albany instead of trying to bring it on Congress, and make the private bankers dig up.

"There was a joker in the Kellogg bill as introduced in the Senate. The Calder amendment was worded so as to permit private bankers to have free rein. But in the House we changed this so that national banks could not be assessed more than private bankers. The Calder amendment would have permitted the Legislature to veto the decision of New York State courts."

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Shows Gain.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company reports profits of $18,307,758 from operations for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, against profits of $11,019,532 in the previous year. After payment of $4,805,288 for dividends last year there remained a surplus of $4,470,515, thus increasing the profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31, 1922, to $24,704,041.

FIGHT STATE'S FUEL LAW.

Two Jamestown Dealers Contest its Constitutionality.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., March 12.—The constitutionality of the emergency fuel law, under which the State Fuel Administration operates, was attacked in County Court at Mayville today by counsel for Cornelius J. Moynihan and Edward B. Thompson, co-partners in the Pittsburgh and Freeport Coal Company, doing business in this city. These dealers are under indictment for delivering coal in quantities greater than permitted by the State fuel regulations.

Harold J. Adams of Buffalo and John S. Leonard of Jamestown, representing them, asked leave to inspect the Grand Jury minutes and moved to dismiss the five indictments found against the men. Mr. Adams's main contention was that the legislative body had no authority to delegate its legislative power to the State Fuel Administrator, whose orders have the force of laws.

The motion to inspect the minutes was opposed by Assistant District Attorney Lee L. Ottaway of Jamestown, and the constitutionality of the law was upheld by George W. Wickersham jr., representing State Fuel Administrator Goethals, and by Deputy Attorney General Francis W. Cullen of Buffalo.

Mr. Wickersham said that without this law the poor people of the State would have had no coal. Mr. Cullen upheld the statute as a lawful exercise of the police power of the State. County Judge Arthur E. Ottaway asked counsel to submit briefs and reserved decision.

In 1921 the company's net profits were $412,751, or the equivalent of $1.39 a share on the stock then outstanding. The surplus after dividend in 1922 amounted to $111,748, thus increasing the profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31, 1922, to $3,067,852.

BOLL WEEVIL'S FOES TURN ON EACH OTHER

QUOTES FEDERAL OFFICIAL

Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison, President and Managing Director of the National Campaign for Boll Weevil Control, yesterday announced that he had received a letter from C. W. Pugsley, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, denying that funds collected by the American Cotton Association were to be utilized with the co-operation of or under the direction of Government authorities in carrying on the fight against the boll weevil. Dr. Hutchison declared that the organization of which he is now head had received the personal approbation of President Harding, that it had already begun its operations with the co-operation of Government agencies and that it, and it alone, was entitled to solicit funds on the ground that it was working with the Government to exterminate the boll weevil.

In a statement given out yesterday, Dr. Hutchison recited the history of the National Campaign for Boll Weevil Control and said that in the convention at which the organization was launched representatives of the American Cotton Association were present and unanimously approved of the plans as drawn up, which provided among other points that Dr. Hutchison was to serve as Managing Director. Since that time, he stated, the American Cotton Association has organized a new association to carry on the same work, and in referring to the old organization, stated that the appointment of Dr. Hutchison as its head was found to have been a "monumental mistake."

"The National Campaign for Boll Weevil Control will continue its functions despite the interference of the American Cotton Association," Dr. Hutchison said. "I only regret that this mud-slinging proposition has arisen, as we can ill afford to engage in a controversy while the boll weevil is threatening the economic life of the Southland. As for the inferences drawn against me in a recent statement by an official of the American Cotton Association I am not worried. I am engaged in this work at no profit to myself; in fact, I have practically suspended my business in the interest of pushing this campaign through to a finish, and my chief concern is to exterminate the boll weevil which since 1892 has cost the United States more money than all its wars combined.

"The campaign has the solid backing of the States in the cotton belt and is already at work in fighting the boll weevil. The action of the American Cotton Association in creating a new organization after sponsoring the one already in existence was wholly improper and the American Cotton Association's appeal for funds was misleading, inasmuch as the association's solicitors stated they were working in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture, when, in fact, no representative of the association had even held a conference with any of the heads of the department."

Dr. Hutchison described the campaign thus far carried on by his organization and said that backers of the South through co-operation with the Campaign for the Control of the Boll Weevil had made it possible to provide calcium arsenate for their needs. Calcium arsenate is the only known chemical which will exterminate the boll weevil without killing the plant, Dr. Hutchison said, and through insuring producers a fixed consumption a year it is expected to obtain sufficient of this poison to carry on the work.

McLane Tilton of Charlottesville, Va., former Vice President of the Chemical National Bank, has accepted the Chairmanship of the Financing Committee of the Campaign for the Control of the Boll-Weevil, Dr. Hutchison announced.

NEW CROP COTTON PRESSED FOR SALE

New and old crop contracts moved in opposite directions yesterday as that cotton for May delivery advanced 18 points, but that for October declined 22. While selling from various directions had a depressing influence on late months, carrying October 40 points from opening figures, May closed above initial quotations. Several sharp fluctuations occurred during the day without developing a definite trend in either direction, though March came within 13 points of May at one time, the discount widening in late trading to twice that amount. The market appeared to be waiting for evidence of a better spot demand. Spot sales at the principal Southern markets aggregated only 3,000 bales, the smallest day's business in several months.

The sharp reaction in American markets, following Liverpool's close on Friday, called for a 40-point decline abroad. Instead of this, the loss was only about half the amount due. With more trade calling in evidence on Saturday's decline, immediate results of a steadier range of prices abroad were to run July up 30 points from previous closing. Throughout early trading, operations in the two crops presented a striking contrast. Houses with Southern connections had a steady stream of selling orders to execute in late months, whereas speculative and local buying characterized morning trading in old crop positions. At times it became difficult to obtain May and July contracts to fill orders, though steady selling pressure continued on October. Though October started at 26⅝ cents, quotations worked lower until the level touched 26.49. While July sold 15 points up, October was 10 points below Saturday. This had a quieting effect upon the market, helped by an interruption in wire service both South and West. Each decline in old crop positions met support so that prices held throughout the session.

Owing to the combination of the increased offerings of actual cotton at interior points, with a reduced volume of daily spot transactions, operators were more inclined to see what Southern developments would be. Allowing for linters produced from the 1922 crop and the carry-over at uncounted towns and on plantations on Oct. 1 last year, there is still a quantity of cotton to be moved into sight. Some of this has been brought out by a 10-cent price level but whether offerings will continue in the event of a further decline in contract markets becomes an interesting question. With a certain amount of old cotton available and Southern selling of the next crop in progress, the market encountered contracts on all upturns. New Orleans ruled relatively easier than New York most of the time and this was so pronounced the last hour that prices worked off to low levels of the session. An increased demand in final trading lifted May and July while closing selling orders in October left late months at the bottom.

WHEAT MOVES UP IN LIVELIER MARKET

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Wheat values advanced today despite reports of a bearish cash situation, with around 1,000,000 bushels Manitoba sold abroad from New York at equal to 3¾ cent under Chicago May, f.o.b. there, and 18¼ over Winnipeg. There was moderate pressure on the market early, due to rains in parts of the Southwest, but later messages indicated that Western Oklahoma and Kansas received little or no moisture; and, with a good class of buying of May, prices moved up readily and closed a half a cent higher.

May had a range of 1¾ cent for the day, but trade was greatly restricted by crippled wire service with the West and Northwest and messages from the latter points were slow in arriving.

Local sentiment is rather bullish, but little assistance is being received in the way of a betterment in the cash demand, and the bulls are now banking mainly on a crop scare developing in the third of Kansas and Oklahoma. The condition of Winter wheat in missouri is 82 against 80 last year, as officially reported.

A local house was a persistent buyer of May at Winnipeg and a seller here, but the difference between the two markets was unchanged at the last.

The visible supply statement was not issued, owing to inability to secure reports from outside markets. With six points to come, it showed a decrease of 507,000 bushels of wheat and 600,000 of oats and an increase of 142,000 of corn. The primary receipts and shipments statements were also incomplete with a number of important points missing.

Hard Winter on spot here dropped ¼ cent, as compared with May, with No. 2 selling at May price to ¼ cent under, with a slow demand and 20,000 bushels were sold to go to store.

There was a noticeable lack of general pressure on corn and while sample lots were off as much as ½ per cent, as compared with May, futures were ¼@¾ cent higher at the last with the nearby delivery leading.

Shipping demand was better, with sales of 170,000 bushels, including 35,000 to exporters.

Oats closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower and rye unchanged to ¼ cent higher. It is reported that there are 1,500,000 bushels of oats at Erie still unsold and for which the demand in the east is slow.

A private Argentine cable estimated the exportable surplus of corn at 90,000,000 bushels, or 22,000,000 under the actual clearances of the past season.

STANDARD OIL OF N. J. FOR MORE EFFICIENCY

Directors Name Committee to Study All Departments and Recommend Changes.

George H. Jones, Vice President and Treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has been appointed Chairman of a committee selected by the Board of Directors to make a study of all departments of the largest of the Standard Oil units, for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the organization. This committee will have power to investigate every department, from the Chairman of the Board and President of the company to the shipping and sales departments, and to recommend changes.

W. C. Teagle, President, in a statement to employes recently, called attention to the increased competition the company would have to face in the future. He also called attention to the rising costs of operation and said that in order to make a good showing and eliminate all possible waste, the organization would have to be placed on an efficient basis.

It is hoped by officials that the investigation, which is expected to take the greater part of a year, will eliminate much duplication in service and do away with much research and clerical work rarely of benefit to the company.

"I have had people come out to see my apartment to whom I had talked at great length before they came; and they could not conceive of the room in the apartment at the price that we got it for. They were used to little cramped city apartments or they lived in houses and could not see how anyone with a family could live in an apartment.

"We had been living in the country on account of the children and had looked for a long time for an apartment. We didn't believe it was possible for three children and two grownups to live in an apartment until we came to Jackson Heights and saw the convenience of the rooms and the joys of living there with no furnace to care for, and lots of hot water.

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes of 5 to 7 rooms, 2 and 3 bathrooms, are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life, and yet live in New York City.

BROADWAY AT NINTH

Originated by the third Earl of Craven

CRAVEN Mixture was first blended in 1867 at the express command of the third Earl of Craven. It achieved immediate popularity amongst the Earl of Craven's many friends; its wonderful fragrance and delicacy of flavour being a marked improvement on the ordinary smoking Mixture.

That was fifty years ago. To-day, Craven is still made in the old-fashioned, painstaking way, maturing naturally and slowly. Gradually mellowing to perfection: This method alone guarantees its exquisite flavour.

Immortalised by Sir James Barrie

Peter Pan STATUE, Kensington Gdns., London

The creator of Peter Pan immortalised Craven. He said "What I call 'Arcadia' in 'My Lady Nicotine' is the Craven mixture and no other."

This delightful old-world Mixture is carefully packed in patent airtight tins to insure that it reaches you in all its virgin freshness. The Craven you purchase in Fifth Avenue is as fresh and fragrant as when you purchased it at Carreras' Piccadilly shop in London.

It is a Tobacco to Live For

OVERMAN

The ORIGINAL CUSHION TIRE

AS the pioneer in Cushion Tires, the Overman Cushion Tire Co., Inc., holds the principal underlying Cushion Tire patents, which have been added to from time to time during the past fourteen years as design, construction and compound have been perfected. The result is that the Overman Cushion Tire is now universally accepted as the best truck tire manufactured.

The widespread tendency to manufacture tires of a similar design is the clearest of proofs of the merit of the Overman Design. Government tests have established the fact that Overman Cushion Tires give practically the same ease of riding as a properly inflated pneumatic, and far above that possible with any solid tire or combination of solid tires and special wheels.

No other tire, however, contains the Overman compound. Only the best new stock obtainable is used. Years of experiment and test have developed a Cushion Tire Compound which is guaranteed by the manufacturers for from 15,000 to 25,000 miles, depending on the type of equipment and which has been consistently far exceeding its guarantee for many years past. Performance counts, not promises.
